PREFACE.

I AM again in a position to publish before the start of the Championship Meetings, notwithstanding the fact that I have had to deal with a vastly increased array of statistics. Details of no fewer than 3253 Golf Clubs and courses are now given, and it is in no boastful spirit that I claim for THE GOLFING ANNUAL that it is the most complete and reliable work of reference on all pertaining to the game. This end has been attained with the hearty co-operation of old and valued contributors and Club Secretaries, to whom I am deeply grateful. For the very full details of Clubs in New Zealand I have specially to thank Miss Constance A. Barnicoat.

GOLFING ANNUAL.

RECENT DECISIONS OF THE RULES OF GOLF COMMITTEE.

THE following are the more important decisions of the Rules of Golf Committee upon points submitted to them since our last issue:—

Q.—The final (thirty-six holes) of the Ballater Golf Club's competition for Gold Medal is decided by holes, not strokes. A. and B. are the finalists. B., not being in Ballater, wires A. that he will meet him at the first tee, ready for play, at a certain time. A. turns up at the time appointed, and waits fifteen minutes. At the end of this time, B. not putting in an appearance, A. commenced and played sixteen holes alone, when he was joined by the greenkeeper, and together they played the remaining twenty. The reason A. started off without B. was that he was afraid if he waited any longer there would not be sufficient daylight to enable him to play thirty-six holes. B. comes on the course while A. is playing No. 4 hole, and seeing A. playing, goes away again. A. finished the thirty-six holes, and handed in his card. B. does not play at all. A second prize is given by the Club to the runner-up. Has A. won the Medal, and is B. entitled to the second prize?

A.—As the final is decided by holes, not strokes, A.'s score has no bearing on the case. If A. was dissatisfied with B.'s non-appearance at the hour fixed, he could have lodged with the Committee in charge of the competition a claim to be declared the winner. It is the duty of the Committee to decide if B.'s explanation is satisfactory, and if not, to award the match to A. If the explanation is satisfactory, the Committee should fix a day and hour for A. and B. to play off the final. The prizes fall to A. and B. according to the decision of the Committee, or the result of the final, if played.

Q.—Is it legal for a player to carry round a flat board, which he uses to drive off from on the tees?

A.—No.

Q.—In a foursome handicap competition, A. and B. received seven strokes in eighteen holes from C. and D. At the eighteenth hole the match was squared, and, according to the conditions of the competition, play was continued until a definite result was arrived at. A. and B., who claimed to have strokes at the same holes as in the first round, halved the nineteenth and twentieth holes with their strokes, and won the twenty-first, at which they had no stroke. They consequently claimed the match. C. and D. claimed the match at the nineteenth hole, and played the twentieth and twenty-first holes under protest, as they maintained that A. and B. should get no further advantage from their handicap after the first round was finished, and that therefore they (C. and D.) had won, and not halved, the nineteenth hole. By the stroke chart for the course seven strokes are given at the following holes, viz.:—first, second, fifth, tenth, twelth, fourteenth, and sixteenth. Which couple won the match?

A.—The Committee in charge of the competition are responsible for the conditions of play, and for their interpretation.

Q.—With reference to the interpretation of Rule 14 (part 3), is it absolutely imperative that the player should place the ball with his hand, or may he place it otherwise so long as he places it behind the casual water?

A.—The rule on this subject is now No. 14 (par. d). He may place the ball otherwise than by hand.

Q.—A player in a Medal competition drove his ball over a burn and found it lying under the end of a bridge (two steel beams covered with cross bars of wood). The bridge is carried a considerable height above the normal water level or banks, and not only spans the burn, but also a considerable portion of ground on both sides. The ball lay on grass under the end of the bridge, which at this point is not sufficiently high to enable the player to get underneath and play the ball. The player lifted the ball under penalty of one stroke, dropped it behind the water hazard, claiming that under the local bye-law, which is similar to local bye-law No. 2 St. Andrews, he was entitled to treat a ball on ground under the span of the bridge as if it were in the burn. Was he right?

A.—The ball was not in the burn, and therefore, in the absence of any local rule on the subject, the penalty for lifting is two strokes.

Q.—The two best net scores in each of twelve competitions qualify to play in the final. On the last qualifying day A. went round with B. (a member who had qualified on a previous competition day.) Both A. and B. holed out at every hole. B. allowed A. to have the honour at every tee, although B. at several of the holes holed out in fewer strokes than A. B. marked and countersigned A.'s card, and A. returned the best net score. A protest was lodged against A. on the ground that the rules of the game had not been observed, inasmuch as A. had been allowed to take the honour when not entitled to it. (1) Was B. entitled under the circumstances to allow A. to have the honour every time? (2) Ought A. to be penalised any, and how many strokes, or is A. disqualfied?

A.—(1) Yes. (2) A. was neither penalised nor disqualified.

Q.—Is it admissible to use a putter, the handle of which is fixed at the back of the head, and which is used by the player standing behind the ball, resting the club on the ground, and striking the ball from that position?

A.—Provided Rule No. 6 is not infringed, the use of such a putter is admissible.

Q.—What is the exact standing of a four-ball match and a three-ball match on the links; also can a twosome claim the right to pass a four-ball and a three-ball match when both matches are not losing any distance?

A.—According to definition 1 (a) a single (twosome) has precedence of and is entitled to pass both a three-ball match and a four-ball match.

Q.—A player in a stroke competition loses a ball, and cannot find it within the allotted time of five minutes. Is there a limit to the time in which he shall return to the spot from which he played his ball and continue his game? If so, what is the limit?

A.—There is no limit, but the player is not entitled to take more than a reasonable time after the lapse of five minutes in returning to the spot from which he played, and continuing his game.

Q.—A. and B. were playing a hole match. Going to the eighth hole, B. drove short of the bunker, while A. drove into it. B. played the odds. A. played two strokes to get out of the bunker, and another to reach B.'s second. On going to play three more, A. discovered he had not played his own ball out of the bunker, and on going back found that two boys had taken it away after he had played the other ball out of the bunker. Getting his own ball back, however, he dropped it in the bunker near where the boys said they had taken it from, and getting it out in one stroke this time, ultimately won the hole. Did he do rightly?

A.—He did rightly.

Q.—A. and B. are playing a match in a Club competition. At the third hole, A. having played three more to the green, gave up the hole and picked up. Upon B. picking up his ball, he discovers for the first time that it is not the ball with which he commenced to play the hole. A. having given up the hole in ignorance of B.'s error, can he claim it under Rule 29? It is admitted that several strokes have been played by both sides after the wrong ball was first used by B.

A.—B. loses the hole.

Q.—(1) Playing for a Cup, A. and his partner (the partner was between 70 and 80 years old and had come without a change) took shelter during a storm of hail and rain. A. handed in a card of 89 net. A.'s card proved to be the best by one stroke. Should A. have handed in his card? The Committee asked A. to withdraw his card under Rule 13, Medal Play. This A. refuses to do. (2) What steps should be taken by the Committee? (3) Should the second man accept Cup?

A.—A. was disqualified. The second man wins the Cup?

Q.—A lady playing in a Medal round on a course where the ladies' tees, at several of the holes, are considerably in advance of those of the gentlemen's tees, by mistake drove from one of the latter, but on reaching the ladies' tee discovered the mistake, teed another ball, and holed out. Does this constitute disqualification?

A.—If the player played from an entirely wrong teeing ground she is entitled to re-tee on the proper teeing ground without penalty, but if it is meant that she has played from outside the limits of the proper teeing ground, she is disqualified.

Q.—Two gentlemen missed the train by which members of their Club travelled to a competition. They telephoned to the Secretary to ask if they might come on by a later train. He said they might, and that he would leave cards for them. When they arrived they found no cards had been left, but they kept their scores and handed them in. The scores were not included in the list, however. The point is whether, having sanctioned the members playing, the Secretary was entitled to exclude the scores when handed in?

A.—It is for the Committee to decide whether the Secretary was empowered to give permission to these gentlemen to start late. If he was, then the scores are in order.

Q.—Whilst playing for a Medal, A. takes a putt before the flag has been removed, at a distance which was admitted to be less than twenty yards from the hole. A. does not strike the flag or hole. Has he incurred any penalty?

A.—The penalty is one stroke.

Q.—A Club does not appoint a Committee to take charge of competitions. Under these conditions, if the Secretary sees a competitor in a Medal competition—just before starting, and after new holes have been made—putting on a green, has he the power to disqualify such competitor without receiving a protest from another competitor? The Secretary himself was not in the competition.

A.—Yes.

Q.—(1) A. and B. are playing a Medal round. B.'s ball is about two feet from the hole. B.'s caddie is at the hole, and A. is about to putt from, say, fifteen yards' distance. A. says to B.'s caddie: "Take up the ball"; the caddie does so without consulting his master, at once lifting the ball. Is B. penalised, and can B.'s caddie be considered a forecaddie to A.? (2) Position of balls and players as in (1). A. says something; B.'s caddie thinks he wishes B.'s ball lifted, and lifts it as before without B.'s authority or consulting him. Is B. penalised?

A.—(1) B. incurs no penalty. B.'s ball had to be lifted after A.'s request, and either B. or B.'s caddie was entitled to lift it. The question of a forecaddie does not arise. (2) B. incurs no penalty. He is responsible for the action of his caddie, who appears to have lifted the ball under the impression that he was asked to do so by A.

Q.—A player in a Stroke competition drove out of bounds from the tee. He then teed another ball and drove that out of bounds also. He was about to tee another ball when the member scoring for him warned him that the proper rule was to drop and not tee. This he did, drove on to the green, and holed out in two putts. Was he disqualified for breaking the "out of bounds" rule, or should his score be counted as 6, 7, or how many strokes?

A.—No penalty is stated for breaking Rule 32; therefore, in match play the player loses the hole under Rule 35, the equivalent of which in a Stroke competition is two strokes under Rule 14 of Special Rules for Stroke Competitions. The player has holed out in 7 strokes.

Q.—In a Stroke competition, given a hole guarded by a sand bunker. Two players approaching the hole lie in the bunker from their second shots, within twenty yards of the hole. The pin cannot be seen from the bunker. A. plays forward on to the green, B. plays back, not being able to play forward.

Is there any penalty for A. or B. under Rule 11, Stroke Competitions?

A.—Both lose a stroke.

Q.—A player in a Stroke competition handed in a card: outwards 37, inwards 37—total 74. The Secretary, on checking the addition, found the inward round showed 36, according to the score marked for each hole. On referring the matter to the player he pointed out that the last hole had been marked 4 instead of 5, and the total returned, 74, was the correct score. There is no protest against the score. Does the score stand, or is the player disqualified under Rule 4, Stroke Competitions?

A.—The player was disqualified under Rule 4, Special Rules for Stroke Competitions. The marker is responsible that each hole is correctly marked, and is not responsible for the addition.

Q.—In a match or in Medal play, is a player entitled to have a wire strand or wire fence (1) forming the boundary of the links or (2) round a green held back by his caddie to enable him to play a shot that might otherwise be impossible? and, further, (3) if there be a long shoot from, but attached to, a hedge on the course or forming the boundary, may it be moved out of the way to enable the player to hit the ball?

A.—(1) No. (2) This question should be arranged for by a local rule. (3) No.

Q.—(1) In a match between A. and B., both balls being on the green, A.'s ball was forty yards from the hole, and he proceeded to remove some dung lying between his ball and the hole. B. at once claimed the hole, on the ground that, according to definition (D) in the Rules of Golf, only the ground within twenty yards of the hole is green. Does the definition (D) mean that only the ground within twenty yards of the hole is to be considered the green, or does it mean that the clearly defined green and all ground within twenty yards of the hole, not being hazards, is green? (2) In a match, A. removed dung, not on the green, which was more than a club's length from his ball, which was not on the green. His opponent, B., at once claimed the hole. A. maintained that under the Rules of Golf he was entitled to remove it, claiming that dung, as distinguished from loose impediments, may be removed, irrespective of it being more than a club's length from the ball. Which was correct, A. or B.?

A.—(1) Only ground within twenty yards of the hole is the putting green, and if the dung was more than twenty yards from the hole A. loses the hole. (2) B. was correct.

Q.—X. entered a Club competition, and returned the best card. The Secretary entered his name in the match book as the winner. Four days after, at a handicap meeting, it was discovered that X.'s card had not been signed. No prize has yet been given. What is the right thing to do now?

A.—X. should be disqualified.

Q.—(1) What would be the course to be followed with or by a player whose opponent in a Medal game was unable, or from any cause refused, to continue the round? Suppose that he insisted on taking shelter. (a) What can the other player do? (b) What can the Council do? (2) In a Medal competition, when cards are to be handed in by 5 p.m., each competitor being allowed to select his own opponent and time of starting, a member comes to the Clubhouse at 2.30 and finds the last two players ready to start; can he insist on joining them, or is he to be debarred from competing?

