"I have made a careful and exhaustive chemical examination of the water employed by you in the manufacture of your Aerated Beverages, and find it to be of exceptional quality and free from impurities. You employ the special precaution of sterilising the water by heat before using it for the purposes of your manufacture, and although this precaution is scarcely necessary in the case of a water of such purity, it undoubtedly introduces an additional element of safety from a hygienic point of view. The natural salts which the water contains probably retain the carbonic anhydride gas with which it is eventually charged, and for that reason the Aerated Beverages remain 'brisk' and sparkling long after they are poured out of the bottles. These salts, which are present in moderate amount, probably exercise a mild but beneficial effect therapeutically."

Pearson's Special Mixture of Grasses for Courses, 1/- per lb.; 17/6 bushel

After many trials of various species of Grasses, we have compounded two mixtures—one for Greens, composed of the finest dwarf evergreen Grasses only, such as are found on the best sea-side Links; another for Courses, containing additional Grasses of rather stronger growth. We are confident that no better mixtures can be offered than these. Each separate Grass is bought with an analysis of its purity and germinating power. The BEST times to sow Grass Seeds are from end of March to end of April, and the latter end of August.

Seeding, though slower than turfing, is FAR CHEAPER; and, in the majority of cases, an infinitely BETTER TURF can be obtained from seed than from Turf growing locally. Every Golf course ought to have its Nursery Plot of Fine Turf to run to for Green and Tee patching.

PREFACE.

THANKS to the hearty co-operation of old and valued contributors and Club Secretaries, I am in a position to publish as early as last year. I had hoped to do so in March, but the vast array of statistics which had to be handled rendered this impossible. Details of no fewer than 3698 Golf Clubs and courses are now given in the Directory, a number greatly in excess of those mentioned in other year books. THE GOLFING ANNUAL, therefore, continues to be by far the most complete work of reference on all pertaining to the game.

GOLFING ANNUAL.

RECENT DECISIONS OF THE RULES OF GOLF COMMITTEE.

THE following are the decisions of the Rules of Golf Committee upon points submitted to them since last issue :—

Q.—If a player's ball is not on the green, is he entitled to smooth down worm-casts on the green?

A.—The player may remove, but not press down, worm-casts within twenty yards of the hole.

Q.—(1) A. and B. play their balls from the tee in a match. On reaching the green, A., seeing a ball near the hole, says, "Here is mine, where are you?" and B. proceeds to look for his ball. After searching for upwards of five minutes and not finding the ball, he gives the hole to A., who picks up the ball without playing a second stroke. After both players have driven off from the next tee, it is discovered that the lost ball was A.'s, and the ball on the green was B.'s. Who was the winner of the hole? (2) When the holes for a competition under match rules have not been changed for the competition, can a competitor (in the absence of any Club rule) be disqualified for having on the day of the competition previously played over the course and on the greens?

A.—(1) B. should have satisfied himself that the ball on the putting green was not his own. B. gave up the hole, and therefore lost it. (2) No.

Q.—The Dollar Golf Club advertised an open amateur stroke competition under handicap, for a silver cup and other prizes, to be held on September 22nd. Players to be drawn for starting at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.; players to give notice at which of these two times they preferred to start. Entries closed on September 15th. One hundred and fifty players entered. The draw was advertised in various newspapers, and it was mentioned that players could start at 11 a.m., 2.30 p.m., and 3.15 p.m. On the day preceding the competition the Committee decided that it might be impossible for 150 players to finish in daylight if the advertised times were adhered to, and they therefore resolved to allow players who were present earlier than 11 a.m. to start their round, with a view to facilitating the competition, but they did not advertise this fact. The Committee requested their Secretary to play his round early to enable him to assist in conducting the competition. The Secretary started at 8.30 a.m., and returned the winning score, and his partner, who had come from a distance to oblige him, won the third prize. No protest was made, but, owing to correspondence which appeared in the newspapers, the Secretary has returned the cup to the Committee of the Club to be dealt with as they think right. The Committee desire an opinion from the Rules of Golf Committee.

A.—The Rules of Golf Committee consider that in the stress of circumstances the Committee of the Dollar Golf Club, while acting with the best intentions, went beyond their advertised powers, but, as no protest was made by any of the players, the result of the competition should remain as already decided.

Q.—During the Autumn Meeting of the Rodway Hill Golf Club, a stroke competition took place on September 22nd, in which A. was a competitor. To the seventeenth putting green A. had played a good round, and at the eighteenth tee he made a good drive, which left him a comparatively easy approach shot. The eighteenth tee is always on a public common, which is frequented by boys and others, who steal flags and cause other mischief. The result is that the Club does not provide sand boxes on this part of the course, but it is the custom to place the sand on the ground. The tee that A. drove from was one that had been in use for a continuous Bogey competition for some days, and was very clearly defined by a thick white mark, and there was sand placed at the end. Evidence could be produced that others had driven from the same tee the same day. No metal discs are used on the common, but stones are used, and these are frequently moved by mischievous people. The continuous Bogey competition commenced on September 15th and terminated on the 22nd of that month. A. naturally assumed that the tee which the first competitor in this event drove from would be the one which the last competitor would drive from—all being placed on equal terms. Greatly to A.'s surprise, after he had driven he was informed that he had done so from the wrong tee, and in looking round A. saw one white stone, which he afterwards found indicated another tee, and which he is informed was the one from which he should have driven. This was situated 20 yards nearer the hole, and quite 20 yards to the right. On closer inspection he found two stones, but no white line. Being informed that this was the tee for the day, he withdrew his ball, teed up between the stones, and holed in 3 and returned a score of 72 net, which was the lowest returned. He is now informed by the Committee that he is disqualified on account of playing from the wrong tee. The decision of the Committee is craved.

A.—A. is not disqualified. Having played from an entirely wrong teeing ground, A. is permitted to play from the correct teeing ground without penalty.

Q.—A., B., C., and D. are playing in a two-ball foursome. A. drives out of bounds from the tee. His partner B. drops a ball on the tee, but in the act of addressing it he knocks the ball about 2 yards forward. B. lifts the ball and lays it down by hand on the tee, about 2 yards back, and plays the ball without penalty. Is he entitled to do this, or should he (B.) have dropped the ball again? If so, is there any penalty, or should his partner (A.) have played the ball where it lay, reckoning it as the third stroke? Or did A. and B. lose the hole through B. lifting the ball?

A.—A. should have played the ball where it lay after B. had played the second shot. B.'s moving the ball in the act of addressing it constituted a stroke. A. and B. lose the hole through B. lifting it.

Q.—The members of a Club were advised by circular that a competition would be held over a private course (by permission) on a certain date, on the arrival of two specified trains. At both hours specified a thunderstorm was raging. Two hours thereafter, when the rain had ceased, A., B., and C. turned up and were supplied, but under protest at the time, with scoring cards. They finished 1, 2, and 3. Were A., B., and C. disqualified by reason of their not starting at one or other of the advertised hours?

A.—A., B., and C. are disqualified for not starting at one of the specified times.

Q. (1) On the course there are some drystone dykes about 4ft. high, which are hazards. During a stroke competition heavy rain came on, which lasted five minutes, and some of the members ran behind the dykes for shelter and stood five minutes. As there were no other players passed them while waiting, should they be disqualified? (2) There was a block at one of the tees, and A. could not play until the pair in front had played off. If A. took shelter while waiting to play off, can he be disqualified?

A. (1) Yes. (2) No.

Q. The Committee of the Gosforth Golf Club desire to have your opinion in connection with the following circumstances, which arose during a stroke competition on handicap terms held on the Club course: (1) The lowest net score returned was 76, but several members reported that the competitor returning this score had been seen approaching the ninth green, which is immediately in front of the Club-house, and had pitched from various distances at least two or three balls on to the above-mentioned green before starting to play in the competition. The Committee on consideration disqualified the competitor. Some days after the disqualified competitor wrote to the Secretary that under Rule 3 (Special Rules for Stroke Competitions) it distinctly states that new holes shall be made, and stated that on the day in question a new hole had not been made on the ninth green. On investigation the Committee find that this information is correct, although the Committee had instructed the professional to prepare the course for the stroke competition. The professional reports in connection with this that he followed the custom of using his discretion as to where the holes were to be placed for competition play, and had altered the position of every hole except the ninth, and states that in his opinion the hole was in the best possible place on the green. Was the decision of the Committee wrong? If the disqualification was wrong, is the whole competition null and void? (2) Whilst investigating this matter it has been discovered that two competitors played over the course in the competition before the professional had altered any holes, but their returns were not near the winning score, consequently were not taken into consideration. Should they have been disqualified, and has this latter irregularity any bearing on the validity of the entire competition, or the Committee's decision in disqualifying the competitor returning the lowest score?

A.—(1) The Committee should not have disqualified the player. The competition stands as played. (2) If these two players started at a time officially sanctioned by the Club they are not to blame for the fact that new holes had not been cut, and therefore cannot be disqualified. Their action has no bearing on the first question, and does not affect the result of the competition, as they did not return winning scores.

Q. On the last Monthly Medal day two members were supplied with cards, and went down to the first tee at 10.15. They found that the two indicators had not been placed (they were lying in the tee-box): one of the members therefore placed them properly on the "tee," and then started the round. The same thing happened at two other tees—one being the eighteenth, which was reached at 12.15. After lunch the two members started for a second round, during which they found that the indicators at three holes at least had been altered, those at the eighteenth having been placed much nearer the green.* They therefore lodged an objection to the competition. Were they right in doing so, and what ought the Committee to do—cancel the competition or let it stand?

A.—The objection of the players cannot be entertained. When they found that the tee had not been marked out, they should have at once reported the matter to the Committee. The result of the competition should stand.

Q.—Does bent grass constitute a hazard—(1) when growing on sand? (2) when growing out of a bed of ordinary grass?

A.—(1) No. The sand is the hazard, and therefore the club may not be grounded. (2) No. But the club must not be grounded, nor must the grass be otherwise moved, if in either of these ways the lie of the ball be improved.

Q.—A. enters for a Medal competition. Failing another competitor to play with, he takes a marker B., a member of the Club, and returns the lowest score. (1) Is B. a "special marker," Rule 4 of Special Rules for Stroke Competitions? (2) Is A. disqualified?

A.—(1) Yes. (2) No.

Q.—A. and B. played together in a Medal competition, A. being the Hon. Secretary and B. a member of Committee. B. played a ball into a place which it subsequently transpired was out of bounds according to a local rule, but both A. and B. thought it was an ordinary hazard, and played accordingly. The cards were checked by A. and B. B. was declared the winner, and the prize handed to B. Next day B. discovered that she had played incorrectly. (1) Is it too late to reopen the matter, and should the result stand as posted? (2) If not too late, is there any period after a competition when it is too late to raise a question with regard to any of the accepted returns?

A.—(1) B. is disqualified, and should return the prize which she accepted under a misapprehension. The prize falls to the next best score. (2) There is no fixed period at which the result of a competition becomes unalterable. Such periods depend very greatly on circumstances.

Q.—The fair way of the course is bounded in part by whins, bushes, rushes, and long grass. Is the long grass part of a hazard under Rule 31 (see def. No. 1 e), and can the club be grounded and any loose impediments removed?

A.—The grass is not a hazard, and if the club can be grounded without improving the lie of the ball it is allowable to do so. Any loose impediment within a club length of the ball may be removed.

Q.—A. and B. tied in a Medal competition. In playing off the tie some days later, A. played round the course in a foursome in the morning, doing her Medal round for the tie in the afternoon. B. played off her tie in the morning. Several new holes were made that morning before B. played her first round. (1) Is A. disqualified? (2) Would A. be disqualified in Bogey play? (3) If no new holes had been cut that morning, would A. be disqualified?

A.—The new holes appear to have been made in the ordinary routine of keeping the course, and not to prepare a fresh course for the tie, nor do the players appear to have been informed by the Committee that a special course had been prepared for them. Under these circumstances (1) A. is not disqualified. (2) No. (3) No. The Rules of Golf Committee are of opinion that A. and B. should have played off their tie together, and therefore competed under the same conditions of wind and weather.

