GOLFING ANNUAL.

RECENT DECISIONS OF THE RULES OF GOLF COMMITTEE.

THE following are the more important decisions of the Rules of Golf Committee upon points submitted to them since our last issue:—

Q.—On New Year's Day a Club held their annual competition, and, finding there was not sufficient light to play one round (eighteen holes)—according to the rules—in order to decide eighteen ties, the Committee awarded the prizes according to players' handicap. For instance, two players returned cards with 90 — 2 = 88, another 100 — 12 = 88. They gave the former the first place, and the latter came next, and so on with the other ties. Did the Committee act right, seeing it was impossible to prolong to play off these ties on another day?

A.—No. Where two or more competitors returned the same net score, the prizes should have been equally divided.

Q.—On playing off for the final of the Captain's Cup (Medal Play) two competitors returned a card of 77 for the second prize. A member accompanied each couple round the course to check the scores, and the scores in question were absolutely correct. The winner of the Captain's prize was the member who brought in one of the two cards in question, and under stress of very great excitement he placed his opponent's card in the box placed in the Club for that purpose, without first signing it. Within a minute he discovered his mistake, and requested the Secretary to open the box and allow him to sign it. The Secretary complied, mentioning the fact that the signing would be reported to the Council. When the card in question was first handed in it was the last card of the day. The markers appointed to check never in any case handed in a card. The competitors alone handed in cards. When the mistake was reported, the checker was asked for his card, which he signed and handed to the Secretary. Has there been a breach of Rule 4, involving the disqualification of the member whose card was returned unsigned?

A.—Rule 4 is quite absolute. The player is disqualified.

Q.—At the last hole at Dollymount a ditch runs parallel to the course on the right. On the right of this ditch is a field or rough garden, which is out of bounds. A local rule states that a ball driven into this ditch may be lifted and dropped on the course under penalty of one stroke. This ditch is at present being drained, and the groundmen were at work upon it when the disputed point arose. A. sliced his drive, which ended in the ditch. He contended that, as the ditch was ground under repair, he was entitled to lift it without penalty. B. replied that, as there was a local rule dealing with the ditch, A. could not lift without losing one stroke. The ball lay in water in the ditch, which is a hazard, but sods had been cut from this part of the ditch. Did the local rule operate? Also, can a ball be lifted without penalty from a bunker which is being repaired?

A.—If the ball lay in a part of the ditch under repair, A. can drop his ball in another part of the ditch which is not under repair without incurring a penalty. See Rule 10. The local rule operates. A ball cannot be lifted without penalty from a bunker which is being repaired.

Q.—A. is playing against the best ball of B. and C. B. plays C.'s ball, and discovers his mistake before C. plays. How should the hole be played out? Is either B. or C. disqualified for that hole? Would it make any difference in the case of B. if he intimated his mistake to A. before A. played his next stroke?

A.—B. loses his status for the hole. C. can replace his ball provided he gives notice to A. before A. plays another stroke, otherwise both B. and C. are disqualified for that hole.

Q.—What is to be done in the case of mouse holes and runs in golf matches?

A.—The ball must be played from where it lies, unless there is a local rule to the contrary.

Q.—A. and B. are playing a foursome versus C. and D. On the sixth tee A. drives, slips, and misses the ball. C. plays his stroke. B. then fetches the mat, which is four yards away, to stand on, as A. slipped. Is B. within his rights in getting the mat? Do A. and B. lose the hole?

A.—No. The ball is in play. A. and B. lose the hole.

Q.—In a competition which takes the form of strokes and holes, a qualifying round to be played, entries were received from, and cards handed out to, two players at an early hour in the morning, before nine o'clock. The greenkeeper had not finished cutting the holes, and these two competitors played on some of the greens, holing out at the old holes. Before any other competitors had been started all the new holes had been cut. Are the competitors who started before the course was in order disqualified, or are all the other competitors who started later, and played over the correct course, disqualified? Is it necessary to declare the competition void? The score returned by one of the early competitors qualified to play off by holes. The Committee have received a protest against the disqualification of the competitors who started before the course was in order.

A.—The Committee consider the competition void, as the early competitors appear to have started with official sanction.

Q.—In a Club there is a Thursday afternoon Medal competition. Members require to start play before 3.30 p.m. In the last competition one member played with a visitor, whom he introduced in terms of the Rules of the Club. The visitor kept the member's score and the member kept the visitor's score. On the same day another member arrived off the train immediately before 3.30. He could not find another member with whom to play. The greenkeeper, who acts as official starter, was not present, and he asked the Clubmaster, who does not appear to fall under the term "professional," as he is an inside servant practically a butler—to accompany him. The Clubmaster played with this member and kept his score. It so happens that the member first referred to returned the second lowest score, and the member second referred to returned the lowest score. A dispute has arisen regarding the validity of these scores, it being contended that the members competing must play with other competitors in the same competition.

A.—Neither competitor is disqualified.

Q.—If a ball be played on to the wrong green, should it be lifted and dropped, or placed by hand not nearer the hole?

A.—This is a subject for local rule, but the Committee suggest that the ball should be placed, and not dropped.

Q.—In a Medal competition A. and B. tie for first place. The tie is played off the following week, when A. and B. state that A. has won, but refuse to return a score. Should a card be returned properly signed, or is this unnecessary in the case of a tie?

A.—The Committee consider that it is not necessary for A. and B. to hand in cards, as they were in agreement as to who was the winner.

Q.—In a match A. drove his ball from the tee, and it dropped into a motor-car (under the back seat) standing against the Club stables. His opponent B. claimed the hole, contending that in match play a ball must be played from the spot where it lies. Was B. right, or was it a rub of the green?

A.—The ball must be played or the hole given up.

Q.—A. and B. tied in a stroke competition—under handicap—for a cup and memento, and it was left to them to arrange to play off on a subsequent day—eighteen holes Medal Play under handicap. On the day of replay no new holes were made by the groundsman, and A. played a practice round of eighteen holes before playing off his tie. B. did not play on any green before meeting A. as he did not consider it right to do so, and protested against A. playing a practice round. A. won. The decision of the Committee is craved.

A.—There was no necessity to cut new holes for playing off the tie, and both competitors were at liberty to play on the course before playing off their tie.

Q.—The Scratch Medal of a Club is played for on the aggregate principle, eight competitions being played, the lowest aggregate of five of these to win. On the date fixed for the first of these competitions a team of four went to represent the Club in a tournament. The Council granted to these four a special day on which they might play the competition which they lost through absence. The date was fixed. Subsequently it transpired that one of the four was still unable to compete, owing to a previous engagement. (1) Can the Council in a case like this grant a special day to a select number of players? (2) Can they grant, after the first day has been taken advantage of, a still further opportunity to one member who was not suited by the former date?

A.—It seems a reasonable power for the Council to exercise.

Q.—A ball is mis-hit from the tee into a ditch full of running water. This ditch extends right down one side of the course towards the hole that is played for. From the point where it entered the water the ball is carried down twenty or thirty yards in the direction of the hole, and then comes to rest against some twigs which lie across the ditch. Is the player allowed to play his ball from where it lies?

A.—The player is entitled to play the ball from where it lay, but the Committee consider that a local rule should be framed under which the ball should be dropped near the spot where it entered the hazard.

Q.—In a stroke competition a ball was lofted on to a green, and, the green being soft, the ball was partly embedded where it fell. The player loosened it with his hand, and then played the ball. Does the touching of the ball penalise or disqualify the player? If so, under what rule is the decision based, and what is the penalty, if any?

A.—In Match Play the penalty is the loss of the hole under Rule 7, and it is therefore two strokes under Rule 14, Special Rules for Stroke Competitions.

Q.—Can a player in a competition, after driving from the fourth tee, go to the fifth tee and drive from there before he has holed out on the fourth green? Some of the players do this to save time and the bother of recrossing the beck. Several of the members claim that such an action disqualifies a competitor, stating that a player can only play one ball and one hole at a time.

A.—Unless there is a local rule permitting it, the practice disqualifies a competitor.

Q.—Is it permissible to drop a ball, played off the tee into a ditch, out of which it is impossible to play, on the tee again with loss of stroke, the ditch not being out of bounds, and being about 58 yards from the tee? A local rule states that a ball may be picked out of the ditch under a penalty of one stroke. This ditch contains water.

A.—According to Rule 4 (a) it is permissible to drop a ball "as far behind the hazard as the player may please," and therefore on the teeing-ground, provided that the position of the teeing-ground complies with the other stipulations of Rule 14. The Committee consider that this hazard should be treated under a similar local rule to that applied to the Swilcan Burn at St. Andrews, viz., that the ball must be dropped within two club lengths of the hazard.

Q.—Does Rule 3, Special Rules for Stroke Competitions, prohibit a competitor from driving from any of the tees towards the hole before starting to play in a Medal competition, and do this and all the other Rules for Medal Play apply to a foursome Medal competition?

A.—(1) No, provided the hole towards which he played is out of reach. (2) This rule applies to all stroke competitions.

Q.—Two members, A. and B., are competing in a hole match for a trophy. In playing to the seventh hole A. pulled his ball amongst sand into an unplayable position. He appeals to the Referee for his ruling. The Referee allows him to lift his ball and count two. B. immediately protests against this decision, and plays the remainder of the match under protest. Is B. entitled to a replay of the whole match, or is he only entitled to the hole protested on?

A.—B. is only entitled to the hole protested on. The decision of the Referee was wrong. In a hole match the ball must be played from where it lies, or the hole be given up. See Rule 7.

Q.—In a competition one of the competitors lodged a complaint against one of the Green Committee, who, it appears, had gone forward after the player had holed out at a certain hole, and asked how many strokes he had taken. He said he had taken 5. The Committeeman said it was an untruth, and maintained he had seen him play 6. When the player's partner was referred to, he said the hole was done in 5. (1) Is a member of any Committee entitled to approach a player in a competition and challenge his score? (2) Is the correctness of a competitor's score not in the hands of his partner? (3) What are supposed to be the duties of the Green Committee? (4) Should the Committeeman be supported in his action?

A.—No. The proper course was to report any irregularity to the Committee. During the round the score is in the hands of the player and his marker, but the Committee may receive outside evidence before accepting the card as correct.

Q.—A Gold Medal competition took place recently, and resulted in a tie. While playing off the tie B. played with A.'s ball. The mistake was at once discovered, and B. returned and played out the hole with his own ball. Does he suffer any penalty, or does Rule 9 in the Special Rules for Stroke Competitions apply to this case and override all other rules?

A.—There is no penalty.

Q.—In Rule 1, Division E, the latter part states: "Permanent grass within a hazard is not part of the hazard." Can any loose object, such as a stone, &c., if resting on grass in the hazard, be moved, or does the first part of Rule 9 (page 9) prevent this?

A.—A loose object can be removed.

Q.—B. tees a ball more than two club lengths behind the marks indicating the teeing-ground, and the ball is driven out of bounds, without being recalled by B.'s opponent. Should the ball be dropped at the spot from which the stroke was played, or is B. entitled to gain distance by dropping the ball in front of the spot from which the stroke was played? For instance, would B. be entitled to drop the ball between the marks indicating the teeing-ground?

A.—The ball must be dropped at the spot from which it was played, as the original stroke was not recalled at once by B.'s opponent.

Q.—In a Club where there is no congestion of the green, and where consequently times of starting are not arranged by the Committee, a whole day is fixed for a Medal competition. Members are at liberty to choose their partners and make their own arrangements for starting. The morning and early afternoon are fair, and some players play before rain begins; others are overtaken by rain, and play through it without sheltering. One pair, who have mutually arranged to start at 2.30 (admitted by themselves), arrive at the Club-house about that time, but it is then raining; for that reason they do not start, but wait in the Club-house for two hours until the rain has ceased. They then start and play round without further rain.

(1) Should they be disqualified for "delaying to start" under Rule 13 of the Special Rules for Stroke Competitions? Or (2) does this rule only apply when fixed times of starting are arranged and posted up by the Committee?

A.—(1) No. (2) Yes.

Q.—A competitor for a Challenge Cup (Medal play under handicap) took out his card, left the Club-house, and placed his ball on the first tee. A storm of rain coming on, he left his ball and took shelter for fifteen minutes in the professionals' shop close by, and started after the storm was over. The Committee decided that he had delayed to start on account of bad weather, and disqualified him. Several other competitors were disqualified for sheltering during their rounds, and it was decided that the same rule affected all cases. There was no time starting sheet used. The competitor who delayed to start tied for the Cup with another who came up to the Club-house later and completed his round without sheltering. Were the Committee justified in disqualifying the competitor who delayed his start?

A.—As there was no fixed time for starting, and the ball was not in play, the competitor's score must be allowed.

Q.—(1) If a man in playing a match bends his back when dropping behind a hazard, does he lose the hole? (2) Would it be quite courteous on the part of an opponent to claim the hole for such a breach of rule?

A.—(1) The object of Rule 5 is to prevent a player from bending sideways and looking over his shoulder so as to select a particular spot to drop his ball on. Merely bending backwards sufficiently to allow the ball to drop direct from the head to the ground is correct. (2) If a player manifestly breaks this rule his opponent is guilty of no discourtesy in claiming the hole.

Q.—Is it permissible to stop for refreshment after nine holes in an eighteen-hole competition?

A.—Provided the player is ready to strike off to the tenth hole when his turn arrives, he may go where he pleases after finishing the ninth hole.

Q.—A player has driven a ball which, when found, has been passed over by a grass-cutter and embedded in the ground. Is the player entitled under Rule 22 to pick his ball out of the ground and drop it?

A.—Yes.