A.—(1) The player who takes shelter is disqualified. The other player must obtain a marker, if he has not got one, as quickly as possible, and continue to play, reporting the matter to the Council after completing the round. (2) He cannot insist on joining another couple, but he can play alone, having a qualified marker, or with any person approved of by the Council.

Q.—In a Medal competition the scoring card of the winner was handed in unsigned by the winner's partner. This was however, not noticed by the Secretary, and was accepted by him. This player was declared the winner, and intimation published in the newspapers. After the lapse of a week the Secretary or Committee discovered that this card was unsigned. Can the Committee for this breach of the rule, and after publicly announcing the winner, disqualify him?

A.—The Committee can disqualify him.

Q.—In a Stroke competition a player plays his ball near to a green other than to which he is going. On coming up he finds two balls lying, one belonging to another competitor coming to the said green. Both balls being of the same make, he picks up the one he thinks is his own for the purpose of identifying it, and carefully replaces it in exactly the same spot, thereby receiving no benefit in the lie. The player's partner's consent was not asked, but on being questioned afterwards he said that he would have raised no objection whatever to the ball being lifted. Is there any penalty, and if so, under what rule?

A.—The penalty is two strokes.

Q.—A competitor returned a card which the marker acknowledges having signed before the game started. What is the penalty? Is the competitor disqualified?

A.—The action of the marker was irregular, but as he appears to have marked the whole round and guaranteed the correctness of the score, the Rules of Golf Committee are of opinion that the card is in order, and that the player is not disqualified.

Q.—In Medal play A. drops the ball over his shoulder, and the marker calls his attention to the fact that he has dropped the ball improperly, and A., before playing the stroke, picks the ball up and redrops it in the manner required by the rule. (1) Is A. entitled to redrop without penalty, or does he lose two strokes (or the hole if in match play) for dropping the ball improperly? and (2) was the marker right in calling his attention to the breach of the rule before he had played the stroke?

A.—(1) A. must redrop the ball, losing two strokes (or the hole in match play) for having dropped it improperly. (2) Yes.

Q.—(1) A. drives a ball which alights and buries itself in a large bunch of loose grass. A. claims the right, under Rule 9, to pick up the grass, thereby letting the ball fall to the ground, under penalty of one stroke? (2) Under definition Rule 1A, may a four-ball match compete in a Medal play competition?

A.—(1) If this was mown grass left by the greenkeeper in the upkeep of the course, the player was entitled to remove the grass without penalty; but if not he incurs the penalty of one stroke. (2) No.

LANG LIVE THE GOWFIN', O.

By Mr. Ronald Ross.

Air—"Green grow the rushes, O."

Tae be his dearest treasure, O.

Then lang live the gowfin', O,
Lang live the gowfin', O.
The happiest time a man can spend

An' aye since then through time untauld,
Avoiding sloth an' loafin', O,
The wise amang baith young an' auld,
Hae kindly taen tae gowfin', O.

My blessings on the honest game,
There's nae sport it surpasses, O,
Tae clear the brain an' knit the frame
O' a' oor lads an' lasses, O.

The landed laird, the moneyed cuif,
Maist folks wad like tae be them, O;
I wad-na miss the joys o' gowf
For a' their wealth can gie them, O.

Those lured by Venus, Bacchus' snares,
Aft woo them tae their sorrow, O;
Gowf gives no heart-aches, griefs, or cares,
Nor head-aches on the morrow, O.

And as oor sun, where'er it shines,
Maks a' things bricht an' cheerie, O,
Sae he wha gowfs ne'er frets no fines,
An ne'er feels dull or eerie, O.

Man's life on earth is a short span,
An' sune he fills his coffin', O;
Sae let's be happy while we can
Wi' pleasant bouts o' gowfin', O.

Each breezy down, each inland glade,
Where Nature's drest sae bonny, O,
'Twas bliss tae me when gowf I played Amang their charms sae mony, O.

'Twas sweet tae breathe the caller air,
'Neath Heaven's aerial roofin', O,
An' feel the sting frae ilka care
Drawn oot when I went gowfin', O.

The Thistle lads are fond, I ween,
O' social joys, an' daffin, O;
But oh, but oh, when on the green,
They show rare skill at gowfin', O.

They never miss on green or tee,
Nae foozlin' shots, or sclaffin', O.
For judgment, nerve, an' certain ee,
They stand in front at gowfin', O.

My gowfin' days are nearly run,
Yet in fond memory's offing, O,
Lies store of doughty deeds well done
When I wi' them went gowfin', O.

Then lang live the gowfin', O,
Lang live the gowfin', O.
The happiest time a man can spend
Is when he gangs a gowfin', O.

AN INLAND ISLAND LINKS.

By Rev. T. D. Miller, M.A.

It was a happy thought of the first Captain of the King James VI. Club to couple the name of James VI. and I. with Perth golf, for, unlike some of his line who banned the game for national purposes, classing it among "onprofitable sports," he gave it the sanction both of his royal patronage and practice. He was in hearty sympathy with outdoor sports, recommending them both by precept and example. It seems beyond dispute that he played golf on the South Inch of Perth, where, before their migration to the North Inch, about the middle of last century, Perth players chiefly found a field for their energies. The tradition takes us back to the close of the sixteenth century, and it is supported by evidence of the time, which shows that James was a connoisseur of balls as well as a combination of protectionist and economist, for we learn from the following grant of letters-patent that: "His Majestie, understanding that there is no small quantitie of gold and silver transported yeirlie out of his Hienes' Kingdom of Scotland for buying of golf ballis . . . being earnestly dealt with by James Melvill in favour of William Berwick and his associate, who only makis or can mak golf ballis within the said kingdome . . . and seeing that the said three parties undertook to furnish the saide kingdome with better golf ballis, and at one moir easie rate than have been sauld thair these mane yeires bypast"—out of his royal favour and wisdom he granted the said parties a monopoly in ball-making. And when, in due time, James changed his court to England, when he went to rule over his enlarged dominion, he took with him his taste for golf, classics, and good feeding; and as a proof that the Scotch pastime found a congenial soil there, in a year or two after his succession to the throne the Blackheath Golf Club sprang into existence.

The North Inch is a historic battlefield; but what is of more importance, though less romantic, is that it is also a historic golfing ground. From the time when the Royal Perth Golfing Society shifted its camp to the North Inch in 1833, there has been a continuous series of bloodless battles fought there during the Autumn and Spring months. In Mr. Baxter's handbook, "Golf in Perth," so thorough has been his research, and so vivid the portraiture, that we seem to see the old-time players looming through the mists of bygone years, in their blue or scarlet coats, and hear the voices of the Condies; Drs. Macfarlane and Halket; Sir Thos. Moncreiffe; Jelf Sharpe; "Golfin' Charlie," and many other notable experts, in eager counsel or good-natured banter.

One of the players of that time—Ferguson Blair, of Balthayock—has done for Perth something of what Oliphant and Pat Alexander did for St. Andrews, and has apostrophised golf in the lines—

> "Mysterious game! thou can'st enthrall
> The young, the old, the low, the tall;
> Priest, savage, soldier, hoary sage,
> Have each confessed the noble rage."

More and more, in later years, on the North Inch, as elsewhere, has the truth of these lines become apparent, and though through the single-handed liberality of a playing member a gallant effort was made to extend the bounds and so relieve the crowded state of the greens, yet, after a few years' breathing space, circumstances compelled a return to the old bounds. With the incursion of new players and the curtailment to thirteen holes, golf on the North Inch, especially on a Saturday afternoon, became non possit fieri. The Clubs found themselves in an impasse. Something had to be done, and the officials of the King James VI. set to work to solve the problem. They cut the Gordian Knot by cutting the North Inch, and after various schemes and suggestions they, at length, like Columbus, in his search for a new continent, discovered a new, and in some ways a better links lying waiting their occupation. To Sir Robert Pullar, a non-golfer, and one who is so devoted to other avocations as to find little time for field sports of any description, belongs the credit of first directing attention to the suitability of Moncreiffe Island, and the numerous facilities it offered for golf.

The very name, indeed, is redolent of golf, for the Moncreiffes of Moncreiffe, and their kinsmen for generations, have been golfers of high repute both officially and in the field. Nearly a century ago Sir David Moncreiffe filled the high post of Captain of the "Royal and Ancient," whose Medallist he had previously been. He was also one of the founders of the Royal Perth Golfing Society, and at its start presented it with the Silver Club to which, since 1824, each Captain has attached a silver ball bearing his name and the year of office. As is very fit and proper, Sir David's portrait adorns one of the rooms of the Club-house.

King James VI. Club has settled the golf question in Perth for generations. The Island, which is of the form of a huge Irish harp, lies immediately to the south of the Fair City. Formerly occupied as a farm, the Club, under the direction of Mr. P. W. Campbell, entered on a thirty years' lease of it, and it is now a fine stretch of sward; and though it is still let or sub-let as a sheep-farm, grazing and golf are by no means incompatible, but in some ways mutually advantageous. The putting greens were, in the first instance, sown out, and unfortunately the grazier's counsel was taken as to the sorts of seed to be used; but now some of them have been turfed, and no better can be found anywhere. The Club-house is situated at the near and narrow end of the Island, which is crossed by the Perth and Dundee Railway Bridge, the footpath on which gives handy access, and saves the Club the expense of maintaining a ferry.

A few acres between the bridge and the Club-house have been utilised for working men's gardens, and it is apparent that much ingenuity and labour are expended there in the "labourer's evening hour of leisure," and, doubtless, stores of health are laid up there that save both boluses and bills. Beyond this utilitarian section of the Island stands the well-appointed Club-house from the verandah of which a view of the whole green is obtained. It is a full-sized green, capable of being stretched further should circumstances require. The course starting down the middle of the Island, after a few holes, doubles back towards the left-hand side, which is guarded from the arm of the river by a natural embankment. One or two more holes bring one to the far corner of the Island, and the return journey zigzags along the bend on the south side, and then, passing the old farm buildings, skirts the western margin to the home hole. The hazards are dug-outs and mounds, trees and shrubs, the embankment, and here and there the river for an over-pitch.

Altogether, if a bit on the flat side and lacking the "hichts an' howes" of the more exacting seaside links, it provides sufficient variety to make a thoroughly enjoyable game; and, with open weather, it is available all the year through.

The King James VI. has been eminently a fighting force, and it has a first-rate record of inter-Club matches. The Club has evidently sought out foemen worthy of their steel, and the list includes Edinburgh combinations from the Warrender, Bruntsfield and Burgess; the Prestwick St. Nicholas; St. Andrews University, as well as strong teams from Forfar, Carnoustie, and Montrose. The Club claims, indeed, to have led the fashion in home-and-home matches, and its first venture in such encounters is said to have been against the Elie and Earlsferry, which, although not played in the Dark Ages, was played at a time when the geography of the "Kingdom" was so little known that the Secretary was instructed to ascertain where the scene of the prospective contest lay, and "what station the players were to book to" in order to meet their doughty opponents.

Although the names of Imrie, Keay, Greig, Cairncross, Pirrie, Hay Robertson, and others stand out conspicuously in the Club's annals, most of them known also in County cricket, yet there is one name that deserves to be placed at the top of the list—primus inter pares—that of R. Dunsmore. He has been a power for the Club for more than a generation. The hero of a hundred fights, time after time he has played first man, generally giving a good account of himself and returning to the Club-house with a few holes in hand. He has in this way played against some of the best of Scottish talent, and although he has not figured much in the big amateur fixtures, the chief reason is to be found in his almost too rigorous devotion to his business. The Club is not likely to forget his signal services.

When not on the ball or hole, the eye of the golfing student of Nature will wander to the picturesque surroundings of the Island, the snugly-sheltered and fruit-bearing Barnhill, and the frowning majesty of Kinnoull overtopping it, with its hoary precipitous front, crowned with ruined tower—a northern Drachenfels—beneath which foolish youths used to risk their lives for the wily jackdaw's eggs.

We will not soon forget the gorgeous effect from the golf course of an evening rainbow, stretching from the brow of Kinnoull to wooded Moncreiffe, which lighted up the gloom of the rain cloud that filled the valley of the Tay, and mingled its misty blue with the soft-toned greens of the pines and the grey of the crags, a painted archway spanning the silver highway to the Port of Perth. One was minded by the glorious transformation scene of the vision of the golf enthusiast in the lines of the gifted Laureate of the North Inch—

"Dear is the game to all below,
The balm of sorrow—cure of woe;
But if in Paradise, where day
Doth smile with ever golden ray,
It shall be played, how sweet the hope,
Again in friendly strife to cope
With all our earthly foes who strove
To beat us in the game we love,—
There on immortal links for aye
To putt, to cleek, to swipe away.
What glorious rapture at the thought,
With highest ecstasy now fraught,
Nothing to stop us, free to play,
Throughout a vast Eternity."