Q.—In a Medal competition A., B., and C. tied for three prizes. It was mutually arranged that they should play off the tie on a certain date at 2.30 p.m., playing three balls. A. and B. were ready to start at the appointed time, and waited till 2.45 p.m., when they started as C. had not appeared. C. arrived later, obtained a member to score for him, and returned a card which ties with A.'s. Neither A. nor B. were aware that C. was competing until several holes had been played. Should C.'s card be accepted or disregarded?

A.—C. is disqualified for failing to start at the time appointed, unless it be proved to the satisfaction of the Green Committee that he had a valid excuse for being late, in which case the tie would require to be replayed.

Q.—In a stroke competition an odd number entered, three of whom went round together, each, of course, playing his own ball and marking the other's card. The odd player could have obtained a special marker. Two of these players came in first and second, but were disqualified by the Captain for playing a three-ball match. Is this right?

A.—As there is no rule on the subject, the players cannot be disqualified, but the practice of playing three-ball matches in stroke competitions is undesirable on account of the delay involved.

Q.—Is there any rule against accepting a score made in a Bogey competition as a record of the course?

A.—It is not the custom to accept scores made in Bogey competitions as record scores.

Q.—In a Medal competition A. marked each hole correctly on B.'s card, but in the addition made the total one stroke less than the score played. Is B. disqualified?

A.—No. The Secretary (or his deputy) is responsible for the addition of the scores marked on the card.

Q.—(1) If a ball has wholly or partially buried itself by dropping on soft ground—either on or through the green—may it be loosened in the hole in which it lies by being lifted and replaced in the hole, or in any other way, in either hole or stroke play? (2) If such loosening is not permissible, what penalty is imposed on a player who lifts and replaces in (a) hole play, (b) stroke play?

A.—(1) No. (2) (a) Loss of the hole; (b) two strokes.

Q.—A member protests against the validity of a Medal competition on the ground that some of the greens were rolled after some of the competitors had played on them and before others had done so. The Green Committee have no rule to the effect that green keepers' work should cease on the course during competitions, and were aware that such work had taken place on previous occasions and might take place on this occasion. The Green Committee decided that the competition was not invalidated. Were they right?

A.—As it appears to be a recognised custom of the Club to roll greens during a competition, the Green Committee appear to be justified in adhering to the result of the competition, but the Rules of Golf Committee consider that this custom is most objectionable. The duty of Committees in charge of competitions and golf courses is to arrange that players compete under exactly similar conditions as far as possible.

Q. (1) Two players arrived at 10.30 a.m., on the morning of a competition, prepared to play. The weather being stormy, they decided to spend the morning in the Clubhouse and wait for the abatement of the stormy conditions. They deferred taking out their cards until 1 p.m., when the weather was fine, and afterwards one of these players became a winner. Is he disqualified? (2) The question arises as to when a player becomes a competitor. Is he only a competitor after taking out his card, or is he a competitor immediately he is ready to play in the competition? If, of course, he only becomes a competitor after taking out his card, this would appear to allow members to evade what appears to be the very spirit of the rule.

A. (1) No. (2) Where competitions are held with no fixed times for starting, a player becomes a competitor when he strikes off from the first tee. Rule 13 (Special Rules for Stroke Competition) assumes that there is a fixed time at which a competition commences, with a list of the order in which players shall start.

Q. In a stroke competition a player returned a card with 7 strokes for the seventeenth hole, and a marginal note by the marker "in this hole lifted without penalty out of horse dung." The card was not dated. The player said that he was entitled to lift without penalty, and the marker took the opposite view. Should the player be disqualified (a) because the card was not dated, (b) for lifting the ball without penalty under the circumstances described?

A.—(a) As there was no doubt to which competition the card referred, the want of date was immaterial. (b) For lifting the ball as described the penalty is two strokes. Under the circumstances the Rules of Golf Committee consider that the player handed in his card with the intention that the question of penalty should be decided by the Committee in charge of the competition, and that the card should be accepted and corrected to show 9 strokes as the score for the seventeenth hole, provided that the conditions specified in Rule 10 (Special Rules for Stroke Competition) were complied with.

Q.—A. and B. were competitors for the Captain's Cup, in which competition each couple played a match of eighteen holes by going twice round the nine-hole course. On completion of the first nine holes, A. sent his caddie to the Club-house for wine, which he drank at the tee. In consequence he delayed the game for nearly five minutes. Is A. disqualified (1) for delaying the game whether in match or stroke play; and (2) for taking refreshment?

A.—(1) As this is apparently a match by holes, and as B. does not seem to have protested at the delay when it occurred, A. is not disqualified. In the case of stroke play, if a player delays more than the usual time for striking off from the tee he is disqualified. (2) A. is not disqualified for taking refreshment at any period of the game.

Q.—In a Medal competition, advertised to start at two o'clock, A. and B. start punctually. In consequence of the course being considered unplayable, the Committee decided at 2.15 to postpone the competition, and informed A. and B. at the fourth hole. They, however, continued, and A., having the lower score, claims the Medal. The Committee desire to know if a competition can be declared off even after the first couple have started.

A.—A Committee, if it decides that the course has become unplayable, has the power to stop any competition at any moment of its continuance.

Q.—Is it permissible for a player, when addressing his ball on the putting green, while keeping his left hand on the shaft, to take hold of the blade of his putter with his right thumb and fingers and so putt between his legs?

A.—Such a stroke as is here described is not a proper golfing stroke, and is not permissible.

Q.—On each side of the course through the green there are whins at almost every hole. A local rule provides that a ball in the whins may be lifted and dropped on the course not nearer the hole, under a penalty of one stroke. (1) If a player is amongst the whins and happens to be on permanent grass, is he entitled to move anything not growing and play as if the ball were not in a hazard? (2) How shall a player get over the difficulty where it is possible for there to be a doubt as to whether the ball is on permanent grass or not?

A.—(1) Yes. (2) In the absence of an umpire, it is often difficult for a player to decide for himself whether his ball is on permanent grass or not. But in such a case the spirit of the game demands that he should err on the safe side and not lift anything.

Q.—A. and B. were finalists in a tournament, and refused to play stimies. (1) Can they agree between themselves that the ball nearest the hole be played first? (2) Does any rule oblige them to play stimies? If so, which is the rule, and what is the penalty? (3) Is a player allowed to lift his ball, with the consent of his adversary, to avoid a stimie? (4) Has Rule 8, with the penalty of one stroke for moving the ball, anything to do with a person lifting his ball to avoid a stimie?

A.—As stimies are a recognised part of the game of golf, it is not permissible for players in a tournament to refuse to play them. (1) No. (2) Rule 5, taken along with Rule 16. The penalty is disqualification. (3) No. (4) No.

Q.—In the competition for the Dispatch Trophy (A. and B. opposing C. and D.), A. had to play a shot of about 100 yards to a blind hole, and was given the line of play by his partner, who stood with his club above his head and remained in that position until the stroke was played. C. and D. claimed the hole. Are they entitled to do so by any rule?

A.—No. There is no rule on the subject, but the action of A. and his partner is contrary to the custom of the game.

Q.—A. and B. are playing in a foursome against C. and D. in the Edinburgh Dispatch Trophy Tournament over Braid Hills, Edinburgh, in a gale of wind. At the fifteenth green A. and B.'s ball lies about a foot from the hole, and C. and D.'s ball two or three inches from the hole. A. and B. are there in three strokes, and C. and D. in four strokes. A. has taken up his stand to putt with his club two or three inches in front of the ball when the ball moves, caused by a sudden gust of wind, but it does not touch either himself or his club. A. stops and again addresses his ball, and holes out in four strokes. C. and D. claim the ball moved and should be penalised one stroke, making the hole a half in five, C. and D. not being asked to hole out. The question whether there is a penalty attached or not the players agree to leave to the Committee of the tournament to decide. C. and D. say nothing about claiming the hole, and all are under the impression that the hole at least is a half in five. A. and B. still hold their honour, and drive to the sixteenth hole without any challenge. After the match C. and D now claim the fifteenth hole, saying that A. played two consecutive strokes, and the Committee uphold their claim and award C. and D. the hole according to Rule 26. Is this right?

A. A. appears to have grounded his club, and the movement of the ball constituted a stroke, and not a penalty stroke. B. should then have played. Not having done so, A. and B. lose the hole. The matter was left to the Committee to decide, and their decision is correct under Rule 4 (paragraph 2) and Rule 26.

Q.—A. and B. meet C. and D. in the final of a foursome competition. A. and B. receive one stroke at the third hole. The match was halved, and the players started again. The side which won the nineteenth hole claimed the match. Is there any rule bearing on the matter?

A.—There is no rule on the subject. The conditions of the competition should have provided for such a contingency.

Q.—In a Medal competition A. and B. were playing on the ninth green, which adjoins the Club restaurant. A., who had done badly, thought of tearing up his card, left the green before B. had holed out, and entered the restaurant, from which he says he watched B. hole out. He did not delay the play. B. allows that he was wrong in holing out in A.'s absence, but A. did not inform him that he was leaving the green. The Committee disqualified both A. and B. Is this decision correct?

A.—The Committee are of opinion that neither player should be disqualified. B. cannot be held responsible for A. leaving the green, and, as there appears to be no doubt that A. marked the correct number of strokes played by B. for the hole, B. is not disqualified. The Committee see no ground for disqualifying A., as he did not delay the play.

Q.—In a four-ball foursome A. and B. oppose C. and D. In playing an approach shot about 20 yards from the hole, A.'s ball struck the pin which was in the hands of C.'s caddie. The other two players had picked up their balls. Is there any penalty?

A.—Yes; C. and D. lose the hole.

Q.—Prior to a stroke handicap competition the Secretary inadvertently placed a wrong handicap opposite a player's name on the posted list. The Secretary discovered the mistake on checking the cards. Which is the correct handicap—that fixed by the Committee or that posted up by the Secretary?

A.—The handicap which was posted up must stand.

Q.—After completion of a Medal competition and the scores had all been handed in, the Secretary on examining the cards discovered that the cards of two players were signed by one person, and, on making enquiry, ascertained that the following were the facts, viz.: Three players A., B., and C., took part in the aforesaid Medal competition. A. kept the three scores on a card. B. and C. did not keep scores. Cards for A. and B. were handed in both signed by C. The Secretary, while not impugning the accuracy of the scores, holds that the cards, not being signed by the marker, were not kept in accordance with Rule 4 of the Special Rules for Stroke Competitions, and should therefore be disqualified. A. and B. maintain that the cards, having been duly signed by one of the players, should have been accepted as correct, and that the Secretary had no right to make use of the knowledge which he subsequently obtained that C. did not keep a score.

A.—A. is disqualified because his score was not kept by one of his opponents or a special marker. B. is disqualified because his score was not signed by A., who kept it. It is the duty of the Secretary to take cognisance of any irregularity which is brought to his notice.

Q.—A. and B. play a tie according to match play under the impression that B. has two holes start from A. A. wins by 5 and 4, and they stop playing at this point, B. being satisfied that he has lost the tie. On returning to the Club-house they discover that B. had three holes start from A. Should the tie have been replayed, or, as they failed to replay it within the dates specified on the draw sheet, are both subject to disqualification? Further play in the competition has been suspended pending an opinion from the Rules of Golf Committee.

A.—It is the player's duty to ascertain his correct handicap before starting, and A. cannot be disqualified for B.'s error. By mutual arrangement, and with the consent of the Committee, the match might have been replayed, but, as the advertised time passed without any effort being made in this direction, the result of the match must stand.

Q.—In a recent competition A. and B. arranged to play together in the afternoon. A., however, played with C. in the morning. In the afternoon he played round with B., and marked B.'s card. B. was disqualified on the ground that A. was not a competitor. Both are full members. Under what rule is B. disqualified?

A.—There is no Rule of Golf by which B. can be disqualified.