Q.—A. and B. are partners in a foursome. When driving A. misses the ball and leaves it sitting on the tee. Before B. comes to play, the wind blows the ball off the tee. Has B. the right to re-tee the ball?

A.—No; the ball was in play after A. had played and missed it.

Q.—A., Medal handicap 1, and B., Medal handicap 12, were drawn against each other in a hole competition. Owing to miscalculation on the part of the competitors, B. received a stroke at each of nine holes. B. won the match by one hole. After having left the Club-house, A. discovers that B.'s correct allowance was a stroke at each of eight holes. A. wrote to B. suggesting that, as a mistake had been made in strokes to be allowed, the game be played over again. B., although averse to such a course, in response to A.'s letter agreed to replay. On replaying match A. won. Should B. be declared winner of the match, or was replay of tie permissible and proper course to pursue under the circumstances disclosed?

A.—Replaying the match was the proper course to pursue, provided that there was time to do so without interfering with the ordinary course of the competition.

Q.—A local bye-law reads as follows: "A ball lying on a green other than that of the hole played for, unless the following stroke be played with a putter, must be lifted and placed on the course not nearer to the hole played for without penalty." The greens in some cases are small, and the mown part does not extend twenty yards from the hole. In the case of a ball lying within twenty yards of the hole, but on the rough grass surrounding the mown part, is the player for a brassie shot entitled to lift and place his ball?

A.—If the term "green" in the local bye-law means "putting green," it then includes all ground except hazards within twenty yards of the hole. This being so, the ball must be lifted in terms of the bye-laws.

Q.—In Rule 19 of the Rules of Golf it is said: "The line of the putt may be pointed out, &c., but the person doing so must not touch the ground." Does this refer to the ground between the ball and the hole only, or does it also refer to the ground lying beyond the hole—i.e., on the far side of the hole from where the ball is lying? A. and B. were partners in a foursome against C. and D. When A. was about to play his putt, his partner B., standing behind the hole, indicated the line he should take, and in doing so he rested the top of his club-shaft on the ground two yards behind the hole, and not on the green between the ball and the hole. To reach the spot where the club rested the ball would have needed to pass the hole and go two yards beyond it. C. and D. claimed the hole. Were they entitled to do so?

A.—C. and D. were right.

Q.—Is a player entitled to a sight of his ball when it lies hid in long grass, bracken, &c.?

A.—A player is not entitled to a sight of his ball when addressing it, but only to remove long grass, bracken, &c., sufficiently to enable him to find it.

Q.—In the final tie of a foursome competition both balls were on the fifth green in 3, within holing distance. A. holed in 4, and B. proceeding to hole in the like, discovered a small piece of mud adhering to his ball, stooped down, and with one hand held the ball in position while he scraped the piece of mud off his ball with the other. A. immediately claimed the hole, as a breach of rule had been committed. B. held that he was perfectly entitled to do as he had done. The Referee upheld B.'s contention, and said A. was perfectly wrong. The match thereupon continued, A. still protesting that a breach of the rule had been committed. Upon reaching the ninth green the same thing occurred, B.'s ball having again a piece of mud adhering; but this time the Referee, upon being appealed to, said he would remove it himself, and so save quarrelling. He then proceeded to the ball, stooped down, and held the ball with one hand whilst he flicked off the mud with the other. A., still protesting, was told that the Referee's decision was final. Towards the end of the match a Book of Rules was procured, and the rule pointed out to B. and the Referee, and both admitted that they had been in the wrong. The match finished with B.'s side four up and three to play on the double foursome. (1) Was it a breach of Rule 34 on two occasions? (2) Is the Referee's decision final when proved to be wrong? (3) What effect has such a decision and action of Referee upon the match?

A.—(1) Yes. (2) No, because it was protested against on a point of law, in which the Referee was wrong. (3) A. won the first hole referred to, as B. himself removed the mud, but A. cannot make B. responsible for the action of the Referee in touching the mud on the second occasion.

Q.—May a competitor go into the Club-house for any reason whatever during a competition without being disqualified? Also, is it consistent with the rules for a Committee to give permission to a competitor to go into the Club-house during a competition?

A.—(1) Yes, if the reasons are satisfactory to the Committee in charge of the competition. (2) Yes.

EDINA—THEN AND NOW.

By the Rev. T. D. Miller, M.A.

It is not necessary to go back to those early days when Edinburgh golf was mostly done on Leith Links in order to find a contrast to the present condition of things. There are, of course, several well-worn ancient instances of the game connected with the ill-starred Stuart line, when Holyrood House was, in reality, the home of kings. Who has not read of memorable matches played in those days? That old Canongate house, with its Latin verse and golf emblazonry, for example, is an enduring witness, at any rate, to the substantial nature of the stakes involved in one of them. But all that, and much else, is set down in Paterson's account of the "Royal Game," and can be found in "Kay's Edinburgh Portraits." We are not going to take such a long leap into the storied past. We are merely to glance back some half century, to the days when Bruntsfield Links was the centre of golf in the metropolis; and in the days of the Duke of York's high stakes, Bruntsfield was still only part of the Boroughmuir, a former rendezvous for more serious ploys than golf. But that it must have been in process of reclamation is surely evident from the fact that one of the buildings in the little group of old tenements called "Wright's Houses" is supposed to have been built by the Duke of York, a veritable "House o' the Fields" it must have been, and it may be assumed that golf, limited, was even then played there. Still, at that early date, we are given to understand the mountain heath and the yellow gorse glowed there in all their special splendour of purple and gold. There were Edinburgh Clubs in existence more than two centuries ago, but the Burgess Club was the first to make Bruntsfield its headquarters, and the date of its foundation is set down as 1735.

It is not so long ago since golf, in the long game, was forbidden on Bruntsfield, nor so long, either, since the whins were cleared off the links there. The players are living still who lost their balls among them, and their matches and tempers too. Old eyes there are that still look dimly on these links, and reanimate them in all "the bustle and the raree show" of sixty and more years ago. It was an ex-Captain, one of the founders of one of the Bruntsfield Clubs, and himself the holder of all the Club's merit-prizes, who, with all the enthusiasm of a youthful spirit, gave us a sort of mental bird's-eye view of Bruntsfield in the time when the fame of that links was at its very zenith. His early days were spent there when the Bruntsfield Club, instituted in 1760, was still called the New Club, when feather balls were still in vogue, and it was the Gourlays who made them. Peter McEwan gave him his first play-club, and Peter was known as a maker "the world over." If the world was not less wide than now, the world of golf was more restricted, and McEwan sent clubs to Perth, Montrose, Aberdeen, and had an agent at St. Andrews, no less a person than Davie Robertson, father of the mighty Allan. And later on Douglas McEwan journeyed regularly, mostly on foot, to St. Andrews to do the repairs for the players there in any of their big competitions.

Though there were at that time three Clubs, the Burgess, the Bruntsfield, and the Allied, latterly augmented by the Thistle and the Warrender, each with a considerable membership playing over Bruntsfield, yet there were but five holes to the round. Except that the whins are worn out and many hollows filled up for the construction of footpaths, especially at the upper end, there is not much difference in the appearance of the links from that of these earlier days. The Tumbler's Hollow, reserved for open-air circus folk, and the scene of a famous duel, is still existent. The positions of the holes are still discernible. The course started below "Wright's Houses," "at the back of Bob Marshall's garden," that is to say, in front of the workshops of Peter McEwan and the Gourlays, a site now occupied by Glengyle Terrace; and the first hole lay at the foot of the links, near what was called the White House, as though one were now to play on the Steeple of West St. Giles Parish Kirk. The second brought one back, half way up the links, to the vicinity of Links House, now part of a photographer's premises. The third took one round the corner, or across the garden dyke of that house to the southmost corner, where stood the "Bishop's House," still standing indeed, at the end of Bruntsfield Terrace; then, for the fourth hole, along to the upper end, past the field of whins, of which not a bush now remains, to the hollow, still seen, near the end of Bruntsfield Place; and from there home. Where there were but five, there are now no less than three dozen holes at pitching distance. The west or upper end of 18 holes is open all the year round; but the lower, in better preservation, is reserved for the Summer months; and, though confined to the short game, the links continue to give scope, health, and pleasure to hundreds of players. Golf used to be called "a pottering old man's game," and here, day by day, many old players still leisurely indulge their fancy; but, in the Summer evenings the links are alive with players, old and young, and the ring of their voices makes the welkin echo. The local maker, Doleman, once Douglas McEwan's 'prentice, speaks highly of the efforts of the Town Council to provide good sport by maintaining the high-class condition of the green, and declares that it never was in better order than now, and he should know. Though the game be restricted, there is enough left to enable one to get up the short game, which, so far as golf is concerned, is the main part of it.

On a Saturday afternoon in the old days, it was a sight to see the busy throng in the special dress affected by the time; the Burgess men in black velvet caps, scarlet coats, and white gloves, a much more vivid array than is to be seen on match days now. And, when touching on the matter of dress, one may recall the existence of "Caddie Willie," whose portrait is still extant, a former henchman of Bruntsfield, without question the most picturesque figure connected with the game, fearfully and wonderfully clad in Highland bonnet, tartan trews, and no less than six waistcoats of various styles and patterns. He is reported to have been in the habit of carrying three players' clubs at the same time, but that was before the invention of the numerous irons. Players were satisfied then with three or four clubs apiece, and these were usually the play-club, reserved solely for the tee, the grass club or spooned driver, the baffy, the cleek, now known as the jigger, and the putter. "And oh! but the baffy or 'cutty' was the chief of the bunch," and the power to handle that was the mark of the true golfer. The baffy, with its spacious lofted face and short stiff shaft, has been driven off the links by the pitching iron, but it can never be driven out of the heart's core of at least our old Bruntsfield player.

It was a great day for Bruntsfield golf when one of the players snatched the laurels from all the amateur talent at St. Andrews. Robert Chambers, clarum et venerabile nomen, in 1858, after numbering among his rivals players of such repute as Moncrieff, Hay, Maitland Dougal, P. P. Alexander, and Glennie, gained the coveted trophy. In the final tie he met the redoubtable Wallace a match which ended like many another big thing, at the last hole, and was decided by the last putt. No wonder that the Club celebrated the great occasion, and conferred upon the Champion the highest honour of civilisation, a Club dinner, and that we find the event embalmed in the stirring lines:

> "The Bruntsfield come next in the raw, the raw,
> Wi' the Burgess they've oft a fracas, a fracas;
> To add to their honours, most gallantly Chambers
> Frae St. Andrews a prize brocht awa', awa'."

The little cluster of antiquated buildings on the west side of the links, consisting of the Duke of York's house and the Golf Inn, and including the clubmaker's premises, is surely, from a golfer's point of view, the most interesting monument among Edinburgh's numerous historic houses. The tavern or "houff" where the Burgess, the Bruntsfield, and the Allied Clubs had their headquarters, either overhead or below stairs, is still there. The Clubs occupied but single rooms, which were looked after in turn, as were the creature-comforts of the players themselves, by the much-respected hostesses of the inn. These rooms are redolent of memories of bustling gatherings for Club matches and Medal competitions; of business meetings, resolved into the customary after-social meeting, with the usual match-making and tale-telling accompaniments. They are rich in the memories of good fellowship of departed years; for there the players, tired even while invigorated, like the famous traveller Lithgow, "recreated their fatigated corps with many sugred suggestions." The buildings are reminders of the days and the players that were. They are venerated relics of Edina's early Clubs, who are now housed in more palatial quarters. They have looked on the links for three hundred years or more; but who can tell how soon they may be swept away to make room for more spacious modern edifices?

The "Battle of the Links" was waged for many years. It arose out of the growth of the town southwards; and as the links became gradually surrounded by terraces the non-playing inhabitants desired facilities over the public common, which the players were unwilling to accord. For years the players asserted their rights against all efforts to restrict their enjoyment in any way. Every effort was made both in poetry and prose to conserve the links for the game by preventing the encroachments of the builder or the formation of roadways or concrete footpaths over them. One of the leading players ventured into poetry, in lines which seem even to defy the interference of the civic authorities:

"O, who are they that dare invade,
Wi' menac'd looks, our joyful trade?
Who seek e'en now a Council's aid,
To make our golfing trumps yield?"

"Wi' pity we'll regard them a',
But still we'll tee and drive the ba',
And bless prescriptive right an' law,
On the smiling links o' Bruntsfield!"

But the safety of the citizens is the first duty of the magistrate, and, when the time came that it had to be recorded concerning the hazards of the links that "the chief difficulty was to avoid collision with passing pedestrians," the necessity for prohibiting the long game there came to be generally recognised. This was finally effected about a score of years ago; but, some years prior to that, the Burgess and Bruntsfield Clubs had felt constrained to shift their camp, and, according to that great principle which governs the movements of nations as well as golfing societies, expressed in the phrase hirsel yont, they had carried their clubs and contests to the less public pleasure ground of Musselburgh.

Our keen sportsman, the veteran ex-Captain, warmed up at the mention of the "Honest Toon." The game there had been the joy of his life. "There's no green like Musselburgh! I've played on many, but there's none that comes up to Musselburgh." There the greens, we were told, are like billiard tables, and the bunkers are so happily placed that "every shot is a study." "There is nothing equal to Musselburgh for a day's outing," and the old man told afresh, and with all a golfer's zest, some of those instances of skill and nerve on which the memory of every golfer delights to linger.