MISS BERTHA THOMPSON.

CHAMPION LADY GOLFER, 1905.

THE LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP, 1905.

A PECULIAR interest attached to last year's Championship decided at Cromer on Tuesday, May 30th, and the three succeeding days, inasmuch as eight American ladies, including the then Champion of America, Miss G. Bishop, were among the field of 136 who challenged the holder (Miss L. Dod). In the first and second rounds which engaged attention on the opening day, the only tie of more than average interest was that between Miss M. A. Graham, the 1901 Champion, and Miss V. Hezlet. Both played well, and the latter was not beaten until the seventeenth green. Although Miss Dod showed nothing like her usual form, she won her way into the third round, as did five of the American ladies. The feature of the third round was the defeat of Miss May Hezlet by Miss M. E. Stuart, who also hails from Portrush. Miss Hezlet, who never found her game, turned three down, and Miss Stuart, throwing little away afterwards, beat her by two and one. Miss F. Hezlet had also a close match, for Miss M. E. Phillips brought her to the home hole, and might have halved the round had she not failed to hole a two yards' putt. Miss Dod and Miss Bishop were again victorious, as were Miss Graham and Miss Glover, the first Scotch Champion. The fourth round was noteworthy for the defeat of three of the fancied candidates. Miss Glover and Miss Titterton, an 1897 Bronze Medallist, proved wonderfully well matched. It was all to play for at the sixteenth, but Miss Glover's victory seemed assured when her opponent came so badly to grief at the seventeenth that she had to lift her ball. Miss Titterton, however, won the home hole in virtue of a long steal, and out they had perforce to go. The first two "extras" were halved, but Miss Glover missed a short putt at the next, and so had her chances extinguished. Miss Dod was off her long game against Miss Bertha Thompson, and, although the latter had not the best of luck, she won comfortably. Miss Bishop was also beaten somewhat unexpectedly by Miss Lloyd-Roberts, but only by the narrowest of margins. Miss M. E. Stuart won her match easily, and Miss Dorothy Campbell cleverly accounted for Miss E. C. Nevile; but Miss Graham only got the better of Miss Morant after playing an extra hole. Two American ladies still remained in the place of hope when the fifth round started on Thursday morning, but, whereas Miss M. B. Adams won easily against Miss D. Evans, Miss M. Curtis had to admit defeat from Miss Bertha Thompson, only, however, after nineteen holes had been played. Another good player who had to leave at this stage was Miss Graham. Putting is her strong point, but her touch had left her for the time being, and she was easily beaten by Miss Fennette Smith, of Coventry, who had never played in the Championship before. The other ties in this round, however, resulted pretty much in accordance with popular fancy. The survivors of the sixth round were Mrs. F. W. Brown, who showed fine form in beating Miss Adams, America's last hope; Miss Bertha Thompson, who was taken to the twentieth hole by Miss Steel, after the latter had stood two down at the fifteenth; and Miss Dorothy Campbell and Miss M. E. Stuart, who had little to spare from Miss F. Hezlet and Miss Fennette Smith. The first tie in the "semi-final" round on Friday forenoon aroused a lot of excitement. Mrs. Brown, by excellent play, seemed to have Miss Thompson in a tight corner at the twelfth hole, where the latter stood two down. Then came one of those changes which give the game its charm. Mrs. Brown got into difficulties going to the thirteenth, and, never winning a hole afterwards, lost by three and one. In the other tie Miss Campbell turned one up against Miss Stuart, the conqueror of Miss May Hezlet, but Miss Stuart showed superiority on the putting greens from this point. She led by two holes at the twelfth, and victory was hers on the sixteenth green. Excellent golf was shown to the turn in the final tie by both ladies. Miss Thompson won three out of the first five holes, but was distinctly lucky in securing the fifth, her approach to which landed on the top of Miss Stuart's ball and then rolled almost dead. Miss Stuart, however, by splendid play, won the next three holes in 3, and, halving the ninth, turned all square. Now came the tug, but, whereas Miss Thompson rose to the occasion, her opponent did not, and the former was hailed the winner without having to play the last two holes. Her victory was immensely popular, and was due more to her uniform steadiness than anything else. Nor did it come out of turn, as she had been a regular competitor in the Championship for at least nine years. Details:—

THE IRISH LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP, 1905.

By Miss Leah Garratt, Hon. Secretary Irish Ladies' Golf Union.

The twelfth Championship of the above Union took place at Portsalon, Co. Donegal, on May 8th and following days, in splendid weather. Although the meeting lacked in numbers, the presence of two well-known English players, Miss Issette Pearson and Miss M. E. Phillips, afforded the gathering an extra attraction; and three new and promising Irish players, all from the local North-West Club, made their début as far as Championship meetings are concerned. The links, though somewhat difficult of access, were in splendid condition, all the greens being natural ones, as are the hazards, and the turf very good. The scenery is beyond words beautiful, and appeals to even the most prosaic of golfers.

The opening day was given up to the competition for a prize, kindly given by Colonel Barton, for the best gross score, and this was won by Miss May Hezlet, after tieing with her sister, Miss Florence Hezlet. The details of the Championship are as follows:—

FIRST ROUND.

MISS DOROTHY I. CAMPBELL.
SCOTCH LADY CHAMPION 1905.

THE SCOTCH LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP, 1905.

PLAY in the Third Annual Championship was commenced at North Berwick on Tuesday, June 20th. A half gale blew from the west, and beating up against it on the way out was, indeed, a trying ordeal for the players, while, to make matters worse, a rainstorm swept the links. Fortunately, however, the clouds blew past, although the wind continued to blow as strongly as ever. The 1904 winner (Miss M. A. Graham) was challenged by a field of forty-two, drawn from all parts of Scotland, and including Miss A. Glover, the first Champion. It was the first Championship held under the auspices of the Scottish Ladies' Association, instituted at Prestwick in the previous Summer, and the arrangements, which were supervised by the Hon. Secretary, Miss Hamilton-Campbell, left nothing to be desired. Three surprises were sprung in the first round, the heroines being the Misses Robertson, of Troon. Against Miss W. Robertson Miss M. Park turned all square, but the former ran off with the next five holes, and therewith the match. Miss D. Robertson's defeat of Miss J. Park was equally pronounced, but it was not until the home hole that Miss Grace Robertson got the better of Miss Glover after an uphill game, in which she displayed indomitable pluck. Miss Glover actually turned five up; but Miss Robertson, after winning the tenth and eleventh holes in 4, and losing the twelfth, came away with an irresistible game. She won the "Pit" in 4, and "Perfection" and the "Redan" each in 3, and the "Gate" was also hers, thanks to Miss Glover topping her drive. The latter was again in difficulties at the seventeenth. Her second was bunkered, and she then overshot the green, and had perforce to resign the hole. On the home green a tie seemed likely when Miss Glover laid her third dead, whereas Miss Robertson's like ran five yards past the hole. She, however, got down her fourth, and gained a famous victory.

The second round in the afternoon was practically featureless, save for the defeat of Miss Maitland by Miss Hamilton-Campbell. The latter led by a hole at the turn, and increased her advantage to two at "Perfection," which she had in 4. She then laid her drive to the fifteenth hole close to the pin, and, winning that hole easily, finished the match a hole later.

On Wednesday the wind blew even more strongly from the west, but fortunately no rain fell. The feature of the third round was the match between the holder and Miss Titterton, the latter being strongly fancied to win outright. Miss Titterton had generally the better of the play against the wind, but Miss Graham won the eighth, and turned all square. Miss Titterton won the tenth and eleventh holes, but Miss Graham had the match square at "Perfection." Two halves followed, but Miss Graham very luckily won the seventeenth hole, where her approach would have overrun the green as her opponent's had done, had it not been stopped by the crowd. Miss Graham also won the home hole, and so the match. The other fancied competitors easily won their places in the fourth round.

In the fourth round Miss Campbell and Miss Graham won their matches with the utmost ease, but Miss Rusack, after standing three up and five to play, was brought to the last hole by Miss Matthew. The other tie was won by Miss Stevenson, a schoolgirl Hockey International, whose long game leaves little to be desired.

The penultimate and final ties were played on Thursday in lovely weather, the breeze having died down completely. Miss Campbell and Miss Rusack began rather slackly and were all square at the fourth hole. From this point, however, Miss Campbell found her form and turned three up. Coming home Miss Rusack's good short game deservedly won her the eleventh and twelfth holes, but she lost "Perfection" when she put her ball on to the shore. Two halves narrowed the issue, but as Miss Campbell lost the seventeenth, the match was brought to the home hole. Here with difficulty she secured the necessary half in 4, and so qualified for her first final. Against Miss Graham, Miss Stevenson, thanks to her opponent being trapped, won the opening hole, but the game was quickly squared, and, forging ahead, the holder turned three up. Miss Stevenson made a plucky struggle coming home, and by winning the "Redan" in 3 reduced her deficit to two holes. She, however, topped her drive to the sixteenth, and, taking three shots to clear the wall, had to admit defeat.

The final proved an exceptionally exciting match. Miss Campbell won the first hole in 5, and looked like going further ahead at the second, but Miss Graham made a splendid recovery from the bunker guarding the green, and snatched a hard half. Miss Campbell, however, pocketed the third and fourth holes in 5 and 4 by fine golf, and thus early led by three. She was trapped driving to the next hole, which went to Miss Graham in 4. A similar fate befel her approach to the "Quarry," and Miss Graham, again stepping in, reduced her leeway to one. Miss Graham's second failed to carry the burn at the seventh, and she lost the hole in consequence, as she also did the ninth, her approach to which found the bunker. Although now again three down, Miss Graham was in no way daunted, for she actually had the match squared four holes later, but Miss Campbell once more took the lead at the fifteenth, which neither played particularly well. A five yards' putt won Miss Graham the sixteenth hole in 5, and with two steady halves in 6 and 4, honours were easy at the close of the round. Out they had perforce to go at once, and Miss Graham's retention of the Championship seemed likely when her opponent drove into the bunker, but the latter reached the green in 3 after all, and getting down in 5 to Miss Graham's 6, won her first Championship amidst great enthusiasm. The Cup and Medals were handed away by Sheriff Melville, and so terminated a highly successful meeting. Details:—

ENGLAND v. SCOTLAND.

THE Fourth International Match between the amateur players of the above countries was decided at Prestwick on Saturday, May 20th. As in the two previous years, the sides consisted of nine, and two rounds of the links were played. Unfortunately neither country was represented by its full strength, S. Mure Fergusson being a prominent absentee from the Scotch team, while Horace G. Hutchinson had at the last moment to stand down from the English side owing to a slight attack of rheumatism, his place being taken by W. H. Fowler. Players "capped" for the first time were R. Andrew and R. Harris (Scotland), and A. V. Hambro and J. S. Worthington (England). The conditions overhead left little to be desired, but the prolonged drought had made the putting greens treacherously keen.

Those old opponents, J. Ball and R. Maxwell, led off. The former began very slackly. A pulled approach cost him the first hole, and he then proceeded to put his iron shot to the second hole into the bunker, thereby losing the hole. Taking the long and risky line to the fourth hole, his ball failed to carry the burn, and Maxwell, making no mistake, thus early stood three to the good. A too strong approach by Ball overran the plateau whereon the sixth hole is placed, and Maxwell went further ahead. Out in 37, Maxwell still led by four, and the position was unaltered three holes later. The Open ex-Champion, however, now had an innings, and, by pocketing the thirteenth and fourteenth holes, reduced his deficit to two holes. Maxwell again stepped in at the fifteenth, but Ball, winning the three remaining holes, squared the forenoon round. He had a fine 3 at the sixteenth in virtue of a deadly approach, and Maxwell played the other two holes very badly. Slicing his drive to the "Alps" into rough country, he afterwards fell foul of the bunker guarding the green, and gave up the hole, and an indifferent 5 to the last hole made an inglorious finish to a round which at one time had promised great things.

In being asked at the last moment to measure strengths with J. Graham, W. H. Fowler was highly tried. The former scarcely made a mistake. He turned with four holes in hand, and finished the round nine up; but Fowler was in no way disgraced, inasmuch as Graham's approximate score was something like 73.

The third couple, H. H. Hilton and J. Robb, had a much closer match, but their display cannot be characterised as steady. Both played the first hole badly, Hilton missing his drive, and Robb his second shot; but the latter recovered best, and won the hole in 5. A picture of a second with his brassy far and sure over the "Cardinal" bunker deservedly won Hilton the third hole in 4, and with a long putt for a 3, he took the lead at the succeeding hole, only to lose it straightaway. He, however, asserted himself at the sixth and seventh holes, which he had in 4 and 3 respectively; but he threw away his advantage by topping his drive to the eighth into a bunker, and pulling into another hazard going to the ninth. After a half at the tenth Robb, profiting by another topped drive on the part of his opponent, once more led, and increased his advantage to two at the dyke, behind which Hilton placed his second with dire results. Stimied at the fourteenth, the Hoylake representative fell further behind, but, winning three out of the four remaining holes—the sixteenth and eighteenth each in 3—he completed a curiously in-and-out round all square.