Q.—In a foursome, after a player had taken his stance and grounded his club, the ball was moved by the wind. Is this a stroke under Rule 26, or is it a penalty stroke under Rule 27 which shall not be counted as the stroke of the player?

A.—Rule 26 provides for the case of a ball moving as described, but which has not been struck at. In a foursome this is counted as a stroke of the player, and the partner plays the next stroke. Rule 27 provides for the case of a ball which moves while the player is making his stroke, after having grounded his club, and states that the movement of the ball shall be counted as a stroke under the latter part of Rule 26, but abolishes the penalty which would arise in a foursome for playing out of turn.

Q.—A player's ball was in a bunker. He touched the sand with the shaft end of his mashie, with which he had played into the bunker, before taking up his stand to play it with his niblick. Is there any penalty?

A.—No, providing always that nothing has been done which might be construed as an intention of doing anything to improve the lie of the ball, or assist him in his subsequent play.

Q.—In a tie between A. and B., A. won the fifteenth hole. The sixteenth is a difficult pitch, and A., having the honour, insisted on B. playing first. Has A. this right?

A.—Certainly not.

Q.—In a stroke competition A. and B. played together. On the putting green A., who is further from the hole, addresses his ball, but is interrupted by B. putting out. A. thereupon objects. B. claims that his ball was a guide to

A. If A. wished B.'s ball to remain, had he the right to do so?

A.—A. had the right to play first, but would have incurred a penalty of one stroke had his ball touched B.'s.

Q.—(1) Ladies and gentlemen pay the same subscription. Some gentlemen members are of opinion that ladies may be passed on the green at all times, and that the Rules of Golf Committee have given a decision to this effect. Is this contention correct? (2) Should the members decide that they do not desire to pass ladies, would it be necessary and in order that the rules of the Club should state that no such right is recognised?

A.—(1) The Rules of Golf Committee have not given a decision that gentlemen may pass ladies on the course. See Def. I. (a) and Etiquette of Golf (Nos. 5 and 6) for the only rules bearing on the subject. (2) There is no necessity to make any bye-law.

Q.—In a match play handicap competition two players halve the match. Should they play the nineteenth hole to decide who is the winner, even if one of the players receives a stroke at the nineteenth hole, or should they play a proportionate number of holes to arrange the handicap?

A. There is no rule on the subject. The conditions of the competition should have provided for such a contingency.

Q.- (1) Play commenced at 10 a.m. in a Monthly Medal competition. A player starting as late as 1.30 p.m. found the course in excellent order, and returned the best score made in a competition this year. About 3.30 p.m. heavy rain set in, and one couple reported the fifteenth hole under water, rendering it impossible for them to hole out. The remaining competitors appear to have retired before reaching the fifteenth hole. Should the Committee have allowed the competition to stand, or should they have declared it null and void? (2) The ball lies three or four club lengths off the putting green. May dung or loose obstruction on the putting green be removed?

A.—(1) The Rules of Golf Committee are of opinion that the competition should have been declared null and void. (2) Yes; see Rule 17, first paragraph.

Q.—In a stroke competition a player's ball struck a hairpin, which entered the ball and remained fast. Should the ball be treated as having become unfit for play under Rule 34?

A.—Certainly.

Q.—(1) Two players returned scores unsigned by their markers. Should they be disqualified? (2) In a handicap competition a player handed in a card correctly signed, with the score correctly marked as played, but omitted to allow for his handicap. Should the card be accepted?

A.—(1) Yes. (2) Yes; as the card is correctly marked, the handicap may afterwards be adjusted by the Secretary.

Q. (1) In a Medal competition, owing to heavy rain, the last hole became completely under water, and a competitor was unable to hole out. What should be done in this case? (2) On the same afternoon a fresh hole was cut on the first green instead of the one cut in the morning, which was under water. Does this disqualify any competitor playing round after this is done?

A. (1) The Committee are of opinion that the competition should have been declared null and void. (2) The Committee are of opinion that when all the competitors cannot, owing to water, compete by playing at the same holes, the competition should be declared null and void. There is no question of disqualification for playing at a hole cut by the authority of those in charge of the competition.

Q. In a Club competition three members played together. The cards were correctly marked. One of these members won the competition, and was disqualified by the Committee because it has never been the custom to permit three balls to be played in a competition. The member was in ignorance of the custom, and there is no local rule on the subject. The Committee based their decision on the facts (a) that they have always disqualified competitors under similar circumstances; (b) that there is no difficulty in obtaining a marker. Was it right to disqualify the winner?

A.—As there is no rule on the subject, the players cannot be disqualified, but the practice of playing three-ball matches in stroke competitions is undesirable on account of the delay involved.

Q.—A.'s card is marked by B. in a Medal competition. After completion of the round B. made out a fresh copy of the card and signed and certified the same as correct, the original card being destroyed. Would the Committee have power and be justified in disqualifying A.?

A.—No, A. is not disqualified.

Q.—A player plays a ball on to a putting green other than the green to which he is playing. Without consulting his opponent, the player placed his ball to the side of the green, not nearer the hole, claiming the right to do so under the last clause of Rule 22. His opponent protests under Rule 8. There is no local rule on the subject.

A.—In the absence of a local rule the ball should have been played from where it lay under Rule 7. Rule 22 has no bearing on this case.

Q.—(1) In a hole competition a ball was played under wire netting, which bounded the putting green and also the course. The player pressed back the netting with his foot, which thus gave him a freer stroke at the ball. Was he entitled to do this? (2) Must a protest be lodged on the day of a competition?

A.—(1) The player was not entitled to press away the wire netting. (2) In match play a protest should be made before the players strike off from the next teeing ground.

Q.—A player's ball lay in soft ground. In playing out the clay or mud and the ball adhered to the face of the club. What should be done?

A.—There is no rule on this subject. The Rules of Golf

Committee are of opinion that the player should have shaken the ball off the club, without penalty, at the spot where the incident occurred.

Q.—In the final round of the foursome competition a player's caddie unintentionally moved his ball with his foot. The opponent claimed the hole as the penalty, and the referee allowed the claim. Since then the player has been informed that Rule 26 governs the incident. A ruling with regard to the rights of both parties is requested.

A.—The penalty was one stroke under Rule 26. The player should have protested before striking off to the next hole. The result must stand as played.

Q.—In a Medal competition, A. drove on to the green, but B. landed in a bunker, and had to play back. While he was doing so, A. holed out without B. seeing the strokes played. A. was the winner of the Medal. Should he be disqualified?

A.—A.'s action was most irregular, but as there seems to be no reason to suppose that A. played more strokes than he reported to B. his score should stand.

Q. In a stroke competition (1) a player drove a ball from a tee which he considered he would be unable to find. He then played a second ball, but subsequently found his first ball, and continued playing without penalty. (2) A player drove a ball, which he thought was out of bounds, and dropped and played a second ball. He then discovered his first ball was in play, and played it. In both cases the second ball was ignored altogether. What is the penalty in each case?

A. (1) The player did not conform to Rule 6 of Special Rules for Stroke Competition, and is disqualified. (2) The player did right—see latter part of Rule 32.

Q. Playing in a Medal round, a player drove a ball from the fourth tee, and was told by his caddie that it was out of bounds. He, therefore, dropped another ball, and played out the hole. In the meantime his caddie was trying, but failed, to find the ball first played. After driving off from the fifth tee, the owner of the missing ball discovered it lying in bounds. As he had holed out the fourth hole and driven off the fifth tee, he considered it too late to remedy the mistake, and completed the round, returning the best score. Did the player conform to the rules by acting as he did, and if not, what should have been done?

A.—The player did not conform to the rules, and should be disqualified. The Committee are of opinion that the intention of the second paragraph of Rule 32 is that a player who is doubtful if his ball has gone out of bounds may drop and play another ball, but that the obligation rests with him to ascertain whether the first ball is out of bounds or not as soon as he has reached the spot where it is likely to be.

Q.—(1) A player, whose ball was in a bunker, placed his clubs in the bunker before playing out. Is there any penalty? (2) (a) Should a competitor be disqualified because the marker has noted his own score on the margin? (b) Should a card be accepted, in which the score for any hole has been altered? The card in question is submitted for inspection.

A.—(1) No. (a) No; (b) Yes.

Q. A Cup was presented for competition by members of the Club. The donors allowed the Committee to fix the conditions. The Committee decided that the member holding the lowest aggregate at the Spring and Autumn competitions should be entitled to hold the Cup. A. had the lowest net score in Spring with a handicap of 24. Immediately thereafter A.'s handicap was reduced to 14. Should A. receive 24 or 14 strokes at the Autumn competition for this Cup?

A.—The Committee believe that the custom in competitions conducted under similar conditions is to alter the player's handicap as is considered necessary.

Q.—Is it permissible for a member of the Club, playing in a competition, to play round with, and have his card marked by, a friend who is not a member of the Club? No doubt exists of the bona fides of the marker.

A.—The intention of the rules governing stroke competitions is that members of Clubs should compete in couples. When a member cannot find a fellow-member with whom to compete, he should have the approval of the Committee in charge of the competition before playing with a non-member. If it has not been the custom of the Club to conduct its competitions in the manner indicated, it appears hardly fair to disqualify the member referred to.

Q.—In a Medal competition a player lost a ball in scrub to the right of the green, from the second stroke, and dropped a ball at the spot where the ball appeared to have landed, counting a penalty stroke. After playing out the hole, and before striking off to the next tee, the player was informed that when a ball is lost another should be dropped at the spot from which the lost ball was played. The player accordingly went back to the spot, dropped a ball under penalty of one stroke, and finished the hole with it, counting the result in the score. The player was disqualified. Is this right?

A. The player was rightly disqualified.

Q. The best ball of A. and B. is playing the best ball of Y. and Z., match play. At the seventeenth hole B. and Z. have picked up their balls, and Y. is within six inches of the hole in two. A., in playing his third, a pitch out of a bunker strikes Z.'s caddie, thereby causing Y. and Z. to lose the hole. Z. says to A., "Do you claim the hole?" A. replies, "No, I do not claim the hole." Whereupon Y. and Z. take the honour, and the four balls are driven. A., after consulting B., states that he was under a misapprehension as to the rule, and claims that the hole was lost by Y. and Z. when the caddie was struck, and that no action on his part could deprive him and his partner of the hole. Y. and Z. hold that as A. refused to claim the hole, and A. and B. allowed them the honour without protest, the question cannot be reopened. Who is right?

A. Y. and Z. are right. It is too late to claim a hole after the balls are struck off from the next tee.

Q.—In a foursome, A. and B. v. C. and D., A.'s ball was on the putting green, and the flag had been removed by the caddie. B. showed the hole to A. by placing the head of his iron in the hole. C. and D. claim the hole, because B. touched the ground with his club, though he did not touch the line of the putt. Should A. and B. lose the hole?

A.—No. There is no penalty, the use of the club or flag being equally admissible.

Q.—In a Medal competition, A.'s ball lay behind some bushes which skirt the course. Not being able to find a good place immediately behind the bushes to tee the ball, A. brought the ball on to the fair green, but not nearer the hole, teed it and played, adding two strokes to his score. Did A. conform to the rules or should he be disqualified?

A.—The player was disqualified for not conforming to Rule 10 (Special Rules for Stroke Competition).

Q.—A player's ball was run over by a roller, and embedded deeply in the ground. What should he have done?

A.—The ball, when at rest, was displaced (see Rule 22).

Q.—(1) If through the green a player miss the ball, but raise a divot, can he replace it before playing his next stroke? If this occurs at the teeing ground are the conditions the same? (2) Can a player ground his club in a bunker or hazard when the ball is lying on grass or weeds?

A.—(1) The conditions are the same through the green and from the tee. If the divot is detached, it may be treated as a loose impediment, but, if it is adhering to the ground, nothing can be done to improve the lie of the ball. (2) The club may be grounded if the ball lie on permanent grass in a hazard.

Q.—A., playing in a Medal competition, removes some mown grass between his ball and the hole, on a putting green, with his club instead of his hand. Is he disqualified for so doing?