But that is all passed now in its relation to Bruntsfield, for the old Bruntsfield Clubs have in turn shaken the sand off their shoes at Musselburgh, and have hied themselves away to the other side of the town, and at Barnton and Davidson's Mains they now enjoy the game in fuller scope and freedom. And everything there is in keeping with the spirit of the times. As the English bishop said, "Things are decidedly changed, in some respects for the better." And if it be true that increased numbers tend to lessen the camaraderie of a Club, still "there is plenty of room outside." The bunkers of Musselburgh are undoubtedly deeper and wider, and there are none of the glorious traditions of Bruntsfield to hallow the new greens. The black velvet cap is still in vogue, and the old trophies adorn the dining table on state occasions. These are the reminders of historic days; but this much is gain, there is no Corporation to warn off the long game. Other Clubs may have more lovely parks to play over, but we have not seen them; and, in Spring, with the tints of tender buds, or the Autumn, with more gorgeous colouring, the trees of the old Barnton policies are worth travelling far to see.

And for the Edinburgh players in general, whose catalogued Clubs are as numerous as were the players on Bruntsfield half a century ago, there are Municipal greens here and there in the suburbs, the chief among them being on the Braid Hills. The conception and planning of the course there was a masterly stroke of genius. That golf on hills was never dreamed of till the necessity arose, and that the Braids have been marvellously adapted to golf, are two unquestionable truths. Surely the Braids course holds the record as the most mountainous in the land—we had almost said world. If there are no hazards left at Bruntsfield, there are abundance there; for there are ridges, hollows, whins, gullies, and rocks galore. No wonder that "our own Andra'" excused himself for being out of the running at the recent Braids tournament by saying he was not a nannie-goat. Surefootedness as well as soundness in wind and limb are wanted there. It must have been a severe strain on nerve and muscle to go up and down these slopes for two days in open competition, and yet quite a crowd of players acquitted themselves with distinction; and, stranger still, the international quartette were only kept from following in order at the top of the list by two players, Thomson, of North Berwick, a recent but valuable accession to the professional ranks, and Ray, of Ganton, a coming Champion, who got in a return journey on these heights, with an average of 3·3, a feat which was worthy of the Dominie's dumbfounded "Prodigious."

"The Braids" offer a splendid coign of vantage for scenery, for the wooded and fertile plains of the Lothians lie circling at their feet, and over the Castle Rock and grey spires of Edina lies the silver floor of the Firth, and beyond that the shores of "the Kingdom," the very cradle of Scottish golf. But to the golfer the grandest scenery must always give place to the game. "The play's the thing," and on the Braids there is especial need of remembering the elementary principle, "Keep your eye on the ball." Edinburgh gets the credit of being a windy place, and the Braids course stands "four-square to all the winds that blow," and a loose ball is often swept like the Autumn leaves before the blast. With slopes and whins and rocks to trap the wanderer, the effect can be most disastrous. Other less arduous and exacting and more leisurely courses meet the fancy of some, but the Braids "stern and wild" have so satisfied the sporting instincts of the virile players of the town that their numbers can now only be reckoned in four figures. There they gather, week after week, to stretch the muscle and brace the nerve and get the cobwebs blown from the upper story. And a course of exasperating experience has wrought into the texture of the characters of many of them the spirit of patience and long-suffering, and has implanted within them the judgment and determination that enable them to "keep the line." And that is an all-important factor in golf; for

You may baff or sclaff or top it,
And yet muddle somehow through;
And still the hole may pocket,
If the line be fairly true.

For the secret of your gaining
Is the straight line to the hole,
And the power of your maintaining
Right direction towards the goal.

MRS. KENNION,

Champion Lady Golfer, 1906.

THE LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP, 1906.

THE Fourteenth Annual Championship, held at Burnham, Somerset, on Tuesday, May 15th, and the three following days, attracted a splendidly representative entry list of 113, and proved an unqualified success. The weather in the morning of the opening day was excellent, but the wind rose in the afternoon, and upset calculations not a little. The great surprise was the defeat of Miss May Hezlet, the 1899 and 1902 Champion, by Miss Hilda Evans, of Weston-super-Mare. The former was no fewer than four up at the eleventh hole, but her short game then deteriorated sadly, and Miss Evans drew level at the sixteenth. Of the two succeeding holes each won one, but Miss Hezlet's victory seemed assured on the home green, where she lay practically dead with a stroke in hand. She, however, missed the putt, and out they had to go again. Another short putt proved too much for the ex-Champion, and Miss Evans was congratulated upon winning what had been an uphill game during the greater part of the round. Miss B. Thompson (holder) won her match easily, but another ex-Champion in Miss M. A. Graham was unexpectedly beaten by Miss Doris Chambers (Wirral), whose long game was exceptionally good. Mrs. F. W. Brown, a Bronze Medallist of the previous year, had also to admit defeat from Mrs. Durlacher, thanks to being laid a stimie at the home hole. The last match of the day, between Miss D. I. Campbell, the Scotch Champion, and Miss M. Maitland (Elie), attracted a large following. Miss Campbell turned one up, and, forging ahead afterwards, won comfortably on the fifteenth green. The second and third rounds were decided on Wednesday in squally weather. In the forenoon three surprises were sprung, Miss Hilda Evans being cleverly beaten by Miss Morant (East Devon), Miss E. C. Nevile going down very easily before Miss M. N. Fraser (Murrayfield), and Miss E. M. Titterton, a Bronze Medallist in 1897, succumbing to Miss

THE IRISH LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP, 1906.

By Miss Leah Gabratt, Hon. Secretary Irish Ladies' Golf Union.

The thirteenth Championship of the above Union was played at Newcastle, Co. Down, on April 2nd and following days. There was a very good entry, and it was most gratifying to have so many players from Dublin and the neighbourhood. These ladies, in the course of the week, gave their northern sisters some excellent games, in many cases winning their matches somewhat easily. One of the best matches was that between Miss Harrison, of Malahide Island, and Miss Ireland, of Malone, the former only winning at the twenty-first hole. Both are young and very promising players; they play excellent golf, and may hope for Championship honours in the future. The North-West and the Greenisland Clubs provided a strong contingent of players, some of whom bid fair to rival the more famous Portrush players. All the more credit, therefore, to the Misses Hezlet, who again won their way through to the final. Too much praise cannot be expressed for Miss May Hezlet's capabilities as a match player, for in her first few matches she was not at all playing up to her own form, though she recovered it all later on, and kept the Cup for another year.

The competition for the scratch prize given by the Co. Down Club was played on the Monday, Miss F. Hezlet coming in first with 88, and Miss M. Dickson (North-West) second with 89. The Irish Ladies' Golf Union Gold Medal was won by Miss D. Griffiths (Armagh).

The Championship Cup and prizes were presented by Mrs. Hoey, wife of the Hon. Secretary of the Co. Down Club, who kindly consented to fill the President's (Lady de Ros's) place.

THE SCOTCH LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP, 1906.

It is "a far cry" from the Lowlands and Midlands of Scotland, where the game is most played, to Cruden Bay, Aberdeenshire, but when the Fourth Annual Championship of the Scottish Ladies' Golfing Association began there on the morning of Tuesday, June 19th, the golfing ladies of Scotland had rallied so loyally to the call of their Association that Miss Dorothy I. Campbell (the 1905 winner at North Berwick) was faced by a field of thirty-seven. It was regrettable, however, to find that Miss M. A. Graham, the 1904 Champion, was not one of their number. The choice of the Cruden Bay course is to be commended. It broke fresh ground, and supplied a splendid test, straight driving and accurate approaching being required at nearly every hole. The feature of the first round, which consisted of only six matches, was the excellent play of Miss E. M. Titterton, winner of a Ladies' Golfing Union Bronze Medal at Gullane in 1897. Out approximately in 41, she beat such a capable player as Miss J. G. Broun by no fewer than seven up and six to play, but it was only to fall in the second round before the steady golf of Miss Turner (St. Andrews). The latter turned with three holes in hand, and won at the seventeenth hole from an opponent whom luck has so far never favoured. The other ties in both rounds, resulting, as they did, pretty much in accordance with expectation, call for no comment. The third and fourth rounds were played on Wednesday, when a puzzling cross wind took a deal of negotiating. There were two exciting ties in the third round, but the others were easily won. That promising Troon player, Miss Jenkins, gave the holder (Miss D. I. Campbell) a good game. By deadly putting she won two out of the first five holes, and, although she lost the sixth through topping her second, she regained her lead of two at the seventh. Miss Campbell, however,

MISS DOROTHY I. CAMPBELL,

Scotch Lady Champion, 1906.

easily won the eighth and ninth, her opponent being badly punished in the bents with a pulled drive to the one hole, and trapped with a too strong approach to the other. Coming home Miss Campbell asserted herself, and stood three up at the fifteenth. Miss Jenkins, however, kept the game going by winning the two succeeding holes, but had then to admit defeat by two holes. Still closer was the tie between Miss G. Robertson and Miss M. Watson. Their round was halved, and it was not until two extra holes had been played that the former qualified for the fourth round. In this round Miss Campbell, although she started rather indifferently, easily beat Miss M. Neilson, and Miss M. N. Fraser's win over Miss Hamilton-Campbell, the Association's Secretary, was even more pronounced; but Miss Glover, the 1903 Champion, and Miss Robertson had to struggle their hardest before they succeeded in getting the better of Miss Turner and Miss Allaway, both of whom have a strong game at their command. Ideal conditions prevailed on Thursday, and some fine play was seen. After starting badly against Miss Fraser, Miss Campbell settled down to her best game. She turned two up, and won her way into the final for the second year in succession on the fourteenth green. Miss Glover and Miss Robertson halved the first and second holes, but the former won five out of the remaining outward holes, the latter's only success being gained at the ninth, which she got in 3 to Miss Glover's par 4. Miss Glover, who was driving splendidly, pressed her advantage coming home, and won very easily by six and five. In the final tie both players showed almost perfect form to the turn, their approximate scores being 41. Miss Glover lost the first hole, but squared accounts at the fourth with a capital 4. Two halves followed, but Miss Campbell went ahead again at the seventh, and turned one up. Half after half ensued until the sixteenth, where Miss Glover came sadly to grief in the bents, and stood no chance against Miss Campbell's perfect 3. The latter then made her success assured by reaching the seventeenth hole (370 yards) with a drive and a cleek, and holing out in 3 again. Her second Championship victory was as popular as it was deserved, but a word of praise is also due to the runner-up, whose play was quite good enough to win had the holder not been in such magnificent form. Details :

WELSH LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIPS, 1906.

THE WELSH LADIES' GOLFING UNION held their second Championship Meeting at Radyr, on May 29th and the three succeeding days. The weather throughout was in an unkindly mood, but the various competitions, including the Individual and Inter-Club Championships, were carried through without a hitch. The opening day was taken up with the Qualifying Stroke Competition for the Individual Championship. There were thirty-three entrants, including the holder (Miss Evelyn Young), and the following eight were successful:—Miss Duncan (Glamorganshire), Mrs. Storry (Porthcawl), Miss Gibson (Glamorganshire), Mrs. Furneaux, Miss E. Young (Glamorganshire), Miss Young (Glamorganshire), Mrs. Ward (Glamorganshire), and Mrs. E. U. David (Porthcawl).

In the final stage by holes the holder fell before Miss Gibson in the first round, and Mrs. Storry and Miss Duncan, the runner-up in 1905, were left in to contest the final tie. The latter, playing well despite the strong wind, led practically throughout, and won on the fourteenth green. Details:—

FIRST ROUND.

Miss Duncan beat Mrs. Furneaux by eight up and six to play.
Miss Gibson beat Miss E. Young by three up and two to play.
Mrs. Storry beat Mrs. Ward by five up and four to play.
Mrs. E. U. David beat Miss Young by seven up and five to play.

SECOND ROUND.

Miss Duncan beat Miss Gibson by four up and two to play.
Mrs. Storry beat Mrs. E. U. David by six up and five to play.

FINAL TIE.

Miss Duncan beat Mrs. Storry by five up and four to play.

In the Inter-Club Championship Porthcawl beat Barry in the first round by four matches to one, Radyr, Glamorganshire, and Swansea Bay receiving byes. In the second round Porthcawl were successful over Radyr by four matches to one, and Glamorganshire beat Swansea pointless. The final was quite an exciting affair, however, for Glamorganshire (holders) were only able to retain their title through Mrs. Ward beating her opponent at the nineteenth hole.

Quite a number of minor competitions were also decided. The winners were as follows:—

Swansea Bay Cup ...	...	Miss Duncan, 87—4=83.
Porthcawl Cup ...	...	Lady A. Wyndham-Quin, 97—16=81.
Rhyl Cup ...	...	Miss Duncan, three down.
Collin's Prize ...	...	Lady A. Wyndham-Quin, all square.
Radyr Cup ...	...	Mrs. Storry, one and a half down.
Newport Cup ...	...	Mrs. Storry, five down.

The following are the results of previous Championships:—

INDIVIDUAL CHAMPIONSHIP.

1905.—Miss E. Young (Glamorganshire) beat Miss Duncan (Glamorganshire) by two up and one to play, at Penarth.

INTER-CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP.

1905.—Glamorganshire beat Barry by four matches to none, at Penarth.

This year's Championship Meeting will be held at Porthcawl. No qualifying round will precede the Individual Championship, but entries will be limited by handicap.

The Championship qualification is as follows: Each competitor must be a bonâ fide member of one of the Union Clubs for a period of twelve months prior to the opening of the Championship Meeting, and must either have been born in Wales, or have resided in Wales for a period of twelve months, or a period of six months in each of the two years previous to the opening of the Championship Meeting.

HANDICAPPING.

By Dr. J. G. McPherson.