J. B. Pease and C. K. Hutchison had nearly as close a game. The former led by a hole at the turn, clung tenaciously to it for the eight succeeding holes, and added to his advantage at the home hole.

J. E. Laidlay started in promising fashion against S. H. Fry by winning the first three holes, but, painstaking and determined as ever, Fry ran off with the next four, and, pressing his advantage coming home, ended the round three up.

E. B. H. Blackwell overshadowed A. V. Hambro, and his lead of seven at half time presaged his ultimate easy victory.

R. Harris made an inauspicious start against the Hon. O. Scott by losing two out of the first three holes, but he had drawn level by the time the twelfth hole was reached, and led by a hole at the fourteenth. Scott, however, holed a long steal at the home hole, and so "honours were easy" at the luncheon interval.

R. Andrew, one of the best players on the neighbouring St. Nicholas green, played wonderfully good golf against B. Darwin. Out in 35, he led by six holes, and completed the round four up.

C. E. Dick, without showing anything more than steady golf, had things practically his own way against J. S. Worthington, who was quite off colour. Like Blackwell, he finished the round seven up.

Thus at the interval Scotland led by two points, and seemed in the fair way to win their third victory.

At the outset of their second round Ball and Maxwell looked like having an exciting struggle, for they were all square at the fourth hole. Ball, however, came to grief at the fifth, overran the plateau at the sixth, and, losing the eighth and ninth holes also, turned four down. He improved his position at the tenth, but matters returned to the statu quo ante when Maxwell, after hitting the dyke en route to the twelfth with his second, laid his approach dead for a 4, and victory was eventually his by four and three.

Against Fowler, Graham continued on his way rejoicing, and had his match won before the turn. Almost as pronounced was Blackwell's win over Hambro, and, with news coming from the front that Andrew and Dick were still doing well against Darwin and Worthington, Scotland's victory was thus early assured.

Of the four other matches, however, England, thanks to Hilton, Fry, and Scott, won three. Hilton and Robb again began indifferently. The former missed his drive, and hit the wall with his second; but Robb, approaching wildly and putting badly, actually lost the hole in 5. Robb also lost the second hole by failing to gauge the strength of the green, but secured the "Cardinal," Hilton's approach running into long grass. Hilton won the fourth hole, but, failing as before to carry the "Himalayas," lost that hole. A useful putt again placed him two ahead at the seventh, and a brilliant recovery from a bunker to the right of the ninth green gave him that hole also in 4. Five successive halves narrowed the issue, and, although Robb won the fifteenth in 4, he had to admit defeat a hole later.

Hutchison and Pease had another ding-dong tussle. By the time the fourteenth hole was reached the former had wiped out his forenoon's deficit of two holes, and it was all to play for at the sixteenth. Hutchison, however, with a good second and a fine long putt, won the dreaded "Alps" in 3, and, as the home hole was also his in a like figure, he won the stiffest of matches by two holes.

Laidlay never looked like improving his position against Fry, and the 1902 Silver Medallist won comfortably at the fourteenth hole.

Scott and Harris had the evenest of matches to the turn. The latter lost the third hole, but the remaining eight were halved. Coming home, however, Scott forged ahead, and won two holes from home.

The features of the match between Andrew and Darwin were the taking of the first hole by the former in 3, and his laying dead of his drive to the seventh hole.

Worthington showed a slight improvement against Dick, but this availed him not in face of the latter's substantial lead. Details:—

R. Maxwell (Scotland) beat J. Ball, jun. (England) by four up and three to play.

J. Graham (Scotland) beat W. H. Fowler (England) by eleven up and ten to play.

H. H. Hilton (England) beat J. Robb (Scotland) by three up and two to play.

C. K. Hutchison (Scotland) beat J. B. Pease (England) by two holes.

S. H. Fry (England) beat J. E. Laidlay (Scotland) by five up and four to play.

E. B. H. Blackwell (Scotland) beat A. V. Hambro (England) by nine up and eight to play.

R. Andrew (Scotland) beat B. Darwin (England) by seven up and six to play.

C. E. Dick (Scotland) beat J. S. Worthington (England) by five up and three to play.

THE AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP, 1905.

Of the five Championship courses Prestwick is probably the most popular. By players it is regarded as perhaps the best test of golf to be got anywhere, and with its picturesque sea views and genial air it is, given fine weather, a delightful place for spectators. To Prestwick also belongs the credit of instituting the Open Championship, and within a radius of a very few miles are to be found at least twelve courses of high-class. It was not matter for wonderment, therefore, to find that a record entry of 148 had been attracted for the twentieth annual Championship held last year at this famous Ayrshire golfing centre. True, quite a number of the entrants had only the slenderest prospects of success, but, on the other hand, it was pleasing to find that several promising young East of Scotland golfers had been able to spare the time to play at what is, for them, undoubtedly an inconvenient season. Ireland also sent a strong contingent, despite the fact that their own Native Championship was being decided simultaneously at Newcastle, Co. Down. One regretted, however, the absence from the entry list of that veteran ex-Champion C. Hutchings; S. Mure Fergusson, most stubborn of match players; W. B. Taylor, the triple Irish Open Champion; and J. C. Rose and Douglas Currie, who had distinguished themselves not a little in East of Scotland competitions in the early Spring. As at Muirfield, the large entry necessitated a start being made on the afternoon of Monday, May 22nd, when the forty players unlucky enough not to have drawn byes had to "face the music" a day earlier than the remaining 108. The weather conditions when play started left nothing to be desired, but the putting greens, burnt yellow in places, presented a curiously patchy appearance, and treacherously keen as the majority were, required the most accurate of gauging. Nothing in the nature of the unexpected happened in the first round, but several of the ties proved exceptionally interesting. In the second bout, E. D. Prothero and A. Stuart, both of whom may fairly be termed veterans, had a prolonged struggle. Stuart led by a hole at the fifteenth, but Prothero squared accounts at the "Alps," and the round was halved. So also was the "first extra," but, down in 3 at the second, Prothero lived to "fight another day." In T. H. Walker, one of the best players hard by at Troon, H. H. Hilton had a powerful opponent. Hilton put his first drive on to the railway, but, turning to account weak approaching by Walker, he won the hole. He also secured the third, but lost the fourth by putting his second out of bounds, and afterwards missing a shortish putt. He got a rather lucky half of the succeeding hole, but, playing the four remaining outward holes very steadily, turned four up. His early success now seemed assured, but, lapsing into carelessness, he lost three holes in succession. Two halves led up to the fifteenth hole, which he won in 4, and although he lost the sixteenth, he finished the match at the "Alps," where Walker was bunkered. That long-driver, E. B. H. Blackwell, and J. B. Pease, the Royal and Ancient Spring Medallist, attracted considerable attention. Blackwell made a sad mess of the first hole, slicing his drive out of bounds, and afterwards visiting the bunker short of the green. He also lost the second by missing a very short putt, but won the "Cardinal," thanks to his opponent's indifferent approaching. His tee shot to the fourth hole hit the dyke, but his ball bounded forward, whereupon he sent a long second home, and wrested a half of the hole. A deft little chip gave him the fifth hole in 3, and he got in front at the next in virtue of a fine approach. Pease sliced out of bounds, driving to the "Railway," and, down in 2, after the straightest of tee shots, Blackwell now led by two. The eighth was halved in 4, but a "stimie" robbed Pease of a half at the ninth. Putting "a stout heart to a stey brae," however, and turning to account any weakness on the part of his opponent, Pease had the match squared five holes later, and went ahead at the fifteenth. Blackwell at once drew level, and, risking everything with his second to the "Alps," reaped the reward. Another long shot carried well on to the home green, and, down in 3, he won the keenest of games by two holes.

Although a stiff wind blew across the links from the sea and rain fell for a time in the afternoon, the second day of the meeting was not unfavourable on the whole. With a second round consisting of no fewer than sixty-four ties, a start as early as nine o'clock was imperative, but the green soon got congested, and the winners were ready to begin the third round immediately the second was finished. Thus it was that for nearly eleven hours the ring of the well-struck ball resounded over the links, and nobody could have been sorry when play ceased at half-past seven. It fell to C. K. Hutchison and A. S. Johnston, one of Edinburgh's rising players, to start first, and a splendid game did they furnish. Out in 36, the latter turned three up, and led by this margin at the fourteenth hole. Hutchison, however, by winning the fifteenth and seventeenth holes, brought the match to the home hole, where Johnston got the necessary half to win. Hard on their heels came J. L. Low and G. Laird, an Irvine player, from whom little was expected. He, however, laid Low stimie after stimie, and won comfortably at the sixteenth green. Then for a time results were "according to Cocker," although O. Thomson was within a little of effecting a surprise at the expense of C. S. Dick, for whom a stimie came in opportunely at the "Alps." Six couples later an unfortunate contretemps gave M. W. Mossop a walk-over, the veteran L. M. Balfour-Melville having mistaken the starting time, and arrived too late to respond to his name when called. J. Graham and S. H. Fry afforded ample excitement. The golf of both was fitful. Fry, who was twice out of bounds going out, turned two down, and this was still the position at the fourteenth. Graham, however, getting into difficulties at the fifteenth and seventeenth, had his advantage wiped out. With everything depending upon his last drive, Fry topped badly, and, failing to reach the green with his second, had to admit defeat. The next match to attract attention was that between these oldest of rivals, J. Ball and J. E. Laidlay. It was "pull devil, pull baker," during the greater part of the round, and honours were easy with two to go. Ball carried the "Alps" with his second, but found the bunker. He took two strokes to extricate his ball, and Laidlay, home in 3, after a lucky second, stood one up. He also won the home hole in 3, and therewith a good match by two holes. R. Bone did well to beat W. H. Fowler by three and two, and J. G. Macfarlane ousted the then Irish Champion, H. A. Boyd, after the stiffest of games. Equally close was the encounter between J. A. Shaw, of Troon renown, and R. Andrew, the St. Nicholas crack, the former getting a fright when Andrew all but holed a long putt at the home hole to square accounts. Another ex-Champion in H. G. Hutchinson followed Ball into the ranks of the spectators. He had a strong opponent in G. Clark, one of the many fine young players in the ranks of the Insurance and Banking Golf Club of Edinburgh. There was nothing in it to the turn, but Clark won the thirteenth and sixteenth holes, and victory was his at the next. C. Campbell, who learned his game at North Berwick, beat J. S. Worthington, the 1904 Irish Open Champion, with something in hand, and the win of R. Harris over D. Forster, the one-time Leven player, was also not anticipated. E. B. H. Blackwell did not get the better of H. M. Ballingall until an extra hole had been played; and the last surprise in a round full of them was J. Robb's heavy defeat by a Club-fellow in C. B. Macfarlane.

In the third round the first seven matches, resulting pretty much according to anticipation, call for no comment, but the three succeeding ties were fought out to the bitter end. It was not until the nineteenth hole that W. Reid, of Ardeer, and D. A. M. Brown, of Penang, got the better of H. F. Kerr and Dr Williamson respectively, and almost as close was the game between G. Wilkie, the Irish ex-Champion, and G. S. Lyon, the Canadian Champion. Lyon led by two at the fourth, but Wilkie had reversed positions by the time the turn was reached. Lyon managed to get square, however, at the sixteenth, but Wilkie won the "Alps" in 4, and got the half he wanted at the home hole, where he deftly pitched a dead stimie. Laidlay had done so well against Ball in the forenoon that his victory over A. Macdonald was considered a foregone conclusion, but, after standing two up at the fourteenth, he fell away, and, taking prompt advantage, Macdonald won the fifteenth and sixteenth holes. He then carried the "Alps" green with a grand second, whereas Laidlay found the hollow to the left, as he did in the final of the 1893 Championship against P. C. Anderson. Laidlay missed his pitch to the green, and history repeated itself, inasmuch as he was again beaten by one. T. Anderson, the Prestwick back-marker and old West of Scotland cricketer, from whom much was expected on his own green, gave a taste of his quality in a ready defeat of H. E. Reade, the Irish ex-Champion, who did so well against Travis at Sandwich in 1904; but Clark, the conqueror of Hutchinson, failed to do himself justice against J. H. MacGregor, whose putting left little to be desired. F. H. Scroggie fairly and squarely beat his old comrade-in-arms, R. Harris, four holes from home, but E. B. H. Blackwell and R. W. Orr, of St. Nicholas, were pretty well put to it before they got the better of C. B. Macfarlane, Robb's victor, and H. M. Cairnes, the stalwart Irishman. Greatest surprise of all, however, was Hilton's defeat by A. Cant, of Carnoustie, who till now had scarcely fulfilled his youthful promise. It was all to play for at the ninth hole, and again a hole later, but Cant pocketed the next two holes; the twelfth in a brilliant 4. He went further ahead at the fourteenth, and the end came at the sixteenth, where he got down a long steal.