A.—The player has committed a breach of Rule 18, the penalty for which is two strokes.

Q.—A player's ball rested on an old golf hole on the putting green, which had been filled in with turf by the greenkeeper, and had sunk very slightly—about 1-32 of an inch. The player claims to have the right of lifting under Rule 10. Is he allowed to, or is a filled-in hole no longer a golf hole under this Rule?

A.—A filled-in hole is no longer a golf hole.

Q.—Two players reach a green close to the hole in the same number of strokes. A. holes out, and immediately B.'s ball begins to roll towards the hole. Has A. the right to knock B.'s ball away, and give him a half, or must A. wait to see whether B.'s ball rolls into the hole? B.'s ball was in no way started by the action of A.'s.

A.—A must wait till B.'s ball comes to rest or drops into the hole. When B.'s ball comes to rest, A. is in a position to claim the privilege of Rule 24. Had B.'s ball dropped into the hole B. would have won the hole. The penalty for striking an opponent's ball, as described, is the loss of the hole. (See Rule 23.)

Q.—What constitutes a special marker? A lady arranged to play in every competition throughout the season with a gentleman, who marked her score. The local by-law is as follows, viz: "No player in a competition shall play round with any other than a competitor unless with the permission of the Secretary. This permission shall not be given unless a match is otherwise impossible." The by-law applies equally to ladies and gentlemen. A gentleman member now claims that any non-competitor (being a member of a Golf Club) whom a would-be competitor asks to play round with him, constitutes him or her a special marker without any authorisation from the officials of the Club. Is this contention correct, and is the by-law in order?

A.—A special marker is any person not connected with the competition who is authorised by the Committee to keep a score. The lady in question has not conformed to the local by-law. In view of the by-law the contention of the gentleman is wrong. Without discussing the advisability, the by-law is no doubt in order.

Q.—A. and B., members of a Club, are drawn against each other in a hole tournament. A Medal competition being on the fixture card, arrangements are made to play the two ties together, both players mutually agreeing to bar stimies. From his drive at one of the tees, A. loses his ball, and, after a search of about seven minutes, asks his opponent to play on, and gives up the hole. Immediately after B. plays, A.'s ball is found, and he plays out the hole, which was halved in 5, he claiming a half, which was quite right so far as the stroke competition was concerned, but B. is under the impression that once having given up the hole, A. has no right to claim a half in the hole tie. The matter was referred to the Committee of the Club, who gave their ruling that A. was quite right.

A.—A., having searched for his ball for more than five minutes, had lost it (see Rule 1, def. k). He, therefore, lost the hole in the hole match, and was disqualified in the stroke competition. If the arrangement to bar stimies had official sanction, this hole tournament was not conducted under the Rules of Golf. If it was a private arrangement, both players are disqualified for the hole tournament.

Q. The annual competition for a Shield was held under Medal play, the first eight to qualify to play off match play in the second round. For the eighth place two tied and played off under Medal play under the rules regulating the competition; but, owing to a heavy downpour of rain, sheltered, and a protest was lodged against them. Are they disqualified for the eighth place, the Committee being of opinion that, as they had already qualified for the second round, their sheltering in the play-off could not subsequently disqualify them from the place they had already won?

A.—No. There were only two competitors, and, as their stopping for shelter did not put any other competitors at a disadvantage, they are not disqualified.

ON LARGO BAY.

By Rev. T. D. Miller, M.A.

Largo Bay has been made famous by a song composed by a native of Montrose, which gives expression to the deep sentiment of our fisher-folk, for "The Boatie Rows" takes its local colouring from the wide bay in the Firth of Forth lying opposite to Berwick Law and that great congeries of links that draws so many players to East Lothian. But Largo itself was famous in Scottish story before it became so in Ewen's song, for Sir Andrew Wood resided there, and the tower or stronghold in which he dwelt, with a view to clearing the Firth of the piratical craft that infested it, still stands, in unsightly neglect, it is true, instead of, as it should be, a carefully-preserved memorial of the founder of the Scottish Navy. But Largo has been made more famous still by the world-renowned tale of "Robinson Crusoe," for it was there that Defoe's hero was born, and his monument has been better looked to. It stands on the long, narrow, irregular street, looking out from an alcove in the wall, in his goat-skin raiment and with trailing musket, shading his eyes and gazing over the waters in quest of the longed for sail.

It is not recorded whether Selkirk ever played golf, or picked up a few pence in his spare hours by carrying clubs; but there is little doubt that he must have traversed Leven Links on his way to that village, and less of doubt that, had he played either on "Dunbarnie" or "Dubbieside," he would have found a substitute for these in Juan Fernandez, and more than likely have instructed Friday in the national pastime, though it were only with a cocoanut and a sugar-cane, on the firm sand where he had been first startled by the imprint of his foot.

Leven Links lie along the inner shore of Largo Bay, practically stretching from Leven to Lower Largo. In earlier times the Innerleven Club played on a course called Dubbieside, to the west of the town; but the utilitarian spirit of the age compelled their removal, and the old links are now converted into a network of railway for the convenience of the trade of the great Fife coal-port of Methil. It was somewhere in the early sixties that the transference was accomplished, and the Innerleven Club had little reason to regret their removal, for the new ground soon proved as adaptable as the old, and few places have enjoyed better opportunities for golf than Leven has done for nearly fifty years. For some years the links did not extend beyond the Mile Dyke, which traverses the course at the distance of about two-thirds of its present limits; but, although thus limited in extent, it became in time a most popular course, and was regarded as second only to St. Andrews among Fife greens, and it produced a crop of first-rate players in the ancient Innerleven and more juvenile Thistle Golf Clubs.

The Innerleven Club came to be reckoned as one of the strongest of Scottish Clubs, and in the seventies an annual home-and-home match was played between it and the St. Andrews University Club, and these matches excited a great deal of interest in the golfing world, not so large a term then as it has latterly become. It was in one of the return matches with Innerleven that the "Varsity" accomplished on the old course at St. Andrews the biggest feat that had been done up to that date in Club match-playing.

On the occasion of these matches Innerleven was strengthened by the help of a small contingent of "Royal and Ancient" men, who were also in membership with Leven Club, and among these were Majors Boothby and Bethune—names to conjure with in those days! These players were found frequently heading the earlier lists. It was when playing with one of the Bethune family, the powerful laird of Blebo, also a member of the Leven Club, that Allan Robertson compiled his famous 79, which remained the record for St. Andrews till young Tommy reduced it to 77. Mr. Bethune had a wide golfing connection, and his brother-in-law, Mr. Gillespie, of Mountquharrie, an old-time member of the "Royal and Ancient," was, in his time, a storehouse of tale and tradition, and of him an admirable portrait is still preserved showing the ruling passion strong in age.

The Innerleven Club has an historian as well as a history. Mr. William Dalrymple has written much on the subject of his home-green, and through his literary gifts, his turn for poesy, his accuracy, and saving grace of humour, he has established his reputation as an authority upon the game, and he has traced the history of the Club for fifty years. We learn, from his research, that the outstanding man, when the present links were opened, was Mr. Wallace, of Balgrummo. Carrying everything before him at home, he went forth as the Club's representative to the tournaments that were a popular form of competition in earlier days, and in the '58 contest, held at St. Andrews, he came very near ranking as Scotland's Amateur Champion, for he lasted till the final, and at one stage had his opponent, Mr. Robert Chambers, in the hollow of his hand. At the "Hole o' Cross" he stood four up with five to go; but then disaster dogged his steps, and at the "Road" the match stood square and one to play, and, although Chambers pulled his tee-shot badly, getting into rough country, he managed to extricate himself so cleverly that Wallace, so near a victor, had ultimately to content himself with second place.

In the St. Andrews tournament of the year previous to that, which was played in couples, the Innerleven representatives were Messrs. Wallace and Marshall, and a somewhat similar fate befell them. They defeated the Musselburgh men, Messrs. Robert Chambers and William Marjoribanks, by two holes, but were beaten in the next round by the Royal Blackheath pair, Mr. George Glennie and Captain Stewart, by no less than twelve holes, and the latter players subsequently won the tournament by beating the Royal and Ancient men by seven holes. Mr. Robert Chambers, in his spirited rhymes of the times, referring to this meeting, writes:

> The Club from Musselburgh sent
> Twa stalwart men to play,
> An' weel these chiels did represent
> The honest toun that day;

But tho' they focht wi' micht an' main
An' a' their efforts lent,
The Leven folk by two did gain
The first day's tournament.

And in yet another stanza he pays a further tribute to his antagonists:

Wallace and Marshall—just the same—
When on the links o' Leven,
For golfing they have got such fame,
No two will play them even.

Like his partner Wallace, David Marshall was a frequent medal winner on his home-greens, and, following in his father's steps, a son of his figures prominently in the lists of the Thistle Club. At the present time the standard of play is being well maintained. It is not many years since Mr. Wilkie, a Leven colt, brought kudos to the old green by securing the Irish Amateur Championship; and some of the younger players, like Messrs. Wallace and Marshall, do excellent work at home, as witness Mr. Goodwillie, of the Thistle Club, who last year won the Standard Insurance Company's Cup with a score of 73, tying with the Leven amateur record created by Mr. Norman Boase, compiled in the match against the Oxford and Cambridge Universities Golfing Society a few years ago. Mr. Goodwillie had exceptionally good fortune on the occasion, as he had the third hole, about two hundred yards, in one, and the short, or seventeenth hole, of one hundred and fifty yards, in two. Playing from the other, or Lundin, end, Mr. George Clark equalled Vardon's record of 72, although he had the misfortune in the round to find his ball in a cup at the foot of a railway fence stab, and was compelled to lift with a penalty of two strokes.

The extension of the links beyond the Mile Dyke was effected when the Standard Insurance Company were the proprietors of Lundin. That company, no doubt, with wise foresight, perceived the possibility of developing the estate by turning the links to account for the feuing out of their ground as a Summer resort, and they gave every encouragement for the perfecting of the links and the practice of the game, and presented the cup already referred to, putting it into the custody of the Innerleven Club.

The golfing public were not slow to recognise the opportunity thus afforded, for they found good sea-bathing and picturesque surroundings, an old-world fishing village, with its quaint gables and red-tile roofs clustering about the harbour, and, above all, an admirably-kept sporting and historic golf course. It is little wonder that Lundin Links sprang up almost with the celerity of Jonah's gourd.

But the very excellence of the menu seemed likely to prove the death of Lundin, for the links became hampered by its popularity. Is there another golf ground in the kingdom—not, surely, of Fife!—where one Club begins operations at one end and another at the other? This is the case on Leven. Some might fancy that such an arrangement would lead to confusion and strife, for in the Summer months a constant stream of players are arriving at both ends, while others are patiently waiting their turn at the two starting grounds; but the matter has been all amicably arranged between the Clubs. There is a sense in which Leven might be called "the Scottish sandwich," for it is on the principle of sandwiching the starting couples between those playing from the other end that the difficultly is overcome. We find Lundin and Leven players starting out turn about.

There is also a sort of "Box and Cox" agreement with respect to Club matches, for, on these occasions, the privilege of the green is granted to the match-playing Club, the players from the other end holding off till the last of the match players has started for home. It speaks well for the patience and long-suffering of the golfing fraternity that the frequenters of Leven have put up with the summer conditions on these links for some few years past. The ball bench at the starting places has been often filled two deep, and, owing to the system in vogue, it takes twice the amount of time that is usual to get the players away. So densely has the green been packed that it has occasionally taken as much as five hours to accomplish the round. This means very leisurely progress, with continuous rests at the tees, and it implies abundance of time at the disposal of the golfer. There is too much of the laissez faire about it to fit in with the every-day calls of a business life or professional duty. And yet the golfer grimed, or girned, and bore it. Only occasionally did his temper get the better of him. It is said that golf promotes good-fellowship; but everything palls in this world, and it is possible to begin to be bored by too extended an intercourse and interchange of opinions, and to sigh for a wholesome change of companionship, or even for the presence of an enemy. There have been occasional unmannerly exhibitions of the old Adam, unexpected ebullitions of passion on Leven, as when one wrathful individual made himself ridiculous by kicking over the ball-bench, thus venting his fury by bringing dire confusion among the other starters, or, as at the other end, where an element of inhumanity was introduced, when the old starter and erstwhile custodian of the green, the pawky "Robert," shared the same unseemly treatment. These players showed themselves devoid of that placidity of temper which is essential for first-class golf. But such outbursts have been of rare occurrence, and, in spite of all temptations to impatience, the sandwich arrangement has worked fairly well.