Handicapping seems to be a necessity in young Golf Clubs, and it is countenanced in important Clubs. But it introduces a false element into the glorious game. I never could bear the idea of polluting golf with any twopenny-halfpenny mixture. Pot-hunting, glittering prize-winning, and conceit are at the bottom of it. A man's name is papered for winning a prize, with perhaps a dozen of a handicap; and non-golfers, who do not know that player, consider that he is a stunner, and laud his praises all over before unsuccessful scratch players. I know I offend some of the moderns by my plain speaking, but it matters not to me, for I played the game when there was the patriotic passion for "real golf"—man against man for the glory of success by holes.

In the sixties I was a member of several Clubs. Among these was the St. Andrews Golf Club. The minutes of that Club go back to 1842. There is in the book a noteworthy letter, sent by Allan Robertson in 1849, against handicapping. In it he wrote: "No odds should be given to the players for either medals or other prizes. All members should be divided into one, two, three, four, or five classes; and a prize should be given to each class." Allan and Tom Morris were appointed to arrange the different classes. Surely the opinion of Champions like Allan and Tom as to odds in prize-winning is very worthy of notice. They knew the damaging results that would inevitably ensue; they did their best to nip the fault in the bud. I am clearly of opinion that the handicap element is, in the end, generally more fraught with danger than success. What true golfer cares twopence about a prize secured by an allowance of strokes? The charm of golf lies in this—that when two are well matched, be they experts or beginners, they can enjoy the game with an enthusiasm never otherwise equalled. Day after day they have their tussle; all care is dispelled for the time being; they play for the glory of the game, as if everything else was of no concern. Of course, in every Club there may be one or two who beat all the rest, and what is to be done? Well, for a match the really best player can force up his play by giving a third in holes to the next man, or he may play against two, who have the choice of their balls against him. This does not introduce the element of handicap as for a prize, but it is merely a means of making up the difference in match play between two or three golfers. Beyond a half one never went; "a stroke a hole" classed one as a duffer. But when golf was at its best, so well was the player's game known that a foursome could be easily made up to form a tight match. A good player would take a third-class player and play against two second-class players. And, oh, the fun displayed in many a match of this nature! What, however, must be done in young Clubs? All have not the enthusiasm necessary for devotion to the game, unless the prize element comes in. There does seem a listlessness among players for a time unless the filthy lucre element is introduced by handicap for prizes. Is Allan Robertson's plan—that all members of a Club should be put into different classes according to their varied abilities—not worthy of consideration? Only, who are to arrange the classes? That is not a pleasant piece of work, as even handicappers well know by experience. Yet, if Allan and Tom suggested this plan of classes when it was forced upon their judgment that a young Club must have some stimulus in the direction of prize-winning, might it not be tried? Hard and fast rules could not be laid down at first, but a Committee, above pot-hunting individually, might be drawn from all grades of players, who would, after consideration, be able to arrange the classes.

It is a pity—but it is undesirable—that handicapping has come to stay. In every newspaper where sport is chronicled, and in every golfing magazine, columns of handicaps meet the eye. The fine players with their +3 or

+5 will be often found near the bottom of the list, while an 18 handicap comes in as the prize-taker. If we admit that handicapping is necessary for the success of a young Club so as to attract its members to learn and take an interest in the game, what should be the standard from which the handicap is to be fixed, so that there may be a fairly correct estimate of the place of a golfer when entering a competition elsewhere? Visitors from various Clubs who happen to be residing for a month at a golf resort wish to get up a competition for prizes by handicap play. Now, though players hand in their handicaps from their several Clubs, that does not really assist matters, unless the standard is uniform. Now, what should that standard be? One would think that "par" would be a pretty uniform standard, but even the best player in a Club could not be "scratch" in that case. By "par" I mean that whenever a crack player (non-professional) can approach the hole from driver to iron the hole should be considered as done in three strokes from that point. With "par" there is no mistake on the one hand, nor a fluke on the other hand; and for every stroke short of "par" there will be at least two or three above "par." But that standard is too far-fetched and ideal for what one would call ordinary "scratches." If that were adopted, however, over all courses and with all Clubs, there would be a pretty uniform method for handicapping, so as to make matches with members of other Clubs. There is, however, with the "par" standard a formidable hindrance in the shape of the duffer—the very one who is to be attracted to play golf by holding out prizes to be competed for by handicap. For the round of eighteen holes most Clubs consider that eighteen strokes should be the maximum number of odds assigned to a player. Now, if the "par" standard were adopted, that number would be of little use in some cases. I hear the answer: "Let these work their way up till they can compete with the allowance of eighteen from the 'par' standard." But is it not just for these duffers that the handicap element is being introduced? By any arrangement, handicap play can never give a genuine enthusiasm for the game. Blessed were the good old days when the matter was unknown and uncared for! Now times are changed—and it seems that something must be done. Yet the matter is bristling with difficulties, in the removal of which the glorious game may be injured or destroyed. Would that golfers, sufficiently interested by the game itself in sterling match play, would return to the enthusiasm of the days of old when golf was at its best, before the filthy lucre element ever dimmed its lustre! Those were the days of rapturous foursomes, played by—

> The great of old!
> The dead, but sceptred sovrans, who still rule
> Our spirits from their urns.

ENGLAND v. SCOTLAND.

On Saturday, May 19th, when the Fifth International Match between the amateur players of the above countries came to be decided at Hoylake, the hope that England might score their second win proved ill-founded, for only two of their representatives were successful. Although the weather was not too favourable, more particularly after luncheon, when it rained heavily at intervals, play in several instances was of a high order.

Against his old opponent, R. Maxwell, J. Ball was seen quite at his best. He got in front at the third hole, thanks to Maxwell driving out of bounds, and, winning the sixth and ninth holes, turned three up. Pressing his advantage, he pocketed the four succeeding holes, but Maxwell then rallied, and, winning two of the remaining holes, reduced his leeway on the first round to five holes. In the afternoon it was give and take to the turn, at which point Ball had added another hole to his lead. He continued to play a strong game, and won the first point for England three holes later.

Between J. Graham and S. H. Fry it was ding-dong during the whole of the forenoon round. They were on level terms with a hole to go, but a superb iron shot gave Graham the home hole in 3. In the afternoon it was all to play for at the turn, but Graham then asserted himself, and won easily on the sixteenth green.

H. H. Hilton and C. K. Hutchison had a close encounter in the morning, the latter leading by a hole; but in the afternoon Hilton failed to do himself justice on the putting greens, and had to admit defeat without playing the last three holes.

F. H. Mitchell, the old Oxonian, justified his selection by inflicting an unexpectedly severe defeat on J. Robb. Out in 36, he came home in 40, and his lead of seven holes was thoroughly deserved. In the afternoon Robb showed something like his true form, but not a single hole could he wrest back from the steadiest of opponents.

The veteran H. G. Hutchinson and E. B. H. Blackwell halved their first round, and play was almost as close in the afternoon. Hutchinson turned one up, but Blackwell drew level at the eleventh with a capital 3, only, however, to see Hutchinson go ahead again in virtue of a splendid putt. The thirteenth was halved in 2, but Blackwell secured the fifteenth and seventeenth holes, and eventually won an exciting match by a single hole.

R. Andrew at the conclusion of the first moiety was two down to the 1905 Silver Medallist, the Hon. O. Scott, but in the afternoon he drew level at the sixth, and, forging ahead in brilliant fashion, won quite easily.

J. E. Laidlay and H. W. De Zoete halved their first round, and honours were again easy at the sixteenth hole in the afternoon. Laidlay, however, won the seventeenth, and, getting the necessary half of the home hole, was hailed the winner of another well-fought contest.

A. R. Aitken, like F. H. Mitchell, signalised his promotion to International honours by a fine victory over A. G. Barry, the 1905 Champion. Three up in the forenoon, he went right away afterwards, and led by no fewer than seven holes with eight only to play. Barry then made a brilliant effort, and kept the match going by winning the eleventh in 3 and the thirteenth in 2, but the end came at the next hole.

J. B. Pease, by winning the two last holes in the morning round, led J. G. Simpson by two at this stage. This advantage he straightway increased to four in the afternoon, but Simpson, by grand golf, had accounts squared at the turn. He secured the fourteenth and sixteenth holes, and, halving the seventeenth, gained an extremely creditable victory. Details:—

J. Ball (England) beat R. Maxwell (Scotland) by eight up and six to play.

J. Graham (Scotland) beat S. H. Fry (England) by four up and two to play.

C. K. Hutchison (Scotland) beat H. H. Hilton (England) by five up and three to play.

F. H. Mitchell (England) beat J. Robb (Scotland) by seven up and six to play.

E. B. H. Blackwell (Scotland) beat H. G. Hutchinson (England) by one hole.

R. Andrew (Scotland) beat Hon. O. Scott (England) by five up and four to play.

J. E. Laidlay (Scotland) beat H. W. De Zoete (England) by one hole.

A. R. Aitken (Scotland) beat A. G. Barry (England) by five up and four to play.

J. G. Simpson (Scotland) beat J. B. Pease (England) by two up and one to play.

THE AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP, 1906.

The above Championship, which was played at Hoylake on Monday, May 21st, and the four succeeding days, will long be recalled for the number of sensational matches in the early stages. A record entry of 166 testified to the popularity of the famous Cheshire links, but it was unfortunate that C. Hutchings, who had won the Championship four years previously on the same course, should be an absentee. Another prominent absentee was Lieut. C. K. Hutchison, who, after defeating H. H. Hilton in the International match on Saturday, May 19th, had to rejoin his regiment. The first round, which was taken part in by only seventy-six of the entrants, was decided on Monday afternoon in dull and breezy weather. Included in the number, however, were the holder, A. G. Barry, H. G. Hutchinson, and H. A. Boyd, the then Irish Open Champion. All three got safely through, but several other matches were wonderfully close. There were four which ended on the last green, and two were carried to the twentieth hole. The Hon. Denys Scott had a stern fight with C. B. Macfarlane. The latter should have won. He was one up with the last hole to play, and, after losing that, he had a short putt to win the nineteenth, when his opponent had the luck, in missing a putt, to leave him a stimie. He failed to negotiate it, and a splendid approach gave Scott the twentieth hole and the match. R. Andrew, the Scotch International, only disposed of W. A. Henderson by a hole, and a mild surprise was caused by the overthrow of H. W. De Zoete, another International, by C. C. Lingen (Sunningdale), who approached and putted splendidly.

Tuesday's play was full of surprises and hairbreadth escapes. Several of the younger and comparatively unknown men came boldly to the front, and more than one competitor considered to have an excellent chance of taking part in the final stages found his prospects ruthlessly destroyed. The surprises began early in the second round with the relegation of R. Maxwell to the ranks of the spectators by G. Spencer, a young representative of the Royal Blackheath Club. The outward half of the match was very even, and they turned all square. It was still all to play for with only three holes to go, but, putting badly on the two succeeding greens, Maxwell lost by two and one. After this nothing very unexpected happened until H. H. Hilton was easily dismissed by D. F. Ranson. Ranson played a fine game, but the ex-Champion putted badly. The great match of the day was between J. Ball and C. L. Dalziel. The latter made his only serious mistake at the first hole, getting twice out of bounds in the warren. He then gave up the hole. At the second hole the spectators were treated to a striking instance of Ball's fine spirit of sportsmanship. His ball was picked up by his opponent's caddie, but, instead of claiming the hole, the Englishman had the ball replaced by his opponent, and, cheerfully playing out the hole, had the ill-fortune to lose it. Inspired by this turn of events, Dalziel proceeded to play a wonderfully successful game, and Ball found himself three down at the sixth, Dalziel having taken three holes in succession in 3, 3, 4. At the seventh came a turn in the tide. Ball played a perfect tee shot to within five feet of the flag, and won the hole in 2. Dalziel was bunkered at the Far hole, and lost this also; but his brilliant short game won for him the ninth in 3. At the eleventh Ball secured another 2, driving to within ten feet of the pin and holing prettily, and he squared the match with a perfect 3 at the short thirteenth, where his opponent foozled his tee shot. At the fifteenth Ball regained the lead at last, but lost it again two holes later. Here Dalziel holed a twelve-yards putt for a 3 from the edge of the green. The match was accordingly all square with one to play, but Dalziel lost by pulling his second into the bunker guarding the home green. Both played well at every point, and it was a pity that both could not have won. Barry had also a narrow escape from defeat at the hands of G. H. Ballantyne (Peebles), and W. E. Fairlie had to play an extra hole before he could shake off R. L. Macleay (Portland, Oregon, U.S.A.). The 1905 runner-up, the Hon. O. Scott, was, however, somewhat easily beaten by C. H. Turnbull (Glamorganshire), and another English International in F. H. Mitchell fell before that most promising young golfer, J. L. C. Jenkins (Troon).

The excitement of the second round was more than maintained in the third. Barry followed Maxwell into the cold shades of spectatorship, being rather easily beaten by his fellow Cantab, H. D. Gillies, and Boyd, the Irish Champion, received his quietus from Lingen, the young Sunningdale representative, who played a sterling game in all departments. Spencer, in spite of his hard match against Maxwell in the morning, made the pace hot for Fry, who was not able to shake him off until the full eighteen holes had been played. The principal match of the round was between those oldest of opponents, Ball and Laidlay. Ball began badly by driving out of bounds, and losing the first hole, and, misfortunes coming hard on the heels of one another, he found himself four down at the sixth hole. As in his morning match with C. L. Dalziel, the tide then turned, for he won the seventh in 3. He, however, found a cop bunker on the right of the course with his second to the eighth, and Laidlay, who was very fortunate in escaping similar trouble on the left, captured the hole in 5. The ninth was halved in 4, but by grand golf Ball won the first three holes in with scores of 4 3 4, and the thirteenth was halved in 3. Laidlay drove into the bunker at the next, and Ball squared the match. A deadly approach gave Laidlay the fifteenth in 4, and, as the last three holes were halved in 5's, he won the match by a single hole.