Wednesday morning looked threatening, but the clouds rolled past, and players and spectators alike had an enjoyable outing. In the forenoon the wind blew steadily from the north, but by noon it had veered to the west, where it remained during the rest of the day. The putting greens were scarcely so fiery as on the previous day, and putting consequently not so great a trial to the nerves. Johnston began badly against D. Bone. The latter was little better, but won the first three holes solely through his opponent's slackness. Johnston then settled down, and had the match squared at the eighth. Bone, however, won the ninth, and faced home one up. Johnston reasserted himself, and stood one up and two to go, but he made a mistake at the "Alps" hole like many another man, and Bone drew level. The Glasgow veteran then sent a lovely drive on to the home green, and, down in 3, won his way into the fifth round. Dick and Fairlie held Pollock and Ross pretty well in hand throughout, but neither was beaten until the sixteenth green. Graham and Wilkie had easy things on hand against Reid and Brown, and Barry gained a clever victory over Everard, whom he led by two at the turn. Maxwell won the first five holes against Macdonald, and, throwing nothing away afterwards, was hailed winner five holes from home. R. Bone gave Gairdner a good game for the greater part of the round. At the fourteenth he was only one down, but he fell foul of the bunkers en route to the somewhat unfair fifteenth, and Gairdner won eventually without playing the last hole. Aitken, the young Prestwick player, beat Neilson, the old Rugby International half back, with more in hand than expected, and similar remarks apply to the game between two other local representatives in Whigham and Anderson, of whom the former was victor. Palmer and Hannay had a good game, on the other hand, out of which Birmingham's representative came victorious by two holes. Lingen easily accounted for MacGregor, who had so unexpectedly beaten Clark on the previous day; but between the Hon. O. Scott—probably the prettiest player on the links—and G. V. M. Boyd (the old Lorettonian) there was little to choose. Boyd led by a hole at the thirteenth, but Scott got on equal terms at the sixteenth, and won by a putt on the home green. E. D. Prothero, who has clearly renewed his golfing youth, held the whip hand of Simpson throughout, and won cleverly after being three up with five to go. Scroggie turned two up against his townsman, Cant, and increased his lead at the thirteenth, where he laid a full iron shot dead for a 3 to Cant's par 4, and victory was his at the "Alps." Blackwell and Orr made a pleasing contrast, the former full of vigour, and the latter careful and telling, without the St. Andrews man's power. Orr was a bit lucky in halving the third hole after being in difficulties; but no fault could be found with his play afterwards to the turn, which he reached a hole to the good. He looked like going further ahead at the tenth, when Blackwell's drive was trapped, but the latter, after recovering, laid a full iron shot dead, and won the hole in 4. Both missed short putts on the eleventh green, and, although Blackwell carried the "Dyke" in two with his iron, Orr managed to secure a half of that hole. Blackwell was bunkered going to the next hole, but Orr failed to reach the green with his second, and Blackwell, "bolting" a long and difficult putt, won the hole in 4. This proved the turning point, for Orr, putting too little into his approach to the fourteenth, was bunkered, and Blackwell led by two. Orr was again bunkered approaching the fifteenth, and Blackwell went further ahead. The St. Andrews man was in turn trapped with a long drive to the sixteenth straight on the line, and Orr kept himself in the running yet awhile. Blackwell easily carried the "Alps" after a good drive; but Orr's second with his brassy from the rough to the left lodged below the steps in the big bunker, and he had perforce to lift after two ineffectual shots and admit defeat.

D. Bone and Dick, who led off in the afternoon, were seldom separated by more than a hole. Bone had the advantage at the turn, but Dick promptly squared, and went ahead at the fourteenth. He seemed likely to win at the "Alps," but Bone ran down a long putt, and brought the match to the home hole, where he lost by the narrowest of margins. Although Fairlie was generally called up to give the odds against Graham, he stood on equal terms at the eighth, where he wrested a half in 5 by a good putt, after being bunkered short of the green. Graham, however, won the ninth hole in 4 by a good run up from the right, and went further ahead at the tenth, where he reached the far side of the green with a long drive and an iron shot. He also won the twelfth by the better approach, after both had played short of the wall in two, and a useful putt at the fifteenth hole took him into the sixth round. The golf shown by Barry and Wilkie was good and bad by turns for the greater part of the round. Wilkie led by a hole at the turn, but Barry drew level through the aid of a stimie at the eleventh, and took the lead at the "Dyke" by carrying the hazard with his second. He, however, at once threw away his advantage by a wild pull into the "Cardinal" bunker, but regained it at the fourteenth, where Wilkie was in turn trapped. Wilkie should have brought the game to the home hole, but he failed at a putt of less than a yard at the seventeenth, which cost him 6, although he had been hole high with his second. The best match of the day was that between the Tantallon representatives, Maxwell and Gairdner. The ex-Champion, with an average of one under fours, won three out of the first four holes, but Gairdner got the fifth and sixth holes, and squared accounts at the eighth, where Maxwell sliced out of bounds. Gairdner three holes later secured the lead for the first time with a good putt for a 3, but a long run up won Maxwell the thirteenth, and the fourteenth hole was his in similar fashion. Gairdner's drive to the tricky fifteenth hole carried into the rough, and he failed to reach the green in two. A splendid pitch with his niblick, and a good putt, however, won him the hardest of halves in 4, and he again drew level at the sixteenth, to which Maxwell required 4. Gairdner half got his drive to the "Alps," and, after playing short with his second, pitched into the bunker, and Maxwell again led. The latter carried the home green, but was content with a half in 4, and therewith won a match which delighted the spectators by its exciting ups and downs. Gairdner was in no way disgraced, and it is curious that he was not chosen for Scotland's International team on the previous Saturday. Aitken, Whigham, and Scott all won their matches as was expected, but Scroggie, after his good display against Cant earlier in the day, cut up rather disappointingly against Blackwell. The latter was, however, in his best driving form. As a sample, it may be said that he played his second to the fourth hole with his iron putter, and the Carnoustie youth had to play an uphill game from the start to the finish, which came at the fifteenth hole. There are, however, few more promising players in the country, and, given health, he is sure to make a great name for himself in the near future.

Heavy rain overnight had altered the conditions underfoot for the better on Thursday, but not unnaturally it took the players in the sixth round some little time to find their bearings on the greens. It may be recalled that C. E. Dick beat J. Graham at Muirhead in the 1903 Championship, and the latter was now afforded a chance of reversing matters. The first hole was halved in 4, but Dick, taking three putts on the second green, allowed Graham to take the lead, which he never afterwards lost. Dick topped his drive to the third hole, and took three to cross the great hazard, but, although his third was a beauty, and his approach accurately judged, Graham, getting down in 5 after being a trifle wide of the hole with his third, led thus early by two. Dick's drive to the fourth hole was pulled, and he had to pitch the bunker with his second. Misjudging the distance, he was trapped and lost the hole, which Graham would probably have won in any event, as his approach rolled within a yard of the pin. Three down thus early, it behoved Dick to bestir himself, and he straightway did so by winning the "Himalayas" in 3 with the better chip from the rough, and the succeeding hole, to which Graham's approach against the breeze was short. A half in 3 led up to "Monkton Miln." To this hole Dick topped his drive into a bunker, and, being afterwards trapped near the green, never came within sight of a half. He, however, asserted himself at the ninth by holing a difficult downhill putt. In response Graham missed one of 5ft., and so turned only one up. A really good approach and a useful putt placed Graham further ahead at the tenth, and he increased his lead to three at the twelfth, where Dick pulled his tee shot into a bunker. Dick was presented with a splendid chance of improving his position at the next hole, but he failed at a short putt. Graham was similarly at fault at the fourteenth, and Dick stepped in. Both were bunkered going to the fifteenth, Graham to the left and Dick to the right of the all too narrow fairway. Both recovered well, but Dick had much the best of the approaches, and Graham gave up after playing two more. A steady half in 4 followed, but the end came at the "Alps." Dick for once in a way outdrove Graham, but the latter, risking everything, carried the green with little to spare. Dick made a poor response, inasmuch as he topped his second, and Graham, down in 4, won by two and one. A great crowd followed Maxwell and Barry, and saw the latter make an inauspicious start by slicing on to the railway. He, however, promptly squared with a 3 at the second hole to Maxwell's 4. A fine long putt won Maxwell the "Cardinal" in 4, but weakness on the green cost him the next hole, and Barry took the lead at the "Himalayas," which he had in 3. Maxwell lost a golden opportunity of drawing level at the sixth by unluckily moving his ball while addressing it on the green, and had perforce to rest content with a half. The three remaining outward holes were halved in 3, 4, and 5, so Barry turned with a hole in hand. The tenth was halved in 5, whereupon Maxwell topped his drive over the "Himalayas," and, losing a stroke, played the odd on to the green. Barry, on the other hand, made no mistake, and increased his lead to two. The twelfth was halved in 5, but Maxwell won the thirteenth in 5. To the fourteenth Barry outdrove his opponent completely, but a pulled approach by the latter was kept from going into the rough by a spectator, and he wrested a hard half by laying his third dead from forty yards' range. It was Barry's turn to be fortunate at the fifteenth, which he would probably have lost had another onlooker not prevented his ball from running into a bunker. The sixteenth hole was also halved; but Maxwell, carrying the "Alps" green with his second, whereas Barry, with almost as good a shot, lay a yard in the rough to the right, wiped out his deficit amidst growing excitement. The home hole being halved in 4, out they had to go again. Barry had the better drive and approach. With an undulating putt to play, Maxwell overshot the hole, and, failing to get down in 4, knocked away Barry's ball, which had been placed half a yard from the hole in 3. Aitken began against Whigham in a style which presaged his easy victory. As early as the seventh hole he was five up, but he lost the eighth hole by driving out of bounds. He again led by five at the twelfth, where Whigham was in difficulties all the way, and took four to reach the green. Whigham, however, threw off defeat for a time by winning the two succeeding holes, but had ultimately to resign on the seventeenth green. Scott began slackly against Blackwell by losing the first two holes, the one in 6 to Blackwell's 4, and the other by missing a putt for a 3. Blackwell topped his drive to the "Cardinal" so badly that he had to play short of the bunker with his second, into which he placed his third. Meantime, Scott had put a great second on the green, and Blackwell, finding his ball lying hopelessly, picked it up. Scott, with a 3, squared two holes later; but Blackwell, after being in rough country with a pulled tee shot to the sixth hole, won it in 4, thanks to a splendid pitch. Scott's drive to the eighth was bunkered, and Blackwell, who had halved the seventh and ninth holes, faced home two up. The tenth was halved in 5, but Blackwell, who had fallen foul of the sandhills with a missed drive, gave up the eleventh hole. With a good putt, Scott won the twelfth hole in 4, and went ahead for the first time at the thirteenth hole, where Blackwell's third got a nasty kick. But Scott's successes did not end here, for the fifteenth and sixteenth holes also went to swell his bag, and victory was accordingly his by 4 and 2, Blackwell's losing of six holes in succession being one of those curious things which give golf its chiefest charm.