But the time has come to terminate it. Five hours for the round is twice too much. There are limits to patience and endurance, and the authorities at last began to cast about for means of relieving the strain and pressure. It was thought that by reopening Dunbarnie links, lying to the east of Largo, relief might be got at the Lundin end. It is about forty years since there was any golf on Dunbarnie, and it is now utilised for agriculture, though the cottage that was once the Club-house can still be seen there, and there are players about who can remember when a lot of golf was done there by Largo folk.

It is said that the "Honourable Company" looked over Dunbarnie before finally settling down at Muirfield, and there is plenty of room for a fine green there. But it is not convenient for Lundin, and comfort and convenience must be considered, if Lundin is to thrive and expand as it has been doing of late. So that the Leven Clubs have resolved to face the inevitable, and make a division of the links. The ladies at both ends have been enjoying very fair facilities just over the railway from the other links, and, according to the principle that runs throughout history and governs the rise and fall of the nations, the weak must go to the wall. It is so also in social life. A society function has been wittily described as "a crowd of respectably-dressed persons, of whom the strong go to the buffet and the weak to the wall," and so, too, even in our recreations, although, in this instance, the unfairness is partly compensated by the fact that the ladies are now eligible for, and do avail themselves of, the larger links. The ladies' links will be removed elsewhere, at Lundin, laid down over fields that are now under the plough, and their present ground, with its crisper turf and sandy hazards, will be added to the old links, so as to make Leven and Lundin independent of one another, and each the happy possessor of a full eighteen-hole course. This will entail crossing the railway, and bring the iron-road more into evidence than formerly. With regard to Leven, there will be abundance of room in which to complete the course when cut off, as it will be, by the Mile Dyke. Lundin will be the worst off in such a settlement, for there is less space at that end; and when one considers what the rubber core has done for golf, some of the holes there will be on the short side; but to remedy this, as far as possible, some new ground is to be borrowed from Sunnybraes, just as, at Leven, Silverburn Park is likely to be called into requisition to complete the course.

It seems always a vain and purposeless thing, except for literary padding, to describe the several holes upon any links. It helps little or nothing one's knowledge of a green. It is about as useless as to attempt to teach people to play golf by a study of the various styles of the leading players. Some of these possess a style which is anything but attractive. The figures may afford an interesting study in comparison, just as people's thumb-prints do, but give no help for a beginner. "Practice makes perfection" is a maxim which contains a whole manual of instruction, and "come and see" is the only method we know of acquiring a proper knowledge of any one links. We will not attempt to describe Leven, or its last long hole with the Scoonie Burn, which stands in its relation to Leven somewhat as the Swilcan does to St. Andrews. We will not try to estimate the losses or the gains to either Leven or Lundin

by the dismemberment of the old links. That it will be a grief to some who have lived and played there goes without saying. There are old-fashioned golfers to whom "there is no place like home." The devotion to the old course in St. Andrews is a constant proof of it. And it will be a sore trial to some players to part with any part of Leven, for the sunniest hours of life have been spent there. It has become familiar to the eye and hand, and every hole can conjure up some happy memory, where

> Each bush and bank incites to narrative,
> Recalls some choice companionship of bygone day,
> With drive, or pitch, or putt, or wondrous save,
> Or foozle with a marvellous recovery.

But the Leven and Lundin players will become reconciled to the change, feeling that thus it must be; and, when the roughness has been worn off the new additions, they will play in greater comfort, and progress at something more than snail's pace. Whatever regret they may feel at parting with old friends and places, they will eventually discover that it is to the general advantage and happiness, their own included, that——

> The old order changeth, giving place to the new.

THE LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP, 1907.

THE Ladies' Championship, which was held at Newcastle, Co. Down, on Tuesday, May 7th, and the three succeeding days, attracted an entry of 110, included among whom were Miss H. S. Curtis, the then American Champion, and her sister, Miss M. Curtis, who now holds the title. The weather on the opening day, if dull, was not unfavourable, and form worked out fairly true in the first round, probably the only unexpected result being the defeat of Miss D. I. Campbell, the Scotch ex-Champion, by Miss V. Hezlet at the twentieth hole; but in justice to the former it must be stated that she had not quite shaken off the effects of a severe cold. As it was, she might have won with a little care, for Miss Hezlet, who had missed her drive, had to play two more; but Miss Campbell was then badly trapped to the left, and, taking two strokes to recover, had thus early to admit defeat. On Wednesday a strong easterly breeze was an upsetting factor, and little good play was seen. In the second round Miss V. Hezlet gave Miss H. S. Curtis a good game, and an extra hole had to be played before the latter, who, after being five down at the eighth hole, had actually secured the lead at the sixteenth, gained a victory. Her sister had an easier task against Mrs. Stairman-Crawford (Cork), but both were beaten in the third round. Miss M. Hezlet, who revelled in the breeze, was four up against Miss M. Curtis at the turn, and won cleverly on the sixteenth green; while Miss E. M. Titterton, an 1897 Bronze Medallist, fairly excelling herself against Miss H. S. Curtis, won by almost the highest possible margin. There was a slight improvement in the weather on the third day, when the ties in the fourth and fifth rounds were overtaken. In the forenoon it was expected that Miss M. E. Stuart would get the better of another Portrush player in Miss M. Dickson, but the latter, gaining five holes in succession going out, won on the twelfth green. The issue between Miss B. Thompson, the 1905 Champion, and Miss F. Walker-Leigh, the Irish Champion, hung in the balance until the latter got two ahead at the fifteenth, and, holding to her advantage, won without playing the home hole. The only other match calling for comment was that between Mrs. Durlacher and Miss Titterton. A win for the former seemed assured, when she turned with five holes in hand, but the latter promptly squared accounts. Mrs. Durlacher regained the lead at the sixteenth, but her plucky opponent proved equal to the emergency, and won on the last green. In the fifth round Misses M. and F. Hezlet easily accounted for Miss Walker-Leigh and Miss Neill Fraser respectively, but Miss Dickson, again showing fine play, took Miss Tynte to the home hole, where she was beaten by a putt. In the remaining tie, Miss Titterton, palpably worn out after her exciting tussle with Mrs. Durlacher, was led nearly all the way by Miss V. Henry-Anderson, whose long game and style are remarkable, and beaten with two holes to go. On Friday the weather continued to be boisterous, and as a result of the forenoon's play Miss May Hezlet and Miss Florence Hezlet were left to contest the final. The latter won the first two holes, and held this advantage at the eighth. Miss May then began to assert herself, and got in front at the thirteenth. She also won the fourteenth, and was hailed winner of the Championship for the third time two holes later. Details:—

THE IRISH LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP, 1907.

By Miss Leah Garratt, Hon. Secretary, Irish Ladies' Golf Union.

The Irish Ladies' Golf Championship was played over the fine links of the Royal Dublin Golf Club at Dollymount on April 22nd and following days. Ten years had elapsed since the meeting was held there, and at that time the Irish Ladies' Golf Union was in its infancy. Very few Dublin ladies took part, the majority of the competitors hailing from the North. Miss Walker-Leigh, however, played on that occasion, and has since entered regularly and given a good account of herself. Her win last year was consequently a popular one, and she is the first to take the "Irish Ladies' Championship Cup" south of the Boyne! In the final she was opposed to another Dublin player, Mrs. Gerald Fitzgibbon, the latter having in her morning round defeated that well-known ex-Champion Miss Magill, of Newcastle, Co. Down, who had in her turn defeated Miss May Hezlet, the holder of the Cup. This match was an excellent one, and attracted a large gallery of spectators, who were given a good exhibition of the game. The sensation of the week was the match in the first round between Miss Walker-Leigh and Miss G. Lauder, a youthful player from a Dublin Club, who was making her first appearance in a Championship, and whose play gives great promise. She appears to have a good golfing temperament, showing plenty of nerve, and throws nothing away in her short game. The Monday of the week was, as usual, given up to a Medal round for prizes very kindly given by the Royal Dublin Club. The weather, unfortunately, that day was against good scoring, though it improved very much during the week, and the semi-finals and final were played under delightful conditions and before large crowds. The Medal returns, therefore, were not of the best, the home holes in the gale that was blowing taxing the players' strength to the utmost. Miss V. Hezlet was first with a score of 90,

MISS F. WALKER LEIGH,

Irish Lady Champion, 1907

Miss M. Dickson second with 91, and Mrs. Durlacher and Miss May Hezlet dead-heating with 93 each. The Irish Ladies' Golf Union Gold Medal was won by Miss Ida Boyd, of the Rathfarnham Club.

The absence of Mrs. Cuthell (Miss Rhona Adair), Miss M. E. Stuart, and Miss F. Hezlet was much regretted, as their presence would have added greatly to the interest of the meeting. At the conclusion the Cup and other prizes were presented to the successful competitors by Mrs. Croker Barrington, wife of the Captain of the Club. Details:—

THE SCOTCH LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP, 1907.

A RECORD entry was secured for the fifth Championship held under the auspices of the Scottish Ladies' Golfing Association at Troon on Tuesday, June 11th, and the two succeeding days, the holder in the two previous years (Miss Dorothy I. Campbell) being challenged by no fewer than sixty-three players, drawn for the most part from the Lowlands. Unfortunately, the weather on the opening day was unfavourable, rain falling heavily at intervals in the forenoon, while a strong breeze blew in from the Firth of Clyde during the whole day. The first match to attract attention was that between Miss Glover, the 1903 Champion, and Miss M. Neilson (Prestwick), the former lapsing into carelessness after being five up at the tenth hole, and so allowing her opponent to draw level at the seventeenth. The home hole was halved, but Miss Glover won after two extra ones had been played, Miss Neilson having lost a stroke by moving her ball while addressing it on the putting green. The match between Miss D. M. Jenkins (Troon) and Miss F. S. Teacher (Gullane) was looked forward to with keen interest, as both players had shown fine form in the competitions which had preceded the Championship. These anticipations were, however, quite falsified, for Miss Teacher, after losing the first, won every hole except the sixth until the match ended on the eleventh green. In the second round Miss Teacher again played well, and beat Miss M. Watson, who drove a long ball from the tee with an iron, by four up and three to play. This was also the margin between two Internationals in the Misses G. B. Robertson and M. N. Fraser, the former's local knowledge standing her in good stead. Miss M. Maitland and Miss C. Stevenson, the Scotch Hockey International, had the keenest of matches, the latter, after standing two to the good at the sixteenth hole, being beaten on the nineteenth green. The match between Miss E. Boyd and Miss E.

MISS E. S. HACHER,

SCOTCH LADY CHAMPION 1901.