Wednesday was another exciting day, although it was unpleasantly marked by a heavy downfall of rain. In the fourth round two matches were carried to the nineteenth hole, two to the eighteenth, and five to the seventeenth out of a total of sixteen matches. The surprise of the round was the overthrow of Fry by T. K. Ashton. The former was three up at the seventh, but he lost the next three holes in succession by weak putting. He again led by two at the thirteenth, but his putting lost him the sixteenth and eighteenth, and, after driving out of bounds on going to the nineteenth, he eventually gave up the hole and match. R. Andrew made a gift of his match to F. W. H. Weaver at the finish. He was two up at the fifteenth, but Weaver won the sixteenth in 4 with a long putt. On the seventeenth green Weaver very nearly repeated this performance, whereupon Andrew missed a shortish putt for a half in 4, after failing to be up with his approach putt. This proved a fatal mistake. After varying experiences at the eighteenth, Andrew failed to hole a very short putt, and, although he outdrove his opponent by thirty yards to the nineteenth, he pulled his second, and was short with a little approach shot, and Weaver, with another excellent putt, won the hole in 4 and therewith the match. D. Currie and C. E. Dick had a hard encounter, which ended in a one-hole victory for the former, his opponent being a little weak on the green. Lingen added further to his credit by knocking out T. M. Hunter, and H. G. Hutchinson overcame J. B. Pease by the steadiness of his short game. E. B. H. Blackwell's tremendous driving availed nothing against the steadiness of R. W. Orr, whom he had beaten at Prestwick the previous year, and that reformed cricketer, W. B. Stoddart, did himself much honour by accounting with comparative ease for the ex-Champion Balfour-Melville, who had himself inflicted severe defeats on his antagonists in the two previous rounds. J. Graham and N. F. Hunter had a very big "gallery" for their match. After the defeat of Ball, Graham, who had been playing good and steady golf, was the remaining hope of Hoylake. Hunter made an inauspicious start, losing the first two holes by rather wild play. He soon settled down, however, and a great struggle followed. He squared at the fourth, and was two up at the eighth, but on the ninth green, in attempting to loft a stimie, he holed Graham's ball and lost the hole. Homewards Graham showed the better form, and gradually wore down his opponent, finally winning on the sixteenth green.

Never, surely, since the Championship contest was inaugurated has there been such a remarkable series of matches as in the fifth round. No fewer than six were won on the last green, while a seventh was carried to the seventeenth, and only one was won with any semblance of ease. Such a record speaks volumes for the levelling-up process which has been taking place in connection with the Royal and Ancient game. One of the finest matches of the Championship was played in this round between J. Graham and J. Robb. The former was bunkered twice at the first hole, and lost. The next two were halved in 4 and 5, but at the fourth Graham squared by holing out a little mashie shot for a 2. The fifth was halved in 4, but Graham won the next two in 4 and 3, Robb driving out of bounds at the seventh. Graham was two up on starting homewards, and had a short putt for a half in 4 at the tenth, but a little bit of dirt on his ball prevented it from dropping into the hole. He had a beautiful drive from the eleventh tee, his ball rolling to within two yards of the hole, while Robb was about a dozen yards away. The latter, however, holed the putt beautifully, while Graham missed his short one, and the match was square. Graham made amends by holing a long putt at the twelfth and winning it in 3, and the next was halved in that figure. Robb then snatched a half in 6 on the fourteenth green by superior putting, after being in difficulties twice, and squared the match by good putting at the succeeding hole. The sixteenth was halved in 5, but Robb regained the lead by holing a difficult putt on the seventeenth green. On the eighteenth green Graham, after weak approach putting, had a four yards' putt for the hole and a halved round, but he failed to negotiate it, and Robb was hailed the winner by a hole.

The Sunningdale representatives were strongly to the fore in this round. Of the eight survivors three had entered from that Club. Hutchinson was put out by one of the three, E. A. Smirke, after a rather exciting game. The weather was no doubt against the veteran, who extinguished his chances by weak putting on the last green. Lingen, another of the Sunningdale contingent, threw out A. K. Hannay (Royal Liverpool). At the sixteenth a peculiar incident occurred. Lingen, in walking backwards, accidentally trod on his ball, and a question arose as to the penalty. If it were loss of the hole, the match would be square, but if loss of a stroke, he was one up. It was decided that the proper penalty was loss of a stroke, and, as the two remaining holes were halved, Lingen won. W. B. Stoddart was the other victim to Sunningdale prowess, but he did well to take the Secretary of that Club, H. S. Colt, to the last green. J. G. Simpson disposed of one more Hoylake golfer in F. W. H. Weaver, and Orr, after beginning none too well, accounted for Ranson on the seventeenth green.

An agreeable change in the weather took place on Thursday, the sun shining out with genial warmth. In the fifth round Colt and Robb won their matches more easily than expected, but the two remaining ties were not settled until the home green was reached. Smirke and Leathart took some time to settle down. They were all square at the turn, and this was still the position driving to the eighteenth hole. Smirke's short game proved the better, and he won accordingly. Much was expected from Simpson after his fine display in his first International. He turned one up, but Lingen promptly squared accounts, and then took the lead for the first time. He threw nothing away afterwards, and gained a not undeserved victory by the narrowest of margins. The "semi-finals" were followed with interest by a great crowd, whose exuberance was rather difficult to restrain. After starting in rather unpromising fashion, Robb turned three up against his fellow-Scotchman, Colt, and, although the latter pluckily contested the issue, he was unable to improve his position. The play in the other tie was rather in and out. Lingen led by three at the fourth hole, and again at the sixth and eighth; but Smirke, after apparently winning the ninth, discovered that he had played a ball belonging to another match, and so stood four down instead of only two. He won two of the next four holes, but Lingen re-asserted himself, and the end came three holes later.

The conditions under which the final rounds were played on Friday were most unfavourable, rain falling heavily shortly before the start, while a half gale blew from the west.

Lingen for a time was quite at sea in gauging the wind, and lost the first four holes. He did not, however, allow Robb to get further ahead, although he was unable to improve his position until the tenth hole, which he won in virtue of a neat little pitch. Three well-played halves followed, after which it was give and take, Robb finishing the round with four holes at his credit. In the afternoon, although the rain kept off, the wind blew with greater force, and some curious play was seen. The first hole was halved in 6. Lingen pulled his second tee shot, and his next was in the gorse on the left of the green, which lost him a stroke. Failing to hole a long putt for 5, he gave up the hole, and Robb was five up. After halves in 6 and 4, Lingen won the fifth hole in 4 by good putting. The sixth was an extremely difficult hole to play in the squally wind, and each player had quite a chapter of accidents. Lingen was out of bounds in the orchard from his drive, and, after dropping another ball, he was caught in sand, and afterwards had to play short, on account of the closely-guarded green. Taking a wooden club for his fifth shot, he again found sand on the right of the green. Meanwhile, Robb was awkwardly placed from his tee shot, and played out a few yards for a better lie. He was next caught in the bushes, and, playing out to the side, was too strong, and was near a hedge, which caught his fifth shot. His sixth was on the edge of the green. Eventually, after each had missed a short putt, the hole was halved in the extraordinary figure of 9. Two halves followed in 5 and 6, but Lingen got a hole back at the Punch Bowl, where Robb was twice bunkered. Both continued to play slackly on the homeward journey, but eventually Robb won by four up and three to play, and was heartily congratulated on winning his first Championship, after having twice been runner-up. MR. J. ROBB,

CHAMPION AMATEUR GOLFER, 1906.

MR. J. ROBB.

CHAMPION AMATEUR GOLFER, 1906.

MR. J. ROBB had been so long a prominent figure in the golfing world before he won his first Championship at Hoylake that it came as a big surprise to many when they found that he was then only in his twenty-ninth year, he having been born at Dunfermline in April, 1878. When quite a youngster, his parents went to live in St. Andrews, and there he quickly became proficient in the Royal and Ancient game. When a schoolboy at Madras College he practically swept the boards, and afterwards made his presence felt in no uncertain fashion in the competitions of the Thistle and St. Andrews Clubs. At this early period Andrew Kirkcaldy predicted a great career for him, and stated confidently that he was the finest putter in St. Andrews. From such a grand judge as Andrew this was praise indeed, but it has been justified. In 1895 he and his brother ("T. W.") won the Glasgow Evening Times Trophy when representing the Thistle, but previously in the same year he had flown at higher game in the shape of the Amateur and Open Championships. In the former he fell in the second round before W. Turpie, who had also learned the game on the classic links, but in the latter he gave a splendid account of himself, being bracketed thirteenth at 340 along with L. Auchterlonie, only two strokes behind the brothers Vardon. He also took part in the Tournament held later in the week over the new course, when he finished fourteenth with 182, ten strokes behind A. Herd, who won. In 1896 the Championships were held too far afield for him to compete, but he gave further proof of his golfing quality when over St. Andrews links he won with great ease the Dundee Evening Telegraph Cup, open to all Amateurs in Scotland. Muirfield, however, found him in the Championship arena once more, and he was runner up in 1897 to the late Dr. A. J. T. Allan, after one of the finest contests in the history of the Championship—the recognised cracks going down like nine-pins before youth as ably represented by the winner, runner-up, and Mr. R. Maxwell, conqueror of Messrs. J. Ball and H. H. Hilton, but conquered by the subject of our notice. To sketch at length Mr. Robb's career since then would take up too much space. Suffice it, therefore, that he was again runner-up for the Amateur Championship to Mr. Hilton at Sandwich in 1900, and twice Bronze Medallist—at Hoylake in 1898 and 1902. In 1898, he took first place among the Amateur competitors at the Musselburgh Open Tournament after a beginning which would have disconcerted most players. The week's golf at Hoylake had left several open cracks on his hands, and he topped shot after shot until he had got warmed up. The first hole cost him a 7, and then he topped twice going to the second; but a long third reached the green, and, with a fine putt, he took the hole in 4—one below par. "Now I'm right!" he remarked to the writer, who was his marker. "A 7 and a 4 are just as good as a 5 and a 6," and he went on his way rejoicing to tie with his partner (Mr. A. Lawson), and beat him with great ease on playing off over nine holes. Reverting to the Amateur Championship, at Prestwick in 1899, by which time business had taken him to Ayr, he fell before Mr. L. M. Balfour-Melville in the second round; at St. Andrews, in 1901 he lost by a putt in the third round to Mr. A. R. Aitken, after the latter had taken seven successive holes (from the sixth to the twelfth) in 24; at Muirfield in 1903 he was beaten unexpectedly in the third round by Mr. J. G. Craik (Carnoustie); in the following year at Sandwich he was beaten a hole by Mr. W. J. Travis, the Champion, in the second round; and at Prestwick in 1905 he lost to Mr. C. B. Macfarlane at a similar stage. He has four times represented Scotland in the International match against England, beating the late Mr. J. A. T. Bramston at Hoylake in 1902, losing to Mr. H. G. Castle at Muirfield in 1903, to Mr. Hilton at Prestwick in 1905, and to Mr. F. H. Mitchell at Hoylake last year. In the competitions of the Prestwick St. Nicholas and Glasgow Clubs, it goes almost without saying that he has won much kudos, and what these Clubs think of him as a man was shown in no half-hearted fashion after his (shall we say) belated victory at Hoylake last year, which we trust will be the precursor of others.

THE PROFESSIONAL INTERNATIONAL MATCH.

England v. Scotland.

This annual twelve a-side match was decided at Muirfield on Monday, June 11th, in singles and foursomes, the former gaining their first victory in the contest with unexpected ease. In the two previous years the match had been drawn, but in the inaugural year at Prestwick the Scotch professionals won by a single point. The conditions were almost ideal, and a large company followed the first two matches, in which J. Braid was opposed to J. H. Taylor, and A. Herd to H. Vardon. The leaders, who were in fine form, began with two steady halves in 3 and 4, but Braid won the third hole, thanks to Taylor being short with his approach putt. Braid increased his advantage at the seventh hole, although he had been in the rough off the tee, and turned two up. By a deft little pitch to the short tenth hole Taylor succeeded in getting a 3 and narrowing the gap, and he drew level three holes later, when Braid missed a two yards' putt. Braid, however, again went ahead at the fifteenth hole, which he had in 3, in virtue of a good run up, and, as the three remaining holes were halved, the first point was credited to Scotland.

The game between Herd and Vardon proved quite as close, and here also victory went to the Scotchman. On the merits of the play, however, a halved match would have been the best result, but a stimie laid Vardon at the ninth hole to all intents and purposes cost him the match. He played brilliant golf for the outward half, his only mistake being a pulled approach into the ditch guarding the second green, which allowed Herd to "draw first blood." Vardon, however, at once squared accounts, and, winning three of the five succeeding holes, looked like turning three holes to the good, when Herd laid him a stimie, which he failed to screw his ball round. Coming home Vardon made his first slip on the putting green of the twelfth hole, and it cost him one of his lead. He also sliced his iron shot to the fourteenth hole, and Herd, getting down in 3, wiped out his deficit. A long putt for a 3 saw him go ahead at the fifteenth hole, and, holding on to his advantage, he, like Braid, won by a single hole.

J. White failed to touch his best form against E. Ray, and was unlucky also, inasmuch as he was laid stimies at the fourth, fifth, and twelfth holes. He, however, by a plucky effort, brought the game to the home green, where Ray was hailed the winner by a hole.

R. Thomson, the whilom Romford professional, was seen to great advantage against T. Vardon. At the turn he had four holes in hand, and, although Vardon won the tenth and eleventh holes, Thomson reasserted himself, and won on the fifteenth green.