In the afternoon, when some sharp showers fell, the first tie in the "semi-finals" between Graham and Barry piled sensation upon sensation. The first hole was halved in 3, Graham running down a long putt, after Barry had laid his pitch within easy holing distance. Graham was short with his iron shot to the second hole, and lost in 4 to Barry's 3. The third hole was a most extraordinary one. Graham, from a rough lie, topped his second into the bunker. This ought to have been Barry's opportunity, but, instead of playing a safe second, he went straight for the hole, and his ball trickled into the burn. Dropping another ball, he repeated his mistake, but made no mistake with his third essay to cross the dangerous country. Graham thereupon extricated his ball most skilfully, and clinched matters by holing his approach for a 4. On the fourth green Barry, when called upon to play the odd, all but got down in 3, and Graham, failing to lay the like dead, lost the hole. He, however, won the "Himalayas" in 3 by laying Barry a stimie. Bunkered going to the sixth hole, Graham, by a good recovery, managed to secure a half in 5, but Barry got the seventh hole in 2 with a putt of at least four yards. Sparing his approach to the eighth, Graham found the bunker, and lost that hole also, and Barry turned two up. Graham then had an innings, and by irreproachable golf pocketed the tenth hole in 4, the eleventh in 3, and the twelfth in 4. With Barry showing none too good form at this point, Graham seemed like wearing him down, but weak approaching and putting lost him the thirteenth, and again it was all to play for. Although Barry pulled his drive to the fourteenth into rough ground, he reached the fringe of the green in 2, and by a good run up halved the hole in 4. He had a magnificent drive to the fifteenth, and Graham, slicing into the bunker and taking four to reach the green, stood 1 down with 3 to go. The sixteenth was halved in 4, and both got safely on to the seventeenth green in 2, but Barry, misjudging his approach putt, allowed Graham to draw level. After the appproaches to the home hole had been played, both balls lay some six yards from the hole. Graham, giving the odds, laid his ball dead slightly in Barry's line, but the latter proved equal to the occasion, and loud cheers were raised as his ball glided past Graham's and disappeared into the hole. Thus did the youthful St. Andrews player, twice within the short space of some five hours, show his grit as a match player against such stalwarts as Maxwell and Graham. Although somewhat dwarfed in interest by the game between Barry and Graham, that between Scott and Aitken was well worth watching. A trifle strong with his run up, Scott lost the first hole, but he drew level at the second, where Aitken pitched into the bunker. Both were bunkered going to the third, but Scott, taking two to get out, lost the hole. Aitken required three putts on the fourth green, and so allowed Scott to square the game. Scott, with the better short game, assumed the lead at the sixth after his opponent seemed likely to do so. The seventh, eighth, and ninth holes were halved in 3, 6 (both having been bunkered), and 5, and Scott turned with a hole in hand. Aitken, with a useful putt for a 4, won the tenth hole, and the eleventh was halved. Going to the twelfth hole Scott, putting too much into his second, seemed likely to go behind the dyke, but his ball ran through the gateway, and he won the hole very luckily in 4. But that is golf, all the world over. Pressing his advantage, he won the thirteenth hole splendidly in 3 against the wind, and, halving the next four holes, qualified for his first Championship final. Thus, as at Hoylake in 1902, two Englishmen were left to fight out the final issue, Barry, although resident in St. Andrews, having been born in Cornwall in 1885. Curious is it also that he and Scott should have tied at St. Andrews in the previous September for the second Medal, which Scott was, on a technicality, adjudged to have lost.

It was raining heavily when the final tie was started on Friday, consequently the players were not, as is generally the case on a final day, hampered by a large crowd. Scott began badly, as he had done in nearly all his matches. He topped his drive, and took three to reach the green, Barry winning the first hole in 4. The latter also won the second hole in 3, Scott putting slackly. A very long second took Barry almost hole high at the third, but Scott, running down a good putt, won the hole in 4. Scott drove into the burn at the next hole, but Barry threw away his advantage by a too strong approach, and the hole was halved in 5. Scott had an easy chance given him of drawing level at the "Himalayas," but he missed a short putt for a 3. Scott missed his drive and second to the sixth hole, but had a good third, and looked like getting a half when Barry ran down a seven yards' putt for 4. The seventh was halved in a like figure, each taking three on the green, upon which water was lying. Barry hooked his drive into a bunker going to "Monkton," and, being afterwards trapped with a slack approach, saw his lead decreased to one, Scott getting easily down in 4. The ninth was splendidly halved in 4, but Scott drew level on the tenth green, where he holed a putt of eighteen yards. After a steady half in 4, Scott looked like drawing ahead at the "Dyke," but Barry got down a good putt for a half in 5. The rain had now ceased, but the stiff south-westerly breeze proved very troublesome. Going to the thirteenth Barry, with a wild drive, just escaped the "Cardinal," but he recovered lost distance with a strong second, and, although he overran the green with his third, he pitched deftly back and halved the hole in 5. He again went ahead at the fourteenth, where he got down a putt of three yards for a 4 after Scott had been short with the odds from slightly longer distance. Both were in difficulties with their drives to the dreaded fifteenth hole, but whereas Scott got out of the bunker to the right with his second, Barry took three strokes to extricate his ball from a whin, and Scott won the hole easily in 5. The sixteenth hole was halved in 4 and the seventeenth in 5, Barry making a neat recovery from the bunker short of the green. He missed his drive to the home hole completely, but lying clear reached the green with his second, and halved the hole in 4. An exceptionally interesting round, in which the play was for the most part of a high order, thus ended all square.

The rain was coming down in torrents when the last round was started sharp at two o'clock. Scott got away the better tee shot, and his pitch was also nearer the pin, but he was weak in putting, and lost the hole in 4. The second was nicely halved in 3, but Scott, although close to the third green in 2, was short alike in his run up and approach putt, and allowed Barry to go further ahead with a steady 5. The "Burn" hole was halved in 4, but Scott won the fifth in 3, thanks to his splendid iron shot over the sandhills. The sixth was halved in 5, but Barry returned to his old position of two up at the seventh, where he once more beat Scott on the green. Barry topped his drive into the bunker just in front of the eighth tee, but Scott failed to take advantage by being short with his second, and Barry, after taking four to reach the green, holed a long putt, which gave him a half in 5. Scott was bunkered near the ninth green, but he got well out and halved the hole in 5, Barry turning two up. The tenth was halved in 5 also, and Barry, after hitting the "Himalayas" with a skimming drive, which, however, got over the burn, halved the eleventh hole in 4. He got away a long, straight drive to the dyke, but Scott hooked into a bunker and lost the hole, which Barry got in 5. Scott seemed to be cracking when he topped his drive to the next hole, but Barry overran the green with his third, and Scott looked like winning the hole after all, when he failed at a shortish putt. Neither drove particularly well to the fourteenth, after which Scott hooked his second, and Barry topped. Both were on the green in 3, but Scott, holing a five yards putt, reduced his deficit to two holes. Barry was trapped going to the fifteenth, but he got so well out that he actually ran past the right corner of the green, and Scott, taking three putts, presented Barry with a half in 5. Scott got a steady drive away to the sixteenth, but Barry's reply was a great "swipe," which all but reached the green. His run up was laid 6ft. from the hole, and, down in 3, he won the Championship, which he richly deserved, if for nothing more than his wonderfully fine putting. On the other hand, Scott never quite found his form at the hole side, and it can truly be said that the twentieth Amateur Championship was lost and won on the putting greens. With the presentation of the Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals to the winner, runner up, and semi-finalists respectively, by Mr. Walter Neilson, Captain of the Prestwick Golf Club, a splendid week's golf terminated in a fashion that reflected credit upon all concerned in its management. MR. A. G. BARRY.

CHAMPION AMATEUR GOLFER, 1905.

(By kind permission of Golf Illustrated.)

MR. A. G. BARRY.

CHAMPION AMATEUR GOLFER, 1905.

MR. A. G. BARRY, the youngest golfer who has so far won the Amateur Championship, was born in Cornwall in 1885, but practically learned all he knows of the game at St. Andrews, where he went to live when about twelve years of age. He was educated first at Clifton Bank School, and afterwards at St. Andrews University, and is now at Pembroke College, Cambridge. While at school he stamped himself as a player of undoubted promise. In 1902 he made his début in open competitions, and reached the semi-final round of the Evening Telegraph Competition at St. Andrews before being beaten by the ultimate winner, Mr. R. Harris. His first Championship essay was in 1903, at Muirfield, when he was beaten rather unluckily in the third round, after a tie, by Mr. Angus Macdonald, the Edinburgh Burgess veteran. Joining the Royal and Ancient Golf Club a year later, he soon made his presence felt by winning the Club Gold Medal at the Autumn Meeting with the fine score of 75, only a stroke below the wonderful record established by Mr. N. F. Hunter on the same day. But last year he succeeded Mr. Hunter as winner of the Royal Medal, and so proved that his gallant win in the Championship was no mere flash in the pan. With an abnormally long swing, he drives an exceptionally long ball, but perhaps his strongest point is his putting. Unlike so many otherwise fine players, he does not chip his putts, but follows them through to the full, and reaps the benefit. Since going to Cambridge he has beaten Messrs. R. Maxwell and C. K. Hutchison, among others, in Inter-Club matches, and, given a continuance of health, it looks as if further honours were in store for him in the near future.

T. Yeoman (Scotland) beat T. G. Renouf (England) by four up and three to play.
J. Kirkcaldy (Scotland) beat E. Gray (England) by six up and five to play.
J. Kinnell (Scotland) beat A. Tingey (England) by five up and four to play.
G. Coburn (Scotland) beat P. J. Gaudin (England) by three up and two to play.

Play recommenced at two o'clock, Braid and Herd playing against Harry Vardon and J. H. Taylor. A crowd numbering several thousand spectators had assembled, and although the golf was brilliant and indifferent by turns, they had on the whole an interesting two hours' experience, with an exciting finish. The first hole was halved in 5, but the Scotchmen got ahead at the "Dyke" with a fine 4. Herd, however, allowed the Englishmen to draw level at the next hole by missing his putt. Playing the "Long" hole Herd, with the second shot, got into a deep bunker, and the English couple, who were all safe, won in 5. Bunkers had also to be encountered playing to the "Heather," and this time the Englishmen were caught. Vardon made a good recovery, and there was a likelihood of the hole being halved in 4, but Taylor missed his putt. At the "High" hole very poor putting all round was witnessed, and the hole was halved at the high figure of 6. Going to the last hole Herd had a faulty drive, and Vardon and Taylor turned one hole to the good. Homeward the first hole was halved, but after this the Scotchmen settled down to a magnificent game, and carried off the next four holes in succession in 3 4 4 4. The "Ginger Beer" was halved in 4, after fine running up by both Herd and Taylor, and the home players were now dormy. But a complete change came over the game, just as victory seemed within their grasp. Both Braid and Taylor were too strong with their approaches to the "Dyke," and although Herd and Vardon played fine pitches to the green, Taylor was more effective in his putting, and got a winning 4. Braid threw away any chance of a half at the "Road" by driving into the Stationmaster's garden, and Vardon and Taylor, who played the hole with skill and care, won in 4. The "Home" hole was played amidst much excitement. Taylor got near the hole with his approach shot, and Vardon ran down a capital putt of four yards, winning in 3 to 4, and halving the match.

The match between White and Park against T. Vardon and Toogood opened very steadily, and the first two holes were halved in 5. The Scotchmen took the lead at the third hole, where Toogood pulled his second into the bunker, while White had a beautiful approach. Park then ran down a putt of seven yards for a 3. Of the remaining outward holes they won three to one, and turned with four holes in hand. Coming home they threw nothing away, and won on the sixteenth green.

Sayers and A. Kirkcaldy gained a meritorious victory over Ray and Sherlock. It was all to play for with two to go, but finishing strongly, Sayers and Kirkcaldy carried off both holes.

As the two succeeding matches were halved, all now depended upon the game between Kinnell and Coburn, and Tingey and Gaudin. All level with one to play, Kinnell was short with his approach, while Tingey reached the green. Coburn overran the hole with his third, while Gaudin laid his dead, and thereby drew the match for England. Details:—

J. Braid and A. Herd (Scotland) and J. H. Taylor and H. Vardon (England) all square.

J. White and W. Park (Scotland) beat T. Vardon and A. H. Toogood (England) by three up and two to play.

B. Sayers and A. Kirkcaldy (Scotland) beat E. Ray and J. Sherlock (England) by two holes.

R. Thomson and J. Hepburn (Scotland) and T. Williamson and R. Jones (England) all square.

T. Vooman and J. Kirkcaldy (Scotland) and T. G. Renouf and E. Gray (England) all square.

A. Tingey and P. J. Gaudin (England) beat J. Kinnell and G. Coburn (Scotland) by one hole.

Scotland, seven matches.
England, seven matches.

This year's match will be played at Muirfield on June 11th.

THE GOLFING CHAMPIONSHIP, 1905.

AFTER an interval of five years St. Andrews was the venue of the Championship which will long be recalled as the one in which more tempers were ruffled than in any previous contest. Curses both loud and deep were hurled at the heads of the Green Committee for having, so it was alleged, "over-bunkered" the course, and at the putting greens which were so treacherously keen as to quite deserve the title of "skating rinks" given to them by more than one irate professional. As at Sandwich in the previous year, a record entry of 152 necessitated the extension of play over three days, a start being made on Wednesday, June 7, when a single round was played. The second round occupied the following day, and the two closing rounds engaged attention on the Friday. On the opening day a high wind blew from the north-east, and, as it increased in force as the day wore on, those who were far down the list had much the worst of the luck. The draw was as follows:—

Mr. E. B. H. Blackwell (Royal and Ancient) and F. Leach (Northwood).