Mackenzie was equally close, but the other ties were won with something to spare. Rain fell heavily all Wednesday forenoon, when the third round engaged attention. The wind, however, had ceased to trouble, and some capital play was seen. Miss Glover took a long time to find her form against Miss Forgan, but she wore the latter down coming home, and won upon the seventeenth green. Thanks to her magnificent putting, Miss F. S. Teacher beat Miss Titterton by three up and one to play, but Miss H. Teacher had to play an extra hole before she was able to dispose of Miss C. Thomson. The struggle between Miss Anderson and Miss Harvey was equally prolonged, and Miss Maitland had some difficulty before she beat Miss Russell. The other three matches, however, were won with comparative ease by Miss G. B. Robertson, Miss K. Stuart, and Miss D. I. Campbell. Miss G. B. Robertson and Miss Glover started the fourth round, the rain having by this time ceased. It was give-and-take all the way out, Miss Robertson turning one up by holing a long steal on the ninth green. Miss Robertson got down in 4 at the difficult tenth hole, but was adjudged to have lost it, as her caddie had lifted an obstruction which lay more than twenty yards from the pin. This contretemps enabled Miss Glover to draw level, and she promptly pocketed the two succeeding holes. Miss Robertson, however, pluckily rallied, and was hailed a popular winner by two up and one to play. The Misses Teacher easily won their way into the "semi-finals," but Miss Maitland and Miss Campbell proved wonderfully well matched. They turned all square, but Miss Campbell won the tenth and eleventh holes, and, holding tenaciously to her lead, secured the victory without playing the home hole. On Thursday the weather was both wet and windy, but the play was of more than average excellence. Miss F. S. Teacher, after turning one down, putted splendidly, and beat Miss G. B. Robertson on the sixteenth green. Miss Campbell, however, won very easily from Miss H. Teacher, and was thought likely to win the Championship for the third year in succession. But Miss F. S. Teacher, whose putting was again very good, refused to be beaten. Miss Campbell was also seen to advantage, and at the close of an exciting round honours were easy, as they had likewise been at the turn. Out they went to play to a finish, but it did not come until the "third extra," when Miss Campbell missed a putt of about five feet, and so lost her title. Details :—

THE HUMANITY IN GOLF.

By Dr. J. G. McPherson.

What is the secret of the expansiveness of the best of games? It reminds one of the fairy-tale of our childhood—that told of the prince's tent which spread and spread from the lawn to the field, to the countryside, to the world. What is it that has made golf so world-wide in its development? Beginning in one or two places in Scotland, golf extended to England, to America, to Australia, to all parts of the globe. Why? On account of its humanity. Among all the games in which I have taken part in my lifetime none approaches golf in its real humanity. There is a manliness, an equalising element, a brotherhood in this game which is not so strongly manifested in any other.

By all who have handled a club in anything like a decent way golf is acknowledged to be the best of games—so absorbing, fascinating, exhilarating, hearty, and human it is. To the uninitiated it wants the brilliancy of cricket or the activity of tennis; but when the player is possessed of the true passion for the game, golf reigns supreme.

In real golf, when the game was enthusiastically played by holes, instead of by strokes, one had always a human being against whom he was honestly but most keenly devoting all his skilled energies—one who was his friend and equal, whatever was his rank in life. Brotherhood was the keynote of the fine feeling in the game. Far be it from me to speak about brotherhood as levelled-down equality; golf levels up. It is the best golfer who, for the time being, whatever his profession or means, is the best man. Professors and students used to meet on the same platform; and the former would not grudge the well-earned victory of the latter. Ministers would play with parishioners; and divinity was for the time forgotten.

DR. J. G. McPHERSON.

Lords of Session cracked jokes as they played with the common people; and the plebeian would feel proud at being complimented by his lordship when he made a glorious drive or had a marvellous steal. To some extent we have the feeling manifested in curling, but that game is limited to a short period of the year. There is an enthusiasm in having a thorough match which—with all their outward differences—makes them "brithers for a' that" at the touch of the club and with the spring of the turf. Old and young are votaries of the pastime; the healthy and weak find equal pleasure in the game, and the burly and the spare alike forget their constitutional differences in the enthusiasm of the tussle. A rosy child and a grey-haired veteran equally enjoy their feebles foozles as much as the brilliant driver of powerful frame. The game is so admirably suited for all that a "match" is all that is required for a glorious set-to.

In the healthy game there must be a keen tussle for the mastery. Mr. John L. Low, from whom I never like to differ, so well does he know the game, so well does he play it, has all through his life consistently maintained that, for the amateur, the playing of the game, not the winning of it, is the greatest good. He tells us that the result of no game is in any way of serious moment, but that the whole game itself should be of interest to those who desire or require recreation is a considerable, almost vital, factor. In 1901 I saw him lose the Championship at St. Andrews from Mr. Hilton by one inch, and I do not hesitate to say that if he had held and carried out personal mastery over his opponent in match play he would have been an Amateur Champion. For in match play there appears to be a slightly stronger element involved than the pure pleasure of thoughtful play sweet as this is and that is the beating of your opponent. That brings out the human element of honest rivalry and hearty strife. And a "good match" is all that is needed for this. The country gentry, the busy professional men, and the hard-wrought artisans are equally enamoured of the game. The excitement charms gentlemen of all ages, in all weathers, at all times; and experience has proved it to be one of the most fascinating of pursuits.

Burns could not have had a better illustration for his immortal words:

> "The rank is but the guinea stamp,
> The man's the gowd for a' that."

Though I was only a poor student at the University of St. Andrews—that is, poor as to worldly means—I was then, in the sixties, "respected like the lave," because I could easily hold my own with all. There were no patronising airs shown by the genuine golfers of the higher ranks of society. The real aristocracy rarely forget the humanity in the game. We find the airs sometimes among snobs and upstarts, who go in for pothunting and scoring; but I never saw them in my student days, when the real game was played.

I am always so pleased, when in St. Andrews now and then, to have a "crack" with old Tom. I am not the cleric when talking to the remaining representative caddies of the Old School. Of course, I speak in their pure vernacular. What pleasure Mr. Pat P. Alexander used to take in going over matches with Sandy Pirie, Watty Alexander, Sandy Herd, Auld Da, and Bob Kirk—the real caddies of old! Regularly twice a year did he take them to the Golf Inn and treat them to a grand supper. Yet he was a distinguished litterateur—the only man who could trip up John Stuart Mill; but he was a fine golfer, and he did not lower his dignity by showing his broad humanity.

We never heard of strikes among the caddies of old. They identified themselves with their masters. "We beat him," "We warna' plyin' sae weel the day," and such like expressions could only come from men like these. They had their work at heart, as had the Scotch beadles of the days of old.

Oh! there was a grand feeling of humanity in the game in those days. Allan Robertson and Tom Morris, as the late Mr. John Blackwood, of Maga, truly wrote, were considered gentlemen by all who knew the life-meaning of the word. I am afraid, however, that the cloven foot of snobbery is occasionally seen to dispel this fine human feeling, and that the days of first-class interest in golf are past when snobbery comes in, when the grand brotherhood has traitors within its ranks, when puppyism will not touch the coat of the plebeian, but will conceitedly sneer: "I am a golfer of a higher social station. Stand aside!" I sincerely hope the commonsense of most will crush the egg of the cockatrice before it is hatched. But not so very long ago the most brilliant golfer of his day, one of Nature's real gentlemen, was obliged to get away to a tent and have what he could pick up after giving a splendid exhibition of the game to the "powers that be," while these "powers" had their fine luncheon by themselves. That was not akin to the sterling humanity which I used to admire in the golfing days of old, when true golfers respected the grand equality of really fine players.

I think the perpetual scoring crank encourages the boastful spirit. In scoring one plays against the unknown field, not even an aggregate of human beings; he never thinks of a man at all. But in real golf, by holes, he is face to face with a living antagonist, and him alone.

It is this brotherhood that beautifies the game; there is no respect of persons skill reigns supreme. Many a life attachment used to be made "on the green." Golf eclipses all outdoor games for developing true sociability. No game has an equal charm for the keen golfer of any grade in the golfing scale. The cynic's sneer cannot dampen the spellbound devotee of the best of games, because the true golfer believes in its genuine humanity. As a caddie philosopher tritely remarked: "Eh! it's a grand game for lattin' ye see what's in a man."

ENGLAND v. SCOTLAND.

On Saturday, May 25th, Scotland's chosen amateurs gained a signal victory at St. Andrews in the Sixth International match. Indeed, J. Robb, the 1906 Champion, who was pitted against J. Ball, was the only one of the home team who did not win his match. Turning two up in the forenoon, Robb straightway increased his lead, but Ball then asserted himself, and, by winning the High, Long, and Road holes, finished the first moiety with a hole in hand. In the afternoon Robb drew level at once, and went in front at the seventh hole. Ball, however, won the eighth and ninth holes, and so regained the lead. Coming home, Robb "cracked," and the veteran won an unexpectedly easy victory on the fourteenth green.

R. Maxwell had H. H. Barker, the Yorkshire crack, as his opponent, and the pair proved wonderfully well-matched. The Scotchman turned one up, but Barker, after squaring accounts at the "Dyke," led by one at the close of the round. The first four holes of the second round were halved, but, of the five remaining outward holes, Maxwell won the fifth, sixth, and ninth, and so led by two. This deficit Barker was unequal to wiping out, and Maxwell won without playing the last two holes.

Against A. G. Barry, the 1905 Champion, J. Graham was, like Maxwell, one to the bad at the close of the first round, but he wore his man down in the afternoon, and beat him with something in hand.

E. B. H. Blackwell gave the veteran H. G. Hutchinson no quarter. Finishing the first round five up, he increased his advantage thereafter, and won at the thirteenth hole.

Those old-time opponents, J. E. Laidlay and H. H. Hilton, had an interesting tussle. The former, who was seen to great advantage at the start, turned two up, and this was still his position at the close of the first round. In the afternoon Hilton made a plucky effort, and drew level at the eighth hole. Give and take was then the order, until Laidlay became "dormy one," and, with a fine, long putt, he won the home hole, and a keenly contested match.

Hard on their heels came R. Andrew and S. H. Fry. Playing brilliantly at every point, the former led by five holes in the forenoon, and, going further away afterwards, won easily at the High hole in.

The forenoon round found Captain C. K. Hutchison and A. C. Lincoln, whose first International it was, as they had started, but Hutchison forged ahead after luncheon, and won comfortably.

In the two remaining matches the Scotchmen, J. G. Simpson and A. R. Aitken, both of whom learned the game at St. Andrews, were much too good for their opponents, and England had to admit defeat by the large margin of eight matches to one. Details:

J. Ball (England) beat J. Robb (Scotland) by six up and four to play.
R. Maxwell (Scotland) beat H. H. Barker (England) by three up and two to play.
J. Graham (Scotland) beat A. G. Barry (England) by three up and two to play.

J. G. Simpson (Scotland) beat H. W. De Zoete (England) by ten up and nine to play.

THE AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP, 1907.

THE above Championship, which was decided over the old course at St. Andrews, on Monday, May 27th, and the four succeeding days, attracted a record entry of 200, included among whom were J. Robb, the 1906 Champion, seven ex-Champions in H. G. Hutchinson, J. Ball, J. E. Laidlay, L. M. Balfour-Melville, H. H. Hilton, R. Maxwell, and A. G. Barry, and E. M. Byers, the then Champion of the United States. The strong-playing local Clubs were also forward with their best men, one of whom, A. Gallacher, until recently a waiter in the Royal and Ancient Club-house, was greatly fancied. So also were Yorkshire's crack golfer, H. H. Barker, now a professional in America; the Internationals, J. Graham, R. Maxwell, E. B. H. Blackwell, Captain C. K. Hutchison, R. Andrew, and J. G. Simpson; Guy Campbell, one of the most promising players in the ranks of the promoting Club; and last, but by no means least, the veteran, John Ball. The large entry necessitated a start on Monday morning at ten o'clock, when the conditions were found not unfavourable. The outstanding match was undoubtedly that between these old opponents, Ball and Laidlay, and no finer play was seen throughout the week. The former secured the lead right away with a splendid 3, and went further ahead at the second hole, which he had in 4. Laidlay wrested a hole back by getting the fifth in 5, but Ball regained it with a 2 to the short hole, and, out at the low figure of 35 to Laidlay's 37, he turned with two holes in hand. The first hole in was halved in 5, but by grand play Laidlay pocketed the two succeeding holes in 2 and 3 respectively, and so drew level. Ball, however, quickly reasserted himself, and stood two up again at the sixteenth. His tee shot to the seventeenth landed in a cart rut, but he made a brilliant recovery, and won the hole and a match which reflected the utmost credit on both players. Even closer was the game between J. G. Simpson and D. F. Ranson, which took an unconscionable time to play. The Scotchman was known to be deliberate, but he was quickness itself compared to his opponent. They proved wonderfully well matched, and it was all to play for driving to the home hole. A half in 4 necessitated them going out again, but Simpson, after his second had jumped the burn, failed to lay his run up dead, and had to admit an unexpected defeat. The others fancied got through successfully, but R. Andrew had to hole a ticklish putt at the nineteenth hole before he accounted for W. E. Fairlie.