T. Yeoman, who was called upon to take the place in the Scotch side resigned at the eleventh hour by A. Kirkcaldy, led for a time against R. Jones, but the latter, winning the seventh, eighth, and ninth holes, turned two up, and eventually won comfortably.

The veteran B. Sayers was quite at his best against A. H. Toogood. His short game was characterised by great accuracy, and, with the fine score of 63 for sixteen holes, he forced his opponent to admit defeat.

J. Kinnell for once in a way was off his putting against T. Williamson. Indeed, he did not win a hole until he got down in 3 at the fifteenth, and so reduced his leeway to three holes; but, although he won the long sixteenth hole brilliantly in 4, the effort came too late.

At this point the Scotch professionals led by one point, but, as their five remaining players were all defeated, they found themselves four points down at the close of the singles.

The foursome match in which Braid and Herd met Taylor and Vardon was, of course, the event of the afternoon, but the Scotchmen found the tables quite turned upon them. Taylor drove against Herd, who threw away the first hole by pulling into a bunker, and the Englishmen's superior approaching enabled them to win the second and third holes also, the latter in a fine 3. Then followed six halved holes, but the Scotchmen had to thank a stimie for not losing the ninth hole. The tenth hole was halved, but Taylor drove into the bunker going to the eleventh hole, and, although Vardon recovered well, a splendid second by Braid deservedly gained the Scotchmen their first success. Their opponents, however, won the twelfth in 3, and, after an indifferent half, went further ahead at the fourteenth, when Vardon ran down a long putt for a 2. Another fine 3 ended the game in their favour by the substantial margin of five up and three to play.

The second foursome, between White and Thomson and Ray and T. Vardon, was not remarkable for good play, and they were on equal terms with four holes to go. Thomson then missed a short putt, and, as White followed his example two holes later, the Englishmen won.

R. Jones and A. H. Toogood also finished well against Yeoman and Sayers; but Kinnell and Duncan won easily against Williamson and Gaudin, of whom the latter played the long game recklessly. Their defeat was, however, at once avenged by Sherlock and Rowe, at the expense of Hepburn and Hunter, Rowe's putting being very deadly. The veteran J. Kirkcaldy and young Sayers, Scotland's last couple, combined admirably; but their clever win over Cawsey and Reid merely improved Scotland's position to the extent of a point, England winning over the whole day's play by six points. THE PRESENTATION.

THE GOLFING CHAMPIONSHIP, 1906.

It would seem as if there would be no finality to the entry list for the blue ribbon of the Royal and Ancient game, and things have come to such a pass because of the vain-gloriousness of second-rate professionals and amateurs, who annually cumber the field, that the qualifying test, which it was recently decided shall be set the entrants for this year's contest, has been rendered necessary. With a record entry last year of 183, of whom only the veteran A. Kirkcaldy and Mr. D. S. Froy failed to answer to their names, it was imperative that the competition, held at Muirfield after an interval of five years, should for the third year in succession be prolonged over three days, and, although a start was made as early as nine o'clock on Wednesday, June 13th, it was not until eleven hours later that the first round was concluded. The conditions, overhead and underfoot alike, left little to be desired, a variable south-easterly breeze in no way hampering the players. J. Of those considered to be in the running, it fell to that fine, but unlucky, player, Mr. J. Graham, Royal Liverpool G.C., to set the pace, and right well did he do so. Not until playing the eleventh hole did he make the semblance of a mistake. Then he sliced his second into the bunker to the right of the green, and lost at least one, and probably two, strokes. But by holing three successive holes in 3, he amply atoned for his slip, and, with fair figures for the three remaining holes, he lowered the record of 72, established for the course by A. Herd in 1896, by one stroke. Two couples behind Mr. Graham came J. H. Taylor, whose play for eight holes was beyond reproach, but he dropped a stroke by overrunning the ninth green with his approach. Coming home he fell foul of the bunker guarding the twelfth hole, and registered his only 6, and, taking three putts on the home green, completed the round in 77. His partner, T. G. Renouf, whose putting was quite good, "went one better" with 76. In view of his splendid play at Musselburgh on the previous Thursday, much was expected from H. Vardon, but he made a most inauspicious start. Although he reached the first green off the tee, he required no fewer than four strokes more to get down, and lost other two strokes at the second hole, where he put his second into the bunker, and afterwards missed a short putt. Nothing daunted, he thereupon registered no fewer than eight consecutive 4's. Two 5's and a 4 were followed by a 2 and a 4, but a too strong approach to the sixteenth cost him a stroke, and he finished in 77. That promising player, G. Duncan, by splendid golf, came near to equalling Mr. Graham's record score. Out in 36, all went well with him until the last hole, where he required three putts, and finished in 73. The 1904 Champion, J. White, reached the turn in 37, but, dropping several strokes on the greens thereafter, swelled his total to 78, a figure that was not long after equalled by D. Kinnell. A. Massy, the French crack, turned in 39, although he required a 7 to the long fifth hole, where he was bunkered, and came home steadily in 37, thus keeping well in the running. T. Vardon emulated him, but he also had a bad hole, the eighteenth costing him a 6. Another likely candidate in R. Thomson went out in 37, and came home in 39; but Mr. J. Ball and E. Ray, failing to find the strength of the greens, each recorded 80. Two local amateurs in Mr. R. H. Whitecross and Mr. H. Watt came strongly into evidence with rounds of 74. The former went out in 39, and came home in 35, aided by 3's at the tenth and fourteenth holes and a 2 at the fifteenth, and the latter, by the steadiest of play, registered 37 for each half. B. Sayers, jun., gave further proof of his undoubted promise with a 75 (36 out and 39 in), and in his immediate wake T. Williamson handed in a 77, as E. Gray had done before him. On his own green much was expected from Mr. R. Maxwell, and he, during the greater part of the round, did not belie expectation. Turning in 35, he kept on the even tenour of his way until the fifteenth hole. Then a tremendously long tee shot had the ill-fortune to overrun the green into the bunker, and, although a brilliant recovery laid his ball barely fifteen inches from the hole, a too hurriedly played putt failed to find the mark. Palpably upset, he then sliced his second to the sixteenth, and, failing to reach the green with his third, dropped a stroke. Bad putting at the seventeenth cost him another stroke, but, with a 4 to the home hole, he finished in 78, and so tied with G. Duncan for second place. This excellent return was also equalled, somewhat unexpectedly, by P. Hills, the North Manchester professional, who went out in 38 and came home in 35. A 77 by P. J. Gaudin was the best return for quite a long time, and then came another 77 by Currie, of Dornoch. Braid, who did not start till about five o'clock, took a large company with him. He began rather luckily, a pulled iron shot jumping the bunker to the south of the green, after which he holed a long putt for a 3. Par 4's followed at the two succeeding holes, but, requiring three putts upon the fourth, seventh, eighth, and ninth greens, he took 40 to the first moiety. He began the inward half with a couple of 4's, but he was so badly bunkered approaching the twelfth green that he required two strokes to extricate his ball, and, dropping a stroke on the green, marred his card with a 7. This, however, proved his last mistake, and a splendid 3 to the seventeenth hole enabled him to draw level with his great rivals, Taylor and H. Vardon. A 76 by J. D. Edgar, a 77 by J. Nelson, and a 74 by R. Jones were the only good scores returned afterwards. Herd, who ought to have started last, but was sent off about three o'clock with H. R. Chestney, did badly going out, and, failing to improve his position, put himself thus early out of the running with a score of 81.

Thursday was another splendid golfing day. The wind blew steadily from the east, and the light was subdued. Mr. Graham, from whom much was expected in view of his record score on the previous day, started steadily, if not brilliantly; but he sliced his second and third shots to the fifth hole, and, failing to lay his run-up dead, took 6 to hole out. He also dropped a stroke at the ninth, and turned in 40. Coming home, 5's crept into his card at the twelfth and thirteenth holes, and a too strong approach to the sixteenth was responsible for his taking a 6 there. His round was 79. T. G. Renouf played a steady half round of 39, but J. H. Taylor, who partnered him, required two strokes more, his putting leaving much to be desired. On the home-coming Renouf registered a steady 38, but Taylor played phenomenal golf. Starting with a 3 and a 4, he took the difficult twelfth hole beautifully in 3, and supplemented this with a 3, a 2, and again a 3, a mashie shot laid dead, and two very long putts being the contributing factors. The sixteenth hole was steadily played in 5, but another long steal gave him the seventeenth hole in 3, and he finished with a 5, his inward half being the record one of 31, and his round 72. Although H. Vardon showed a tendency to get off the line with his tee shots, he pitched so well that he reached the turn in 37. There was little to find fault with in his play homewards, and, with 36, he, like Taylor, considerably improved his position, and tied with Mr. Graham for second place. G. Duncan showed a distinct falling off from his opening day's form. He failed to gauge the strength of the greens, and his slips at the hole side were chiefly responsible for his round totalling 78. D. Kinnell kept himself to the fore with a well-played 76, and that promising Kinghorn player, Binnie, handed in a 78. J. White, however, failed to do himself justice, but E. Gray had another steady round of 77. B. Sayers, jun., on the other hand, wrecked his chances by taking 87. He putted slackly, and was several times trapped going out. T. Williamson emulated Gray, and E. Ray showed something like his true form with a well-played 75. Mr. R. Maxwell's play was fitful. His outward half of 41 was disappointing, but coming home all went well with him until the seventeenth hole, where his approach ran into the bunker beyond the hole, and, with a 5 to the last hole, his card was 78. P. J. Gaudin handed in an excellent card of 77. R. Thomson recorded a 78, the blemish in which was a 7 to the fifth hole, where his approach lay hard against the wall; but J. Kinnell showed considerable improvement with a 75. Late in the day J. Braid took nearly all the spectators with him, and, save that he required three putts on the first green and missed a yard putt on the fourth, there was little to cavil at in his play until the home hole. This hole he played badly, and his round was 76. R. Jones was last of the cracks to finish shortly before eight o'clock. Out in 38, he began his second half with 4 4 5 4 4 4, a putt being missed at the fourteenth; but he came sadly to grief at the sixteenth. Slicing into the rough, he had to use an iron, and his ball was trapped so badly that he could not get it forward. Throwing discretion to the winds afterwards, he tried to get home with his fourth, but failed to carry the bunker guarding the green, and 7 for the hole disfigured his card. Two 4's completed a round of 78, which with a little care might have been two strokes less. Of the seventy-two who qualified, the following occupied the leading positions:—J. H. Taylor, 149; Mr. J. Graham and H. Vardon, 150; Mr. R. Maxwell and G. Duncan, 151; R. Jones, 152; J. Braid and T. G. Renouf, 153; and D. Kinnell, R. Thomson, E. Gray, T. Williamson, and P. J. Gaudin, 154. Lowering clouds and a cold east wind seemed to predict a breaking down of the weather, but after noon the sun shone out, although the wind continued to remain a factor to be reckoned with. It fell to R. Jones to set the pace for those still in the running for premier position. He opened steadily, and it was not until the fifth hole that he gave anything away. Then, however, he required three on the green, and dropped another stroke by pulling his second to the seventh hole. Coming home he had no fewer than four 3's, and his card of 73 made his aggregate the splendid one of 225. Mr. J. Graham and J. H. Taylor, who were partnered, took away a large company, who saw the Richmond professional quite at his best during the greater part of the round. Not the semblance of a slip did he make until the eighth hole, when he took three putts. He, however, got the lost stroke back at the eleventh, where he holed a six yards putt for a 3. All went well with him for the next three holes, but he dropped strokes at three out of the four remaining holes, and finished in 75. Mr. Graham gave him a good game, and turned in 38. Like Taylor, he got down a long putt on the eleventh green, but threw two strokes away at the short hole, where he misjudged distance, and was badly bunkered. He was again bunkered at the home hole, and his round was 78. Mr. Maxwell putted badly until near the close of his round, but then he came away in something like his true form, and finished in 77. H. Vardon has seldom played such an in-and-out round, his game being characterised by mistakes, which were not altogether atoned for by occasional brilliancy. He finished in 77. T. G. Renouf again played steadily, his round being 76. E. Gray also strenthened his chance of securing a place in the prize list with a steady 78. Meanwhile a great crowd had gone out to see how Braid was faring. Although he was bunkered approaching the second hole, and again from the fourth tee, he recovered well in each case, and completed his outward half in 37. After opening his homeward journey with two 4's, he got down a long putt for a 3 at the twelfth, but just when he seemed likely to hand in a wonderful card he dropped strokes on the sixteenth and seventeenth greens, and swelled his score to 74. The result of the forenoon's play was, therefore, that Taylor still held pride of place with 224, followed in order by Jones, 225; H. Vardon and Braid, 227; Mr. Graham and Mr. Maxwell, 228; and T. G. Renouf, 229.