Of the above, however, B. Sayers, jun., G. Johnson, H. Woods, and F. Leach failed to answer to their names. Although the first couple started at nine o'clock it was getting on for six ere the last couple finished the round. Under the conditions low scores were not expected, and not a card under 80 was handed in. At this figure three ex-Champions in J. H. Taylor, H. Vardon, and A. Herd were bracketed equal along with W. Toogood, while J. Braid, J. Sherlock, A. Smith, A. Massy, T. G. Renouf, R. Jones, W. E. Reid, A. Thomson, and H. Hunt followed hard on their heels. With only two holes to go Taylor, who had gone out in 38, looked like finishing well under 80, but a foolish pitch to the dreaded seventeenth hole instead of a safe run up cost him dearly. His ball bounded merrily over the green into the road, from which he required two strokes to get clear. Down a 7 had perforce to go on his card, and he required a 5 to the home hole, where he missed a short putt. Herd, by steady golf, went out in 40, and came home in a like figure. Toogood was 38 out and 42 in, and Vardon, after going out in 39, required two strokes more to complete the second half. Braid did well to finish in 81, for he was frequently in difficulties, but he bore his misfortunes bravely, and reaped the benefit. Going out he was thrice bunkered, and yet turned in 42. Coming home, he was in the field going to the fourteenth, and yet got a 4, and by holing a long putt he got the seventeenth in 5, after losing two strokes, like Taylor, on the road. Of the Amateurs, Mr. J. Graham did best with 83, his only bad hole being a 7 to the seventeenth, at which he lost three strokes on the road, but Messrs. Hilton and Blackwell, the Hon. O. Scott, and Messrs. R. Maxwell and A. G. Barry thus early put themselves out of court by handing in cards of 87, 87, 88, 89, and 90 respectively. The Amateur Champion indeed required no fewer than 50 strokes to negotiate the last half. The holder (J. White) also handicapped himself severely by taking 86, his putting being far below his usual standard.

The weather on the second day was less unfavourable, the wind having moderated considerably, but the putting greens were as difficult to gauge as ever. Of the leaders J. H. Taylor's play was not in keeping with his brilliancy in the opening round. He started with a 4, but, playing for safety with his long approach to the second green, he got too far to the right, and, failing to lay his third dead, registered a 5. Approaching the third green he was bunkered, and, taking two shots to get clear, required a 6. He had a narrow escape from the bunker at the fourth green, and, failing to run up well, another 5 was the result. Playing to the "Heather" he was trapped from the tee, and carried over the hole with his third, and a 5 was taken. These misfortunes swelled his outward score to 42, or four strokes worse than the previous day. He started for home in promising fashion, but at the "Long" hole he overcarried the green. He was bunkered playing to the "Dyke," and going to the "Road" repeated his blunder of the previous day, that hole costing him a 6. Missing his drive for the home hole, he struck the bridge, but finished with a 5, his score being 85. Herd played a fine game, but was weak occasionally on the greens. He was out in 38, and came home in 42. Braid did not make a very brilliant start, but reached the turn in 40. Coming home, however, his game greatly improved. At the "Short" hole he scored a 3, and although bunkered at the "High" hole recovered splendidly, and got down in 4, a feat he repeated at the "Heather," en route to which he was again trapped. Continuing to play well, he finished in 78. Shortly before two o'clock R. Jones handed in a card of 77. He turned in 39, and came home splendidly in a stroke less, thus ousting Braid from pride of place. Toogood scored 83, while Kinnell returned a 79, the third score below 80 for the day. Harry Vardon started knowing that he had to score 77 to beat the best aggregate so far returned. Although twice bunkered going out, he turned in 39, but lost several strokes on the greens coming home, and put his second to the home hole on to the roof of a house—one of his "specialities," as he jocularly remarked. Dropping another ball, however, he managed to get the hole in 5 after all, but his round was no better than 82. Massy and R. Thomson kept well in the running with cards of 80 and 81, but none of the Amateurs were able appreciably to improve their positions. Indeed, Mr. Graham was the only one to qualify for the second stage, the altered conditions now stipulating that all more than fifteen strokes behind the leader should gracefully retire. Of the forty-five who qualified, the following occupied the leading positions: R. Jones, 158; J. Braid, 159; A. Massy and J. Kinnell, 161; and A. Herd, H. Vardon, and R. Thomson, 162. The draw for the Friday's play came out as follows:

B. Sayers and R. Jones.
E. Ray and D. Stephenson.
A. Massy and J. Rowe.
W. Hunter and J. Sherlock.
J. H. Taylor and C. Gibson.
W. Fernie and A. Kirkcaldy.
T. Watt and J. Kinnell.
E. Gray and J. B. Batley.
A. Matthews and R. Thomson.
W. Toogood and P. Hills.
A. Herd and F. Collins.
J. Johnston and W. Park.
R. Simpson and J. Braid.
J. Hepburn and J. Taylor.
J. Johnstone and T. Vardon.
T. Williamson and A. H. Toogood.
W. E. Reid and A. Simpson.
T. G. Renouf and T. Simpson.
H. Vardon and J. Kay.
H. Cawsey and Mr. J. Graham.
A. Smith and E. Foord.
H. Hunt and J. White.
J. Parr and partner.

Of these T. Vardon and A. H. Toogood did not, however, play, and Mr. J. Graham and H. Cawsey retired at the close of the morning round. It fell to Jones to set the pace, and he began with four steady holes, but he had the bad luck to get bunkered going to the fifth hole, and, afterwards taking three putts, spoilt his card with an 8. A 6 followed, and he thus required no fewer than 43 to the outward half. His homeward score was 44, and his aggregate with a round to go was 245. Two couples behind him Massy handed in 82, and so took first place for the time being with 243. An 80 raised Sherlock's aggregate to 245, but an excellent 78 (38 out and 40 in) brought J. H. Taylor level with Massy. Herd's round was 83, but Braid was seen to advantage at every point. Out in the low score of 36, he came home in 42, a lucky "rub" at the home hole giving him a 4 to finish, and he jumped no fewer than six strokes ahead of his nearest opponents. H. Vardon had yet to be reckoned with, but the fiery greens completely beat him, well as he played otherwise, and his score of 84 (41 out and 43 in) put him practically out of the running. At this point Braid's immediate followers were Taylor, Massy, and Kinnell, but his victory seemed pretty much a foregone conclusion unless he fell sadly away. By fine, steady golf he reached the turn in 38, and for the next five holes all went well with him. But at the fifteenth and sixteenth he piled sensation upon sensation. At both he was bunkered, and each time his recovery found the railway. His second visitation cost him two strokes, but fine putting saw him down in 6 after all, a figure he also registered at the fifteenth. With a 5 and 4, he completed the round in 81, and was carried shoulder high from the green, winner of his second Championship by five strokes. For the honour of runner-up Taylor and Jones dead heated, the latter's closing effort having been a splendid 78. Then came Kinnell, Massy, and E. Gray as named, while Vardon, for the first time for many years, failed to gain a prize. The Championship Gold Medal and other prizes were afterwards presented by Mr. Stuart Fothringham, of Murthly, ex-Captain of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, and this pleasing function terminated a meeting which will long be recalled.

Subjoined are the Champion's card, the order of the prize list, and full scores:

MR. F. B. NEWETT.
IRISH AMATEUR CHAMPION, 1905.

THE IRISH AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP, 1905.

THE thirteenth annual Irish Native Championship, held at Newcastle, on Wednesday, May 31st, and the three succeeding days, was robbed of a deal of interest through clashing with the Amateur Championship at Prestwick. The holder (H. A. Boyd) and H. M. Cairnes, two of the strongest players in the Dublin district, elected to play at Prestwick, while H. E. Reade, the 1897-99, 1903 Champion, entered for both events, his appearance at Newcastle altogether depending upon how he got on across the Channel. As it turned out, Reade was able to reach Newcastle in time to take part in the first round on Wednesday afternoon, but, evidently upset by his over-night crossing, he was easily beaten by G. W. Dunne (Foxrock). The other ties in the opening round, however, resulted pretty much in accordance with anticipation. The feature of the second round on Thursday morning was the exciting tussle between F. B. Newett, the 1902 holder, and T. F. O'Donnell (Greenore). The latter won the first two holes, but Newett soon drew level, and turned one up. O'Donnell squared at the tenth hole, and it was still all to play at the seventeenth. O'Donnell, however, played the home hole badly, and Newett, having two strokes in hand on the green, won his way into the third round. In this Christie created a great surprise by his easy defeat of the Hon. E. Gibson, from whom much was expected, and the victory gained by B. O'Brien at the expense of R. Shaw, the 1902 runner up, was even more pronounced. The others who qualified for the "semi-finals" were Newett, and that long driver, G. W. F. Kelly, whose day is yet to come. On Friday the conditions underwent a change for the worse, a strong wind bringing in its train heavy showers of rain. Christie made a promising start against Newett, but the latter, although he lost his ball going to the eighth, had him down to one at the turn, and drew level a hole later. He then went ahead, and won comfortably on the seventeenth green. The other tie between O'Brien and Kelly was quite a sensational affair. O'Brien, after winning five out of the first seven holes, turned four up. Kelly then made a great effort, and winning hole after hole, actually secured the lead at the sixteenth. O'Brien, however, did not "crack," but promptly squared accounts, and Kelly, being in trouble all the way to the home hole, had to own defeat by the narrowest of margins. On the concluding day (Saturday) the weather was again in a blustering mood, and the play to the turn in the forenoon round was only moderate. At this point Newett led by two holes, and, pressing his advantage coming home, he finished the first moiety with the substantial advantage of six holes. In the afternoon, Newett won three out of the first four holes, but O'Brien did better afterwards, and had Newett down to six holes at the tenth. The latter, however, halved the three succeeding holes, and thereby gained his second Championship in no uncertain fashion. Details :—

"Irish-born" shall mean born of Irish parents.

IRISH OPEN AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP, 1905.

THE putting forward a month of the date for the above popular re-union, held at Dollymount, on August 2nd and three succeeding days, was not attended with success, the entries showing a decrease of thirty-two from the previous year, included among the absentees being F. B. Newett, the Irish Native Champion, and H. E. Reade, a triple ex-holder of the same Championship. Nor was the entry of competitors from this side of St. George's Channel as representative as usual, so that it is not matter for wonderment that a return is to be made to the old-established and more convenient date. The holder (J. S. Worthington), and the 1904 runner-up (J. F. Mitchell) were, however, again in the field, and this pair and H. A. Boyd, the 1904 Irish Native Champion, were generally regarded as likely to have not a little to do with the finish. So it proved, for, although Worthington was beaten rather unexpectedly by W. Brander (Cinque Ports) in the fourth round, Mitchell and Boyd qualified for the final, each for the second time. Boyd did so fairly easily, but Mitchell had his work cut out in the "semi-final" to beat another East of Scotland player in H. J. Kerr, of Stewart's College, whose career will be watched with interest. The whole of Saturday, August 5th, was given up to the final tie, but, unfortunately, the weather, for the second successive year, proved in an unkindly mood, the wind blowing strongly, and bringing in its train heavy showers of rain. Mitchell lost two out of the first four holes, but drew level at the seventh, and turned all square. He took the lead at the tenth in virtue of a long putt, and won the eleventh also, Boyd being much too strong with his approach putt. The latter, however, did not allow this position of affairs to endure for long. Indeed, he had regained the lead by the time the fifteenth hole was played. Just as promptly did Mitchell wipe out his deficit, and a sporting round ended all square. In the afternoon Mitchell made a splendid start by winning the first two holes, each in 5, and although Boyd won the third well in 4, Mitchell again led by two at the fifth. Give and take was then the order, Boyd turning one down. He drew level, however, at the tenth, and went in front at the twelfth, where he laid Mitchell a dead stimie. Pressing his advantage, he won the thirteenth hole also, and was hailed the winner three holes later. Needless to say, his victory was immensely popular, inasmuch as he was the first Irishman to win the Irish Open Amateur Championship. Both his and Mitchell's styles were greatly admired, and, although mistakes were not infrequent, these were quite excusable, keeping in view the adverse conditions. Details:—

FOURSOME PLAY.

By Dr. J. G. McPherson.

The foursome was a characteristic part of the game when golf was at its best. And to bring back golf to its pristine purity before record-breaking, handicapping, pot-hunting, and concomitant evils were dreamt of, to cast off the absorbingly selfish element, and to restore the social, genial, noble, honourable, and manly game, we must urge golfers to go in for foursome play.

It used to be almost the invariable custom at St. Andrews in the days of old to play nothing but foursomes, except when actually playing for the Medals twice a year. It was the "Medal week"; but foursomes ruled every day, except the scoring Wednesday. In this way members got to know the play of all grades, and the game was really more social. In fact, you could not then say you were a first-class golfer until you had fought in many a foursome, and had your measure taken in this, the most important branch of all golfers' education.

There is, really, to the true golfer, more satisfaction, more cheering heartsomeness in the social development of foursome play in its integrity, than in the individual glory for the time being of having secured a medal. In the latter case, pride is fostered, and conceit is apt to make a player cynical; in the former, man's nature expands into genial fellowship, true brotherhood is engendered, and health-invigorating energy is given to the worried, care-driven, over-wrought, over-moneyed, or over-indulgent man.