Play was resumed on Tuesday as early as nine o'clock, and an exciting day's golf resulted. Horace G. Hutchinson, the first winner of the Championship, found a worthy opponent in Capt. Macallan, and, running neck and neck, they finished all square. Playing off, they both crossed the burn in two, but Macallan failed to get dead with his run up, and Hutchinson won in 4. J. L. C. Jenkins, Troon, scored a notable victory over C. E. Dick. It was a close and exciting match, with the result that all was even at the seventeenth hole, but on the home green Jenkins holed a good putt and won. Two strong players faced one another in R. Harris and S. H. Fry, both winners of the St. George's Challenge Cup at Sandwich, while the latter was runner up to C. Hutchings in the Amateur Championship at Hoylake in 1902. Harris made a fine start by winning two out of the first three holes, and, pluckily as he tried, Fry could not wrest them back. Considerable interest was manifested in the play of the American Amateur Champion, E. M. Byers, and a large crowd followed him in his match against J. Paterson the famous Scotch long distance athletic ex-Champion. Byers was leading by one at the turn, but Paterson drew level at the tenth hole, and, winning the "Heather" and the "Hole o' Cross," got the ascendency. Byers made a poor approach to the "Corner of the Dyke," and was thus early put out of the running. C. A. Palmer disposed of Lawrence Ayton, the crack St. Andrews Club player, on the home green, and Capt. C. K. Hutchison had an even stiffer encounter with H. B. Macarthy, who brought the match level at the home hole, but lost on playing off. Gallacher cleverly accounted for the Hon. Osmond Scott, after being three down at the turn; but Ranson had another hard run for victory against R. W. Orr, of Prestwick. In the end he won by a putt, as did Blackwell from Melville, a local player, who had beaten V. A. Pollock in the first round; but another young local in D. Jolly was more successful over W. H. Fowler, albeit, this match also came to the home hole.

At the outset of the third round a sensation was created by the downfall of Maxwell at the hands of F. W. H. Weaver, of the Royal Liverpool, for Maxwell had been showing such fine form that few people were prepared for his defeat. Weaver lost the first hole, but, putting finely afterwards, he turned three up. He increased his lead at the tenth, and would probably have won the "High" hole also had he not been stimied. He, however, got amongst the whins playing to the "Hole-o-Cross," and Maxwell won it. The ex-Champion raised the hopes of his friends by also winning the "Long," but Weaver gave nothing away from this point, and eventually won by two and one. Jenkins, Troon, played a strong game against Hutchinson. After being one down at the turn, the veteran drew level at the fifteenth. He, however, lost the next two, and therewith the match. Robb was well held in hand by J. D. Brown, and gave his friends some uneasiness. He had the best of the play on the outward journey, and turned with a lead of two. This was still the position of matters at the fourteenth, but Robb won the fifteenth. At the "Corner of the Dyke" he, however, was bunkered, and took two shots to get clear, while at the "Road" he was weak with his approach, and again lost. He topped his tee shot for the home hole, but Brown missed a putt of five feet for the hole, and Robb won by the narrowest of margins. Ball had to fight all the way against C. Bell, of the Royal North Devon. He was two up at the turn, but was called upon to get down a good putt at the home hole to win. He, however, rose to the occasion, and kept himself in the running. Campbell also kept himself safe by beating F. H. Mitchell, and Barker proved too good for Barry. G. V. M. Boyd, the old Lorettonian, created no little surprise by beating Gallacher, while a grand finish was provided in the match between Graham and Blackwell. The latter carried off the first hole in 3, but he lost the second and third, and was three down at the turn. Coming home, however, he got level at the "Corner of the Dyke." Graham had chances at the last two holes, but his short game was faulty, and the round ended level. Playing off, both approached the "Burn" splendidly with their seconds. Blackwell's ball lay fully eight yards away on sloping ground, while Graham's was only half the distance on the burn side of the green. Blackwell holed his putt, but, although Graham made a good bid for a half, the ball slipped past the hole by a hair's breadth, and Blackwell won.

The weather continued favourable on Wednesday, if perhaps a trifle chill. Although Hilton and Robb were the ninth couple to start in the fourth round, they were the first to attract a large following. Robb at the outset was off his putting, and his opponent, who was using only one hand, pocketed the first two holes. After some give and take Hilton increased his lead to three at the eighth, which he had in 2, and won comfortably on the sixteenth green. Andrew and Ball had interesting tussles with Taylor and Gaunt, but each won at the "Road" hole. Capt. Hutchison had his work cut out to beat Lockhart, one of the most promising players in Ayrshire. It was all to play for when the drives were made towards the home hole, but Lockhart pulled his second on to the path in front of the Club house, and Hutchison, who had never led up to this point, stepped in when most required. Campbell was seen to considerable advantage against Barker. Leading by two at the turn, he soon put the issue beyond doubt, and became a warm favourite for premier position. The last tie in the round was between Blackwell and Jolly, and it proved the most exciting. The latter turned two up, and, try as he liked Blackwell was unable to draw level until the seventeenth hole. With a 4 to the home hole, the long driver won by a putt. The fifth round was remarkable for the big margins by which the various ties were won. Most interest was taken in the matches between Andrew and Hilton and Ball and Hutchison. Andrew made a wonderfully good start, winning four holes in succession in 4 4 4 3. He turned four up, and with a 2 to the "High" and a 3 to the "Heather," went further away. Hilton "prolonged the agony" by winning the next two holes, but the end came when Andrew ran down a long putt at the fifteenth. Ball touched his best form against Hutchison. Out in 37, he led by two, and the game finished in his favour three holes from home. The other results were pretty well "according to Cocker," and the last eight were found to be four Scotchmen, three Englishmen, and a New Zealander (Gillies).

On Thursday forenoon Harris led all the way against Wyatt, and Gillies could make no headway against Palmer's extraordinary putting. Much was expected from Andrew against Ball in view of his fine play on the previous day, but his putting had left him, and Ball, turning four up, won his way into the "semi-final" with a lot in hand. Blackwell was not a little handicapped by a strain contracted earlier in the week, and Campbell, whose long game was greatly admired, taking the lead at the third hole, forged gradually away, and won by four and three. In the first of the "semi-finals," Palmer continued to putt splendidly, and, although Harris, after being three down at the turn, succeeded in reducing his deficit to one at the fourteenth, Palmer made good his entrée into the final by holing another good putt at the "Road." Seldom has a match excited more interest than that between Ball and Campbell, for it was felt that whichever proved the victor would, with all deference to Palmer, win the Championship. And for a long time it looked as if the younger player were to be the man. Holing a long putt, Campbell took the lead at the fourth hole, and went further ahead at the sixth. He reached the seventh green with a tremendous swipe, and seemed likely to win this hole also when Ball's approach reached the hollow beyond it, but the latter, making a fine recovery, holed his putt for a 3. Meantime Campbell had left himself a ticklish little putt, at which he failed, and so lost the hole. This proved the turning point, for Ball promptly squared accounts. Coming home Campbell had chances of regaining the lead, but failed to grasp them, and after both had been in the field going to the "Corner of the Dyke," Ball made the better recovery and led for the first time. The end came at the next hole, where Campbell's approach was caught in the road, and Ball was hailed winner by two and one.

In the final tie on Friday, when the weather was stormy, Ball, as expected, proved too good for Palmer, pluckily as the latter struggled. Ball finished the first round two up, and, increasing his advantage in the afternoon, gained his sixth Amateur Championship and his first at St. Andrews amidst great enthusiasm. Indeed, no more popular victory has ever been won. And, curiously enough, it fell to Mr. L. M. Balfour-Melville, Captain of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, to present the Championship Medal to one whom he had vanquished after a tie over the same course in 1895. Nor did Ball's recognition end here, for he was not long afterwards admitted an Honorary Member of the Royal and Ancient, a distinction conferred upon few. Details:

"JOHNNIE BALL."

By Mr. Ronald Ross.

When Balfour's magnetism bright,
And his electric flame
O'er Britain's kingdoms flashed the light
Of the old historic game,
'Twas then a young disciple sprung,
Obedient to his call,
To show the way how golf to play,
His name was Johnnie Ball.

What need to tell what Johnnie's done,
Or of each golfing feat,
Of records made, and matches won,
They've known where golfers meet;
On every green where he has been
Its habitués recall,
With keen delight, the golfing might
And strength of Johnnie Ball.

Go, watch him, posing at the place
Where his ball sits on the tee,
His polished style, its ease and grace,
And his swing so strong and free;
His quarter strokes your praise provokes,
And, at the putting rôle,
His ball runs true, as if it knew,
The road to every hole.

Whene'er, by luck's erratic vein,
He from his game falls off,
'Tis to come out on top again
With a burst of splendid golf.
With science, skill, instinct, and will,
All ready at his call;
His genius fired, his soul inspired,
That's brilliant Johnnie Ball.

Thou darling golf, my mistress dear,
For thee alone I live;
I would not miss thy smiles sincere,
For all that earth can give;

Thy constant charm each feeling warms,
And holds each thought in thrall,
When I, the sage with thee engage,
Or watch young Johnnie Ball.

Our gallant yeomen, all who live
Their merits must confess,
Whether on fields of sport they strive,
Or in war's bitter stress;
When late, the state, in danger great,
Upon its sons did call,
The first to go to meet the foe,
Was plucky Johnnie Ball.

England, the first in every game.
In which it takes a pride,
In golf, a game it once thought tame,
Has ta'en a wondrous stride;
It now can boast a growing host,
Of golfers great and small,
But few among its golfing throng
Can match young Johnnie Ball.

Long may he play the honest game
He's played so long and well,
To add fresh lustre to his fame,
And newer records tell;
And when death dour, with putts dead sure,
Has holed us golfers all,
When you and I forgotten lie,
They'll talk of Johnnie Ball

THE PROFESSIONAL INTERNATIONAL MATCH.

England v. Scotland.

The former gained their second successive victory at Hoylake on June 15th. Several changes, not for the better, had been made in the conditions governing the contest, the sides being increased from twelve to sixteen, while the afternoon foursomes were abandoned in favour of thirty-six holes' singles. A return will, however, be made this season to the old order of things. The enlargement of the teams let in a few new men. C. H. Mayo was the only player on the English side who had not before taken part in such a match, and two of the Scotchmen were also new-comers, namely, T. Watt, and Peter McEwan. The weather proved disagreeable, rain falling heavily in the earlier and later portions of the day, with some showers in between, but the course was in excellent condition.

Naturally, most of the onlookers followed the fortunes of the leaders, Harry Vardon and James Braid. Although Vardon played the first hole indifferently, it was soon evident that both men were in good form. With a 5 and four 4's to begin with, Braid was leading by two holes at the fifth, notwithstanding that Vardon secured the fourth with a good 3. For the remainder of the outward half Vardon played perfect golf, and turned one up. On the homeward journey Braid started brilliantly with a 4 and a 2. Vardon played a plucky game, and held his opponent in the long game, but was slightly inferior on the putting greens. At the sixteenth, where Braid had a perfect 4, the Englishman was again two down; but, after a half in 4, Vardon gained a merited win on the home green. Herd and Taylor had a comparatively small following in the morning. Neither played the first hole well, as a half in 6 will indicate.

Herd was the first to settle down to a good game, and at the fourth hole he was three up. Taylor, pulling himself together, got a fine 3 after a capital second at the sixth hole, and, following this up with a brilliant 2 at the short seventh, reduced the adverse balance to one hole. This was also the state of the game at the turn, and it was not until the eleventh had been reached that Taylor succeeded in drawing level. Herd, however, won the next two holes by superior putting, but Taylor holed a long putt on the fourteenth green, and so reduced his opponent's lead. Then a strange thing happened. Both men played out to the right from the fourteenth tee, and both balls disappeared down rabbit holes, so the hole was halved. Herd, with a fine putt on the sixteenth green, again became two up; but, after a half in 5, he lost the home hole through weak putting, and so finished the first round with only a hole in hand.