Charming weather favoured the players during the greater part of the final round, but, with the putting greens getting keener every minute under the influence of the sun, strokes were frequently thrown away. Jones began steadily, but after his second to the fourth hole had been bunkered, he showed signs of "cracking," and, dropping strokes on the fifth, sixth, and ninth greens, turned in 42. He did little better coming home, and his score of 83 was recognised as having extinguished his chances. Taylor started in a fashion that augured badly for him. With a pulled tee shot to the first hole, he was so badly bunkered that he headed his card with a 5, and, doing little to improve his position, turned in 41, as against Mr. Graham's 39, the latter having played good, steady golf. Taylor got the tenth in 3 to Mr. Graham's 4, but, after overrunning the eleventh green with his second, took three putts. He dropped strokes at the two succeeding holes, and then pitched into the bunker at the fourteenth. This caused him to take a 5, and enabled Mr. Graham to draw level with him. Taylor, however, went ahead at the next hole in virtue of a good 3, Mr. Graham having putted badly for a 4 after reaching the green from the tee, and they were still separated by a stroke when they drove to the home hole. Taylor hooked his drive far into the rough, but, risking the long carry with a brassie, he sent a fine ball straight on the pin, and snatched a sensational 3 to

Mr. Graham's more orthodox 4. Their aggregates were: Taylor, 304; Mr. Graham, 306. Mr. Maxwell, like Jones, fell considerably away, his putting costing him several strokes. Out in 41, he took 42 to come home, and so swelled his aggregate to 311. H. Vardon began well with a 3, but required three putts on the second and fifth greens. Hard luck was his portion going to the seventh hole, a long tee shot lodging in a ditch very little off the line. He made a wonderful recovery, but afterwards missed a short putt for a 4. His drive to the ninth was also bunkered, but he reached the green with his iron, and ran down a long putt for a 3. He played the first four holes coming in steadily, but in trying for a 2 at the fourteenth ran out of holing, and took a 4. He got the remaining holes in par figures, and finished in 78, his aggregate being thus 305, or one stroke worse than Taylor. Immediately behind him, Renouf did badly with an 83, but W. Toogood finished strongly with a 71, which equalled Mr. Graham's record for the course. He, however, had done so badly in his previous rounds that it did not do him much good. His details were: Out, 3 6 4 4 5 3 4 3 4 = 36; in, 3 4 3 4 4 3 5 5 4 = 35. All now depended upon what J. Braid would do. Aided by a little luck at the outset, inasmuch as his tee shot jumped the bunker to the left of the green, he began with a 3, and continued to do well until he dropped a stroke on the ninth green. Coming home he played splendidly at every point, and soon made his retention of the Championship for a second term assured. Helped by a long putt for a 3 at the seventeenth, he finished in 73, and his aggregate of 300 easily won him the coveted honour for the third time, his first victory having been gained on the same course in 1901. His inward play was that of a Champion, and he richly deserved the ovation he received from the large company that awaited him at the home hole. The Championship Cup and Medal and other prizes were afterwards presented by Mr. A. R. Paterson, the old Oxford oarsman, now Captain of the Honourable Company of Edinburgh Golfers, who, in his introductory remarks, asked the professionals, through their Association, to aid the delegates of the Clubs who undertake the management of the competition in devising some scheme whereby only those players who are of championship calibre may be seen competing in future in the leading golfing event of the year. With this function terminated a long drawn-out contest, the management of which, albeit it must have been a severe strain upon the Honourable Company's officials, reflected the utmost credit upon them. Subjoined are the five best cards, the order of the prize list, and scores:—

WHAT IS A FIRST-CLASS COURSE?

By Mr. John Anderson.

To venture an opinion on this subject must seem rather a tempting of golfing providence, for, if there be great disagreement as to the best golf holes, how much greater must the difficulty be to indicate even in a very general way the requirements of a course? The subject seems not to have been more than touched upon. Willie Park, J. H. Taylor, and others have all given expression to their views, but nothing in the way of setting up a standard seems to have been attempted, and yet how desirable it is that there should be a recognised test.

Opinions from even the very foremost players on existing courses require to be received with great caution. Few give reasons for the faith that is in them, and their judgment is frequently prejudiced by associations, pleasurable or otherwise. Every golfer has his favourite course, and it does not follow that, because he is a good player and that is his favourite, the course is a good one. As a matter of fact, some courses which have supplied the worst possible test of golf have provided very great enjoyment to golfers. First-class golf and enjoyment are not always one and the same thing. For this reason it seems preferable to attempt to conjure up an ideal course rather than to criticise an existing one.

What is wanted is that a test shall be provided for every variety of stroke, that good strokes will be rewarded and bad ones punished, and that no particular style of play shall be unduly favoured. For example, a course where every hole is of the drive and pitch order cannot be regarded as first class, nor one where a good tee shot will invariably find a hazard, nor one where the player must pitch up all his approaches. Given all other things equal, the man who plays the biggest as well as the best game ought to win, and therefore a long driver should have a certain advantage because of his proficiency in this respect, but not such advantage as to give him an undue preference over his less-favoured fellows.

Such remarks are very easily made, and, while the theory may be good, it is extremely difficult to adapt natural conditions to suit them, because natural conditions are always varying—weather, state of the green, conditions of the ground. But against this it is to be remembered that golf is a game, and one of the requisites of a game is a certain element of chance, and if one could come to a fair conclusion as to what constitutes a good test of golf—just as the Royal Caledonian Curling Club in the points game has come to a conclusion as to what constitutes a test of curling—the weather and other conditions might be left to supply the element of chance.

It is impossible to lay down exact measurements in yards, because a good drive on a hard and keen level course or slightly downhill will obviously run a great deal further than an equally good drive on soft, heavy ground or slightly uphill. The one stable element of measure is the length of carry of a good drive, and this on a calm day may fairly be put at 170 to 180 yards. But a course may be very well measured by its "par," taking "par" to be the play on a calm day of the best exponents of the game without mistakes and allowing two putts on each green.

Measuring the ideal course by its par, it is suggested that, of the eighteen holes, there should be two capable of being reached from the tee by any average (but not necessarily first-class) player in one stroke (say from 150 to 175 yards long), two holes capable of being reached from the tee by very long drives (say 220 to 250 yards), two long holes requiring two full shots and an iron to reach the green (say about 500 yards), four holes requiring two long shots to reach the green (say about 400 yards), and eight holes requiring various shots from a drive and a cleek to a drive and a pitch (say from 300 to 380 yards). Such a course, while undoubtedly giving an advantage to the long driver, provides a due proportion of holes at which the average driver may by accuracy place himself on an equal footing. Of course, if both be equally accurate, the longer driver will win; but is not that quite right? The par of such a course would work out at 72, or an average of 4's, and the total length would, on a level seaside links, be about 6200 yards. The lengths in yards of the existing Championship courses are as follows: Hoylake, 6355; St. Andrews, 6333; Sandwich, 6143; Muirfield, 5949; and Prestwick, 5948. It will thus be seen that this ideal course approximates in length to these courses.

Hazards have not been taken into account at all, but it is needless to say that each hole should be good after its kind and properly guarded by hazards, and provide a sufficient test of skill. Hazards should not entail greater punishment for a bad shot than loss of one stroke, apart from loss of distance.

Further, the first hole or two should be comparatively easy, so as to permit of a player "getting into his stride" before taxing his utmost skill, and not fewer than the last three holes should be fairly difficult, so as to provide an interesting finish to a match where matches have to be played.

THE IRISH AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP, 1906.

LAST year's Irish Native Championship, held at Dollymount on May 30th and the three succeeding days, proved one of the most interesting of the series, a field of fifty-two throwing down the gauntlet to the holder (F. B. Newett), who had also won in 1902. Among these was the then Irish Open Champion (H. A. Boyd), from whom much was expected. The confidence of his supporters, however, seemed slightly misplaced when he only just pulled through in the second round from H. A. Upton (Royal Dublin) by holing a steal from the edge of the home green. In this round, the youthful A. D. La Touche (Portmarnock) unexpectedly defeated the holder with considerable ease, but it must be confessed that the latter was quite off his game. None the less is the victor a player of promise, as his performances in the two succeeding rounds amply proved. Another ex-Champion in R. G. N. Henry also succumbed at this stage, but only after an extra hole had been played, his conqueror being L. Martin (Royal Dublin). In the third round, which was decided in rather unfavourable weather on Thursday morning, J. R. MacDonald, a Dublin University handicap player, sprung a surprise at the expense of W. C. Pickeman, of Portmarnock fame, and G. W. F. Kelly beat ex-Champion W. H. Boyd with something in hand. In the afternoon MacDonald fell an easy prey to H. A. Boyd, but Kelly beat H. E. Reade, the triple ex-Champion, after an exciting finish by a putt, the others to qualify for the "semi-finals" being H. M. Cairnes and La Touche. The play on Friday was perhaps the least interesting of the week, Boyd easily accounting for Kelly, while La Touche fell completely to pieces against Cairnes, and was beaten as early as the twelfth hole. The final tie on Saturday, however, proved exceptionally exciting. Despite the fact that he was laid stimies at the second and third holes in the morning round, Cairnes was two up at the eleventh hole, but Boyd then found his form, and finished the round with a lead of three holes. In the afternoon Boyd straightway increased his advantage, and, after some interesting exchanges, was two up at the fifteenth hole. He then had the ill-fortune to break his iron, when playing from a bunker, but Cairnes threw away his opportunity by moving his ball while addressing it on the putting green, and the hole was halved in 7. Cairnes, however, pocketed the two remaining holes, and out they had to go again. The nineteenth hole was halved, but Boyd won at the next by holing a useful putt, and so secured his third Irish Championship. Details:

IRISH OPEN AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP, 1906.

In virtue of his grand play in the stroke competition, which preceded the Championship, held at Portrush, on Tuesday, September 4th and the four succeeding days, H. H. Barker, the Yorkshire Champion, started a hot favourite for the big event. H. W. Beveridge (Ashford Manor), H. E. Reade (Irish Native ex-Champion), H. A. Boyd (the holder), and J. F. Mitchell (the runner-up in the two preceding years) were also much fancied; while J. C. Rose, the Edinburgh Insurance and Banking Golf Club crack, did not lack supporters. Tuesday afternoon was devoted to the first round, play in which would have called for no comment, had it not been for the surprising defeat sustained by D. Forster, of Frinton, at the hands of R. G. Graham. The latter, who is the holder of the French Amateur Championship, was known to be a strong player, but nobody expected him to win by such a margin as seven up and six to play. The weather on Wednesday was not so favourable as on the opening day, a strong north-westerly breeze and occasional showers being unwelcome concomitants. In the second round results, with four exceptions, were "according to Cocker." The defeat of Graham on the last green by F. Easterbrook was quite unlooked for; but the victories of A. S. Johnston, H. D. Gillies, and H. J. Kerr over J. C. Rose, J. F. Mitchell, and G. Clark, were only in the nature of mild surprises. In the third round, which finished in a downpour, J. A. Shaw, of Troon and St. Andrews renown, hardly did himself justice against J. S. Worthington, the 1905 Irish Champion. The latter led all the way, and won on the sixteenth green. W. Matheson, H. E. Taylor, and G. R. Girdlestone also did well to win their matches against such strong opponents as W. K. Whigham, C. A. Palmer, and J. Livingston. But the feature of the round was the tie between A. S. Johnston and H. W Beveridge. Both were seen to great advantage, and it was all to play for when they lay almost equi-distant from the home hole with their approaches. The former then ran down a long putt, and so won his way into the fourth round. In it, however, he failed to find his form against Barker, and was beaten pretty heavily. Other prominent candidates who accompanied the Yorkshireman into the fifth round were J. S. Worthington, H. A. Boyd, H. E. Taylor, and G. R. Girdlestone. In the fifth round Worthington proved himself in fine putting form against Boyd, and the latter was forced to relinquish his grasp on the Championship without playing the last four holes. On the other hand, Barker had his work cut out to beat H. D Gillies, and even closer was the tussle between J. M. Tennent, a Merchiston schoolboy, and G. Lockhart, a youthful Prestwick St. Nicholas player of undoubted promise, the former winning by a putt. The other five matches were, however, won comfortably. On Friday morning the play in the sixth round was exceptionally interesting. Worthington and Tennent turned all square, but the former forged ahead thereafter, and won by two holes. Hannay led Taylor by three holes at the sixth, but lost the next three. They again stood on level terms at the fourteenth, but eventually Taylor won by a hole. In the other two ties, however, play was prolonged to the twentieth hole, Barker showing rare grit against Girdlestone by holing a long putt on the eighteenth green to keep the game going. He won two holes later. In the first "semi-final" in the afternoon Taylor turned two up against Worthington, but the latter improved afterwards, and won at the twentieth hole, thanks to a splendid approach. In the other bout, however, Barker chopped Mackenzie at the start, and, after turning six up, won by four and three. Capital weather favoured the final tie on Saturday. It was give and take to the turn, which Worthington reached one up. This was again the position three holes later, but Barker had secured the lead by the time the fifteenth hole was played. Worthington promptly drew level, but Barker ran off with the last two holes, and so carried over a useful advantage to the afternoon round. In it he straightway proceeded to strengthen his chances, and he stood four up at the fifth hole. Worthington, however, then had an innings, and turned only two down. The tenth was halved, but Barker pocketed the three succeeding holes by grand play, and, laying his opponent a stimie on the next green, was hailed a popular winner by six and four. Details:

MR. H. H. BARKER.

IRISH OPEN AMATEUR CHAMPION, 1906.

MR. H. H. BARKER was born at Kirkburton in 1883, but did not attempt to play golf until shortly before emerging from his teens. He, however, quickly became proficient, for we find him winning the Yorkshire Amateur Championship in 1904. In the following year he secured the scratch prize at his County meeting, but had to resign his Championship, only to regain it last year. His other noteworthy performances, prior to his hard-earned victory at Portrush, include his finishing first in the Open Amateur Competition, at Trafford Park, Manchester, for three successive years (1904-5-6), as also his winning of open scratch prizes at Ramsey, Timperley, and Blackpool in 1905, and at Portrush last September. He has since again been successful at Blackpool. He has also made his presence felt in the competitions of the Huddersfield Golf Club, winning the Woodhead Cup (scratch) in 1904-5, and the Dartmouth Bowl (scratch) in 1905-6. As a record-breaker, he has likewise distinguished himself, for he holds the following records: Ramsey, 73, and Portrush (extended course), 73, the latter being quite a wonderful feat, and one which justified his starting such a hot favourite for the big event of the Irish golfing season. How splendidly he justified expectations will be found set forth in the immediately preceding pages. Mr. Barker is a finished player at every point, and, given a continuance of health and strength, further honours should be in store for him in the near future.