After a man reaches a certain age, a good foursome is preferable to any series of singles. Of course, partnership involves discrimination. The Hon. Lord Moncreiff has voiced this opinion very strongly and ably. A haphazard match may turn out to be uncomfortable; but a man is very short-sighted who will fall into the trap often. A grumbling partner is not to be borne; a continuous foozler is a nuisance; and one who accounts for his mistakes, as if he were a good player out of his game, is a great bother.

Still, such partners are educative for the time. They teach tact and self-control. In order to win the match—which is the object of the game—you must make the best of a bad bargain.

But it is not long before a good player can select for his partner one who will be a joy to him in the game. The most pleasant foursomes are where a first-class and a second-class player are on each side. There was no better partner of this grade in my college days for a match of this kind than the late Mr. John Blackwood, Editor of Blackwood's Magazine. He knew he was not a crack player; for, though steady, he could never drive well with his twisted swing; but his putting was exceptionally deadly. I never knew any player of his grade, or, with the exception of Tommy Morris, any player, who had the power of holing out putts regularly of six to eight feet. The moral effect of these putts was paralysing to his opponents; and his partner knew it was in him to do it at the time needed. He played as a real whist partner, not for his own glory, but to win the match. I have had him for my successful partner against two who, on paper, would have been backed to win easily. His enthusiasm knew no bounds; the cares of "Maga" never sat on on his shoulders after the first ball was struck off. His well-known characterisie putting skill and accuracy were once emphasised by old Mr. Sutherland, another golfer who took the game seriously, in a foursome that was halved. After he got his breath, over the excitement, he rejoiced over his opponent by describing the finish at the Club: "By the d — st Providence Blackwood missed his putt."

In foursome play, a man's individuality is absorbed in the common cause; but a bad player for a partner is often most exacting. I remember that the late Principal Tulloch imagined that I never made a mistake. When, as his partner, I did not succeed in an exacting stroke—the nicety of which he could not see—he would remark about it; but I never got any praise for success—that was to be expected.

The late Lieut. F. G. Tait, an Amateur Champion, was an enthusiastic supporter of the foursome, on account of the social character of that form of the game. "Freddie"—as he was so familiarly and genially called—held that at St. Andrews alone true golf was to be found, and that all other was but a makeshift for the real thing. He really enjoyed foursome play, as did his celebrated father, the Professor; and he certainly exemplified the principles of what is best in Scottish sport by his own practice. He could easily have secured shelvesful of trophies by scoring; but he always preferred a quiet foursome with personal friends.

In this form of the game, a man must not take a liberty or risk anything without his partner's consent. He has to calculate where to drive his ball, not as if he had to play the second, but thinking of what his partner is best able to do, and what will suit his style of play. There must be mutual counsel and encouragement; herein lies the social element of golf. Even the first-class player is not beyond receiving at times a small meed of praise for a good shot.

Generally the third-class player in the foursome, with a first-class player for his partner, will play above his game. He is astonished at it; yet it is a fact; and nothing will improve his general play so much as a series of good foursomes.

The four-ball match is a comparatively new thing, but it is a caricature of the real game, got up for mere exhibition purposes.

In his capital little book, the late Mr. Tom Peter literally gushes on foursomes. One in particular, in the lines now discussed, he records with quiet gusto. He and Allan Robertson played against his brother O'Brien and Tom Morris in a foursome a greater number of rounds over St. Andrews links than had ever been done before—or perhaps since—in the same space of time. They played for two days consecutively, five rounds each day—in all 180 holes—and the match ended in a draw. When they finished, Allan said he had never had "sic' a bellyfu' o' gowf in a' his days." The brothers were young and agile, and, as Tom Peter remarks, "what can be compared to a game of golf in the hey-day of youth over the magnificent turf of St. Andrews with such hearty partners as Allan and Tom?"

The great foursomes between Allan and Tom on the one side and the "Dinnies" on the other are well known to the old golfers. I have a calotype before me of the greatest unplayed foursome, Allan and Tom against Willie Dunn and Park. But I have not space to enumerate many matches, in some of which I myself took part. I am glad to see that the foursome is beginning to come into favour again. But, as in the olden times, it should be played without continuing the results in holes from one green to another—each green should count one point of victory, the winning couple winning on the majority of greens.

I hate handicap golf. To see a shelf full of medals and cups won by handicap gives me a "skunner" at that style of play. Real golf is played by holes only; and the best humour, the greatest pleasure, the most enthusiastic companionship—frequently remembered and kept up for life—can only be found in well-matched foursomes.

AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP OF INDIA, 1905-6.

THE Fourteenth Annual Championship of India and the East, decided over the course of the Tollygunge Golf Club, Calcutta, on December 30th, 1905, and January 1st and 2nd, 1906, proved quite the most successful yet held. It attracted a record entry of forty-eight, and play was followed with the keenest interest by a large crowd of spectators. The whole of the opening day was, as usual, devoted to the Qualifying Stroke Competition. Three rounds of twelve holes were played, the eight lowest scorers being left to contest the issue afterwards by holes. The returns made were as follows:-

Lieut. C. Campbell (Lebong)	174
T. R. S. Mackenzie (Calcutta)	175
T. Drimmie (Calcutta)	179

The following made no return: L. V. Quickshank (Tollygunge), Hon. W. A. Inglis (Calcutta), J. Ward (Shillong), S. W. Creswell, J. Howey (Calcutta), S. Rainy, G. W. Walker

(Calcutta), W. L. Greenlees (Oxford University), F. J. Wood (Shillong), J. C. K. Peterson (Barnagore), D. A. Cuthbert (Calcutta), E. A. Wild (Calcutta), S. Stapleton (Tollygunge), K. S. Dunlop (Calcutta), and T. G. Ker.

In terms of the conditions F. H. Stewart, the 1897 Champion, whose card was better against Bogey than that of his co-dead-heaters, secured the eighth place in the final stage. In the first round the holder (B. A. Collins) easily accounted for L. Stansfield, and T. R. S. Mackenzie's victory over F. H. Stewart was almost as pronounced. Lieut. T. Inglis, however, had a fairly stiff match with T. Drimmie, the 1903 Champion, while Lieut. C. Campbell only succeeded in beating B. Sinclair at the nineteenth hole after a plucky uphill fight. It was thought that the "semi-finals" would provide exciting sport, but the reverse proved the case, Mackenzie beating the holder with something in hand, while Lieut. Campbell gave his brother officer an unmerciful trouncing. In the final tie on January 2nd Campbell led from start to finish. He was four up when eighteen holes had been played, and won two out of the first three holes after lunch. Mackenzie then made a fine effort, and had reduced his leeway to two holes with seven still to play. Campbell, however, stalled him off, and won his first Championship without playing the last three holes. Details:—

FIRST ROUND.

B. A. Collins beat L. Stansfield by six up and five to play.
T. R. S. Mackenzie beat F. H. Stewart by five up and three to play.
Lieut. T. Inglis beat T. Drimmie by three up and two to play.

LIEUT. COLIN CAMPBELL.

AMATEUR CHAMPION OF INDIA, 1905-6.

LIEUT. COLIN CAMPBELL, of the West Riding Regiment, Lebong, only went to India in October, so that he may truly be said to have gone straight to Calcutta to prove himself facile princeps in the East, alike as a stroke and match player. As his name would indicate, Lieut. Campbell hails from Scotland, and learned to play at North Berwick, where for four years in succession he carried off the Boys' Challenge Medal. He afterwards went to Edinburgh University, and, in addition to being the holder of their Scratch Gold Medal, he was one of the quartette who won the Scotch University Championship for Edinburgh at Prestwick last summer. He also distinguished himself not a little in last year's Amateur Championship, beating J. S. Worthington, the Irish Open Amateur ex-Champion, in the second round, and giving the Hon. O. Scott, the ultimate runner-up, a good game in the succeeding round. Lieut. Campbell, who is only twenty-two, drives a long ball without any apparent effort, plays nearly all his shots off the right leg, and is an excellent approacher and putter. Miss Dorothy I. Campbell, the Scotch Lady Champion, is his cousin. Our portrait is from a photograph by J. Moffat, Edinburgh.

GOLF.

By Mr. Ronald Ross.

Oh! the golf, all-conquering golf,
That's played upon the common,
There's ne'er a game that tongue can name
So good for man or woman.
Day in, day out, through all the year,
Upon the links we gather;
In storm or shine, in wet or fine,
It's always golfing weather.

Oh! why for pleasure or for health
Fly to a foreign shore,
When all desires your mind requires
Are lying at your door?
Go, take your ways to golfing scenes,
There healthiest breezes wander,
And nature plants in golfer's haunts
Her works of greatest grandeur.

Upon the strings of social joy
Golf strikes no jarring note;
You never find a cankered mind
Within a golfer's coat.
Beneath the heaven's aerial dome
It holds its pleasant rites,
And gives to please its devotees
A time of pure delights.

Oh! for that rush of raptured bliss
That makes our pulses stir,
When through the air our ball hit fair
Flies with a joyous whirr;
And when, well judged, our quarter stroke
Has landed on the green,
And we've holed from where the ball lay there,
What prouder mortals seen?

When lovely woman deigns to grace
The green, our game to share,
With welcome meet we love to greet
Her gentle presence there.
Long may she play, the while she shirks
No wife or maiden's duty,
The healthy game that knits her frame
And tints her cheek with beauty.

The round consists of twelve holes. There are two more holes, but they are very seldom played. The hazards are trees, bunkers, mud walls, ditches, &c., and the difficulties of the round are added to by the abnormal number of sandy lies and the keenness of the "greens," which are brown patches of puddled earth, over which sand is sprinkled daily.

There is also a course in connection with the Mena House Hotel, only an hour's journey from Cairo. It consists of nine holes (par, 35), and is laid out on a beautiful stretch of grass, in close proximity to the Great Pyramid. As the grass is, however, rather thin, players are requested to play in rubber soles. The hazards are sandy roads, mud walls, &c., and the greens are keen and tricky. Visitors, 10*d.* a day.

The Calcutta Golf Club claims to be the mother Club in India, and in the "Good old days of the Honourable John Company"—by Mr. W. H. Carey—we find the following remarks:—"A Golf Club was established in Calcutta on the 24th March, 1839, of which Lord Ramsay was Captain." Records of the existence of the Club have been traced ten years previous to this, and it would appear that 1839 has been misprinted for 1829. Further proof is from the existence of a large quantity of brass buttons still in the possession of the Club which bear the Scotch Thistle, Golf Arms, and motto "Far and Sure," and the year 1829.

There are two courses of nine holes each on the Maidan, it being too small for eighteen holes. They are situated in the centre of the town. The circuit of the old course is 3160 yards, and of the new course 3061, the par of both being 39. On approval by the Committee, temporary residents in Calcutta may become members of the Club for a period not exceeding four months on payment of a monthly subscription of ten rupees. They shall be entitled to all the privileges of the Club, except playing for medals, prizes, &c., and attending or voting at meetings or balloting for members; but this privilege cannot be claimed a second time in one season. Should a temporary member at any time wish to become a permanent member, half the amount, up to twenty rupees previously paid by him, shall, on his election, be treated as portion of his entrance fee.

SORRENTO GOLF CLUB, INSTITUTED MAY, 1895.

The course, of nine holes, is on an undulating plateau, about a mile long, covered with strong short-cropped grass, and, though hazards are scarce, the course is by no means an easy one. The site is one of the most picturesque in Southern Italy, commanding, as it does, a magnificent view of the two seas and of the marvellously beautiful coasts of Naples, Vesuvius, Ischia, Capri, and Salerno. The height above sea level is from 1600ft. to 1700ft., and, though the pull-up from Sorrento is a long one, a pleasant residence can be found for any golf-playing visitors who require a few weeks in the most salubrious air which the Mediterranean coasts afford in the suburban township of St. Agata, where cheap lodgings and board are always obtainable, and which is situated on the ridge, within a few minutes' walk of the course. In any case, however, the ascent can be made on donkey-back, if the donkey be a good one, in less than three-quarters of an hour from Sorrento itself. In October and November, and again from March to June, the climate is very enjoyable, and, owing to the almost insular position of the Sorrento hills, is cooler and fresher than that of any place in Continental Italy.

The links, about a mile distant from Westward Ho! are the well-known Northam Burrows, which comprise upwards of 1000 acres, and command exquisite views of the Atlantic, Bristol Channel, Exmoor, Lundy Island, Hartland Point, and the estuary of the twin rivers Torridge and Taw. The Club have now secured the manorial rights of the parish of Northam. The course, of eighteen holes, now starts from the hither side of the barn, immediately in front of the Club-house. After this a return is made to the old-established line, conspicuous for the vast bunkers—before which those of almost every other green sink into insignificance—for the tall rushes, which catch the devious driver and oft-times impale his person, and for these wonderful lies throughout the green which have ever been the boast of Westward Ho! Westward Ho! is in close proximity to Bideford, and the railway journey from London can be accomplished in six hours without a change. 'Buses meet all the trains and convey passengers to Westward Ho! three miles off.