MR. H. H. BARKER,

GOLF.

By Mr. Ronald Ross.

All hail to Bonnie Scotland, the nursery of golf,
The best of all games that the world knoweth of;
And health to her players of which she holds good store,
Whose skill at the game is known the world o'er.

We are first in our love for the Grand Old Game,
There's no art in life our love for it can tame;
For every day when it we play it wears an added charm,
That keeps the love we bear it ever constant and warm.

For long the sister nations from golf held aloof,
For its charms and its merits they ne'er put to the proof,
Till the magnet of a Balfour drew all eyes to sense and sight
Of the life-giving game in which his soul took delight.

Then England and Ireland went for golf heart and soul,
And through hazards and o'er bunkers found their way to each hole,
Until they made such strides in their knowledge of the game
That Bonnie Scotland trembled for her prestige and fame.

Now Old Ireland, defiant in her own island home,
Trails her coat in the dust to all golfers that come,
And the sons of Merrie England have not been idle the while,
For in many raids on Scotland they have carried off the spoil.

There's a flame in Scottish breasts that keeps alive the sacred fires
That were lit through the ages by their golf-loving sires,
And tho' the light of Bonnie Scotland may grow dim or grow down,
'Tis to rise up again with a lustre all its own.

The men of our nations are of the right sort,
For they like to be first in each pastime and sport,
And if hazards attend these it but gives them a zest,
For the sport that spells danger is the one they like best.

The golf once confined to Scotland's own door,
Is now widely played the whole world o'er;
And a son of our race came from over the seas,
To beat the pick of British golfers down to their knees.

If the men of other nations took kindly to the game
Then peace o'er the earth its mission would proclaim,
And the heads of each nation at war's arbitrament would scoff
While they settled their disputes with a quiet round at golf.

The generous Carnegie many evils would redress,
And get thinking men his wisdom to confess,
If with each free library he opened in the towns
He laid down a free golf links on their neighbouring downs.

For health with education should go hand in hand,
With the fusion of their forces life's prizes you command;
In a strong, healthy body put an educated mind,
And you raise up a dignified and powerful mankind.

To golf, glorious golf, many blessings we owe
As we travel life's round in this valley below;
A sound, healthy mind free from trouble or care,
And a strong, wiry frame that nothing can wear.

We may play all our life at this honest, breezy game,
And know nought of illness except in the name;
For when out of sorts, or a "little bittie" off,
Our cure lies at hand in a round of the golf.

Some men feel irate and their language grows hot,
Whene'er on the links the ladies they spot;
But no true-hearted golfer is so selfish or mean
As to grudge their share of pleasure to the "Nymphs of the Green."

Then welcome the fair ones, and long may they play,
To gain health and beauty on the links every day,
To garner their strength, and that vigour to command,
That will rear a race of stalwarts in our proud British land.

To the charm of the game many peoples now bow,
From the King on his height to the meanest below;
And other diversions they are fast throwing off
To join in the worship that's sacred to golf.

For golf owns a spell that holds us each day,
And holds us the stronger the longer we play,
Till the one world we know or wish to wot of,
Is a ground called a links, with a game they call golf.

We are first in our love for the Grand Old Game,
There's no art in life our love for it can tame;
For every day when it we play it wears an added charm,
Which keeps the love we bear it ever constant and warm.

BRAEMAR AND BEN AVON FROM THE COURSE.

THE FIRST TEE.

THE BRAEMAR GOLF LINKS.

By Dr. Brown, Hon. Secretary.

Those in search of a golfing holiday on a good green and amidst some of the finest mountain scenery in Scotland should try Braemar. Of the many inland courses which have been formed within recent years that of the Braemar Golf Club is interesting from several points of view. Though only five years old, a very large amount has been spent in bringing the nine holes into good condition, and the result is a most varied and sporting round. No other course in Great Britain can lay claim to all the holes being over 1,150 feet above the sea-level, and the bracing effects of the game are enhanced by the delightful qualities of the mountain air. Braemar lies among heather and pine-clad mountains, and the views from the course, which is only a few minutes' walk from the village, are equal to, if not finer than, any others in the district. All the holes except the ninth lie in the bottom of the valley, and, although one might expect them to be flat and uninteresting, this is not so. Natural obstacles abound, chief among them the Burn, which flows from end to end, the River Cluny, and one of General Wade's famous old roads. In addition to these, the usual heather and trees help to warn the golfer that a straight game is necessary. During the last two years a great deal of constructional work has been done. The greens, which are all laid with hill turf, have been enlarged, and some of the holes lengthened to suit the flight of the now-prevailing rubber-core. The longest hole is 458 yards, and the shortest 132, the total round being 2,464 yards.

The Club House contains rooms for ladies and gentlemen with the usual locker accommodation. The terraces in front are a favourite resort for afternoon teas the Club being now quite a recognised social institution. Competitions are held every month and tournaments are always in progress. Visitors are admitted as temporary members at moderate rates

The professional record is 31 shared by H. J. Harris and A. W. Butchart, both ex professionals to the Club. The amateur record is also 31, and is held by Dr E. D. Simson (of football fame). A first class professional is always in attendance from June to September.

The nearest station to Braemar is Ballater, some 17 miles away, but an excellent service of motor buses makes the journey an easy one. Another route is by coach from Pitlochry or Dunkeld. Ample accommodation is to be had in the village, both as regards hotels and private rooms. The Hon. Secretary will be glad to send fixture cards at any time, along with any further particulars required.

AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP OF INDIA, 1906-7.

In the Fifteenth Annual Championship of India and the East, held over the course of the Tollygunge Golf Club, Calcutta, on December 29th and 31st, 1906, and January 1st, 1907, history, in a way, repeated itself. In the previous year Lieut. Colin Campbell, a Scotchman new to the country, and a prominent member of Edinburgh University Golf Club, won the coveted honour at the first time of asking, and now in the event under notice we find him succeeded by a fellow-countryman and Club-fellow in A. Cormack, who only sailed for India last Autumn. The whole of the opening day, as usual, was given over to the Qualifying Stroke Competition over 36 holes, the sixteen lowest scorers being left to contest the issue afterwards by holes. The scoring was wonderfully good all round, and the following were those who remained in the place of hope out of a large and representative field:

A. Mann	169	K. B. Dunlop	173
A. Cormack	164	Major Hedley	174
Lieut. A. R. Macallan	167	N. M. Mitchell-Innes	174
R. Maclean	168	T. Drimmie	175
B. Sinclair	169	E. H. Townend	175
Lieut. C. Campbell	170	D. C. Scroggie	175
A. Brebner	170	H. W. Dick	176
Major A. A. Wolfe-Murray	172	A. B. Crole	176

In the first and second rounds of the final stage, decided on the last day of 1906, play was exciting to a degree, extra holes having to be played in three cases, while four other matches were decided on the home green. In the first round N. M. Mitchell-Innes beat B. Sinclair after standing three down at the twelfth hole, and D. C. Scroggie, who beat Major Hedley at the twenty-first hole, had to run down a very long steal at the home hole to save his match. In the second round A. Cormack and Major Wolfe-Murray proved splendidly matched. The former started none too well by losing the first two holes, but had drawn level before the turn was reached, and seemed safe with an advantage of two holes at the twelfth. The Major, however, promptly squared accounts, and the round was halved, Cormack winning two holes later. Lieut. Campbell cleverly accounted for Mitchell-Innes, but a third Edinburgh University man, in A. Brebner, had to admit defeat from Lieut. Macallan by the narrowest of margins. On January 1st Lieut. Macallan won the first "semi-final" rather easily from H. W. Dick, but the other bout resulted in a close finish between the holder and Cormack. The latter led throughout, but after standing three up at the twelfth, he was brought down to one at the sixteenth. He, however, secured his place in the final by halving the two remaining holes. In the crucial tie Lieut. Macallan gave Cormack a good game for ten holes; but he then fell quite away, and Cormack finished the first instalment of eighteen holes, five holes to the good. After luncheon he went further ahead, his approaching being much admired and eventually won his first Championship by eight up and seven to play. Details:

BYFLEET.—NEW ZEALAND GOLF CLUB, INSTITUTED JUNE, 1895. Entrance Fee, 10*l.* 10*s.*; Annual Subscription, 3*l.* 3*s.*; Number of Members, 350. Hon. Secretary—S. M. Fergusson, 58, Stanhope Gardens, London.

Green Record.—70, by S. M. Fergusson. The course, of eighteen holes, is about three-quarters of a mile from Byfleet Station (L. and S.W.R.), and two miles from Woking Station, at both of which cabs are to be had. It is laid out in what used to be a pine forest, but as the soil is sandy and the turf of excellent quality, the course takes high rank as an inland green. The round is over three and a half miles, long holes predominating, and of hazards, both natural and artificial, there are plenty. There is a commodious Club-house.

The golf course is in the grounds of the Khedivial Sporting Club, all members of which are entitled to play. Visitors can become members of the Sporting Club on payment of 1*l.* a month, and there is no separate subscription for golf. A silver medal, presented to the Club in 1888 by Mr. J. E. Laidlay, is played for annually. The round consists of twelve holes. There are two more holes, but they are very seldom played. The hazards are trees, bunkers, mud walls, ditches, &c., and the difficulties of the round are added to by the abnormal number of sandy lies and the keenness of the "greens," which are brown patches of puddled earth, over which sand is sprinkled daily.

There is also a course in connection with the Mena House Hotel, only an hour's journey from Cairo. It consists of nine holes (par, 35), and is laid out on a beautiful stretch of grass, in close proximity to the Great Pyramid. As the grass is, however, rather thin, players are requested to play in rubber soles. The hazards are sandy roads, mud walls, &c., and the greens are keen and tricky. Visitors, 10*d.* a day.

It adjoins the Great Yarmouth course, and a thirty-six holes' match can be played from Caister to Yarmouth and back. There is a Club-house on the links. Visitors, 2*s.* 6*d.* a day, or 10*s.* a week. The Calcutta Golf Club claims to be the mother Club in India, and in the "Good old days of the Honourable John Company"—by Mr. W. H. Carey—we find the following remarks:—"A Golf Club was established in Calcutta on the 24th March, 1839, of which Lord Ramsay was Captain." Records of the existence of the Club have been traced ten years previous to this, and it would appear that 1839 has been misprinted for 1829. Further proof is from the existence of a large quantity of brass buttons still in the possession of the Club which bear the Scotch Thistle, Golf Arms, and motto "Far and Sure," and the year 1829. There are two courses of nine holes each on the Maidan, it being too small for eighteen holes. They are situated in the centre of the town. The circuit of the old course is 3160 yards, and of the new course 3061, the par of both being 39. On approval by the Committee, temporary residents in Calcutta may become members of the Club for a period not exceeding four months on payment of a monthly subscription of ten rupees. They shall be entitled to all the privileges of the Club, except playing for medals, prizes, &c., and attending or voting at meetings or balloting for members; but this privilege cannot be claimed a second time in one season. Should a temporary member at any time wish to become a permanent member, half the amount, up to twenty rupees previously paid by him, shall, on his election, be treated as portion of his entrance fee.

SORRENTO.—SORRENTO GOLF CLUB, INSTITUTED MAY, 1895.

The course, of nine holes, is on an undulating plateau, about a mile long, covered with strong short-cropped grass, and, though hazards are scarce, the course is by no means an easy one. The site is one of the most picturesque in Southern Italy, commanding, as it does, a magnificent view of the two seas and of the marvellously beautiful coasts of Naples, Vesuvius, Ischia, Capri, and Salerno. The height above sea level is from 1600ft. to 1700ft., and, though the pull-up from Sorrento is a long one, a pleasant residence can be found for any golf-playing visitors who require a few weeks in the most salubrious air which the Mediterranean coasts afford in the suburban township of St. Agata, where cheap lodgings and board are always obtainable, and which is situated on the ridge, within a few minutes' walk of the course. In any case, however, the ascent can be made on donkey-back, if the donkey be a good one, in less than three-quarters of an hour from Sorrento itself. In October and November, and again from March to June, the climate is very enjoyable, and, owing to the almost insular position of the Sorrento hills, is cooler and fresher than that of any place in Continental Italy.

The course, of nine holes, varying from 130 to 360 yards, is on the Knavesmire, where the York race meetings are held, about a mile and a half from the city walls and station. The soil is mostly clay, which is apt to be soft and sticky in wet weather, and much too retentive of hoof-prints in dry. There are, however, patches of light and almost sandy soil, which support a considerable number of whins, and most of the holes are in these patches. The hazards are ditches, posts and rails, whins, and a pond. The Clubroom is in the Cross Keys Hotel, Dringhouses. Visitors, 1*s.* a day, or 5*s.* a month; ladies, 2*s.* 6*d.* a month.

Lawn Tennis, Cricket, Croquet, Badminton, &c., &c., are now all united. A new Pavilion has been erected for the Club adjacent to the old Golf Pavilion at the fourth hole. The course consists of nine holes, and the first four are usually played again, making the game finish at the Pavilion. The Hon. Secretary writes: "Any Golfers from home who may be passing South we shall be glad to welcome, and show what we can do. We are fairly proud of our links. The greens are well turfed. Excellent grass lies are the reward of the good player, prickly pear, cactus, and sand bunkers await the unskilful."