Jack White and Ben Sayers also had a like success against Tom Vardon and E. Ray; but Rowland Jones and George Pulford broke the sequence of Scotch successes, the former having gained three holes at the expense of Andrew Kirkcaldy, while the latter, playing on his own course, showed rare confidence, and, with an approximate score of 74, led Willie Park by no fewer than eight holes. Peter McEwan gained four holes at the expense of C. H. Mayo, and Ernest Gray and George Duncan held like advantages over G. Coburn and G. H. Cawsey. As a result of the forenoon's play, Scotland led by eleven matches to four, but the sides were all square so far as holes were concerned.

The second round saw some strange reversals of the first-round results, Braid playing an excellent game, while Vardon showed a little uncertainty with his wooden clubs and did not putt with great confidence, won three out of the first four holes, and, as Vardon could never get them back, he was beaten on the fifteenth green.

Taylor and Herd had a great fight. The Scotchman continued to play slightly the better game until Taylor was three down at the thirteenth. Then the Englishman made a great effort, and won four holes in succession, the sixteenth in 3, with a pitch from the edge of the green; but he over-ran the home green with his second, and, as Herd won the hole in 4, the match was halved.

Tom Vardon gained a clever victory over Jack White, and E. Ray and Rowland Jones were equally successful over Ben Sayers and Andrew Kirkcaldy. Willie Park played much better than in the forenoon, but could do nothing against Pulford's great lead. Tom Williamson and Cawsey squared their matches with Kinnell and Duncan, the last-named failing occasionally on the putting greens; but P. J. Gaudin proved too strong for young Ben Sayers, and Ernest Gray gained an easy victory over G. Coburn. Mayo was unexpectedly beaten on the last green by Peter McEwan, but W. E. Reid gained another match for England by beating W. Hunter by a hole. One of the hardest matches of the day was that between Walter Toogood and J. Hepburn. The latter was playing a powerful game, but Toogood kept the match going till the seventeenth hole. In the end England won by eight matches to five. Details:

J. Braid (Scotland) beat H. Vardon (England) by four up and three to play.

J. H. Taylor (England) and A. Herd (Scotland) halved.

T. Vardon (England) beat J. White (Scotland) by three up and two to play.

E. Ray (England) beat B. Sayers (Scotland) by three up and two to play.

R. Jones (England) beat A. Kirkcaldy (Scotland) by four up and three to play.

G. Pulford (England) beat W. Park (Scotland) by nine up and eight to play.

A. H. Toogood (England) beat R. Thomson (Scotland) by three up and two to play.

T. Williamson (England) and J. Kinnell (Scotland) halved.

G. H. Cawsey (England) and G. Duncan (Scotland) halved.

P. J. Gaudin (England) beat B. Sayers, jun. (Scotland), by six up and five to play.

C. R. Smith (Scotland) beat J. Rowe (England) by four up and three to play.

T. Watt (Scotland) beat J. Sherlock (England) by three up and one to play.

P. McEwan (Scotland) beat C. H. Mayo (England) by one hole.

W. E. Reid (England) beat W. Hunter (Scotland) by one hole.

J. Hepburn (Scotland) beat W. Toogood (England) by two up and one to play.

E. Gray (England) beat G. Coburn (Scotland) by seven up and six to play.

England, eight matches; Scotland, five matches.

THE GOLFING CHAMPIONSHIP, 1907.

GREAT interest was evinced in the Championship decided at Hoylake on Tuesday, June 18th, and the three succeeding days, on account of the number of players who were known to be in excellent form. Braid, the holder, had given every evidence of his ability to win his fourth Championship, and H. Vardon, in spite of the fact that he had been beaten by Braid in the professional International match, had happily shown that he was playing as powerful a long game and almost as good a short game as ever. Then A. Herd was at the top of his form, and J. H. Taylor had shown no falling away. Massy, in view of his fine play on the Continent earlier in the year, was also a force to be reckoned with; but while Jones, T. Vardon, Mr. J. Graham, and Mr. J. Ball had likewise to be taken into account, Mr. H. H. Hilton had refrained from entering.

Under the new conditions of play—which provided for the playing of qualifying rounds on Tuesday and Wednesday, the thirty lowest scorers, including all who may tie, on each of those days to qualify for the Championship contest proper on Thursday and Friday—there were ninety-seven starters on Tuesday and ninety-six on Wednesday.

The weather on Tuesday was of a mixed character. Early in the morning rain fell continuously for two or three hours, ceasing about ten o'clock. A. Herd set a hot pace at an early stage by returning a score of 71, which was the outcome of superb golf. His details were: Out, 4 5 4 3 3 4 3 5 4=35; in, 5 3 4 3 5 4 5 3 4=36. F. Collins, about an hour later, returned a card showing a score only one stroke more than Herd's, but was not so consistent as the Ex-Champion. His details were: Out, 5 4 5 3 5 4 2 4 5=37; in, 4 2 3 3 5 5 5 4 4=35. A. Massy returned the next best score, a 73, made up as follows: Out, 4 4 5 4 4 4 2 5 4=36; in, 4 4 4 3 5 4 5 4 4=37.

The bulk of the best-known players made no strenuous efforts after low scoring, it being felt that two 80's would qualify safely, especially under the prevailing conditions. At the end of the round, it was found that only sixteen returns under 80 had been made. In the second round the scores were much higher, only twelve being under 80. The best scorer was Massy, who maintained a marvellous consistency. He took 5 for the first hole, as compared with 4 in the morning, but after that he completed each hole up to the eleventh in precisely the same score, not excepting even a 2 at the seventh. At fifteen out of the eighteen holes he had exactly the same score each time, and finished in 74, just one stroke more than in the morning. The details of his round were: Out, 5 4 5 4 4 4 2 5 4=37; in, 4 4 3 3 5 5 4 5 4=37. Herd played well within himself, and took no risks. Each half cost him five strokes more than in the morning, but the storm had probably something to do with this. Williamson had a fine second round of 74 (36 out, and 38 in), and A. Toogood handed in a capital score of 75 (38 out, and 37 in). T. Vardon repeatedly got into trouble on the outward journey, which cost him 47, but came home in excellent style in 36. White improved on his morning score of 86 by six strokes; but eventually it was found that the Champion of 1904 would not be able to take part in the actual fight for the Championship of 1907, the highest score to qualify being 165, at which five players tied. Other noted entrants who fell out thus early were W. Auchterlonie, Champion in 1893, and W. Fernie, Champion in 1883.

The weather was fine, but a strong and gusty wind blew across the course from the west, and made low scoring difficult, especially at such holes as the fourth, seventh, and eighth. As the day advanced the wind gathered strength, and the scores in the afternoon and evening were nearly all high. One of the most extraordinary features of the day's play was the great difference in the two rounds of Mr. John Ball. His first nine holes in the morning found him in his best form, for he reached the turn in the wonderfully low score of 35, and finished the round in 76, which proved to be the lowest score of the day; but it was equalled by J. B. Taylor, who was out in 38 and home in a like figure. Mr. Ball, however, fell sadly away in the first half of his second round, which totalled up to 84; but not so Taylor, who, with a steady second round of 78, led the field by four strokes. The next best round of the morning and of the day came from P. J. Gaudin, who took a stroke more than Taylor to go out, but returned in the same score. Braid and H. Vardon made many mistakes, and seemed unable to settle down. Braid found the bunker at the first hole, and visited several others later, while his putting was not above reproach. He required 42 to reach the turn, and, with some aid from the wind coming in, could do no better than 40. Vardon made a bad start. He pulled his tee shot close to the railings, and took three to reach the edge of the green. With three putts the hole cost him 6, and he also took three putts on the second green. Other mistakes of a like character ran up his score to 81. He and Braid were similarly uncertain in the second round, the latter going out of bounds at the eighth hole in both rounds. Vardon astonished the spectators by getting a 3 at the fourth hole, laying the ball dead from the bunker. One of the most surprising performances of the day was that of G. Carter, of Guildford, who tied for third place with two good rounds of 79 and 80. G. Duncan had the same aggregate score, while E. Ray, of Ganton, played two steady rounds of 80. The following thirty-three qualified :

Williamson and T. Vardon were the first couple to attract attention. Excepting for an 8 at the sixth hole and a 6 at the sixteenth, the latter played steadily, going out in 41 and coming home in 41. Williamson's round was 82, his card being marred by a 7 at the first and an 8 at the sixth. Hepburn, who took 43 to the outward half, bettered T. Vardon's return by a stroke, but he was quickly ousted from pride of place by W. Toogood. With Mr. J. Graham as his partner, Toogood turned at the low figure of 38, and came home in a similar number of strokes. His card read:

Out... .... 5 4 5 3 4 5 3 5 4=38 } 76
In .... 5 4 4 4 4 5 4 5 3=38 }

The Royal Liverpool crack, on the other hand, was not at his best, and required 83. A quarter of an hour later Toogood's fine score was equalled by Massy, who quite excelled himself coming home. T. Ball did well to finish in 80, but something better than an 82 was expected from Braid. He played the first five holes steadily, but came sadly to grief at the troublesome sixth hole. He pulled out of bounds off the tee, topped his second, was bunkered twice afterwards, and, taking six to reach the green, required two more to hole out. Short putts were missed at the two succeeding holes, and he turned in 44. He showed improvement afterwards; but, still, his game did not inspire confidence. W. M'Ewan played exceptionally steady golf for his 79. Like Massy, not a single 6 appeared on his card, he had the three short holes each in 3, and rounded off his card with five successive 5's. Pulford's round was 81, but H. Vardon was in even worse plight than Braid. Twice in the rushes going to the third hole, bunkered at the fourth and eighth, and out of bounds at the sixth, he took the alarming total of 47 for the outward half, but considerably bettered his prospects by coming home in 37. Other ex-Champions, in A. Herd and Mr. J. Ball, required 83 and 88 respectively, the former putting slackly, and the latter taking 48 to reach the turn on a course he knows so well, and under conditions over which he usually rises triumphant. But this is golf all over. On the other hand, J. H. Taylor played well up to his reputation, and his 79 (42 out, and 37 in), placed him in third place three strokes behind W. Toogood and Massy. The scores in the second round were in many cases better than in the first, but Williamson was the only player to nearly approach Massy and Toogood's first-round score. He began none too well with 6's to the first and third holes, but atoned for this by taking the seventh, eleventh, twelfth, and thirteenth each in 3, and finished in 77 (41 out, and 36 in). T. Vardon registered a second 81, but Hepburn and W. Toogood required no fewer than eight and ten strokes more than in the forenoon. Ray beat his partner, Massy, by one stroke; but the latter kept well in the running none the less with an 81 (40 out, and 41 in). G. Duncan improved his position with a capital 78 (40 out, and 38 in), and T. Ball emulating him, his inward half being 37, forged into second place one stroke behind the French Champion. A 78 by C. H. Mayo, and a 79 by James Kinnell, came too late, for their forenoon scores had been eight and ten strokes worse; but Pulford's 78 augured well for his chance of taking a high place. Braid, with 85, was even more disappointing than in his first essay, and H. Vardon and Herd, each with 81, showed only slight improvement; while, with an aggregate of 175, R. Jones' prospects were thus early completely wrecked. Taylor, however, in no way disconcerted by having topped his card with a 7, settled down in grim earnest, and, repeating his previous score of 79, tied for second place with T. Ball at the close of an eventful day, while Williamson and Pulford were bracketed fourth with 159.

On the closing day (Friday) the weather was fortunately much improved, and fully 4,000 spectators were on the links. The order of start was as follows:

Of the leaders at the close of the first 36 holes' play, it fell to Taylor to set the pace, and he did so splendidly. Out in 38, he made few mistakes coming home, a good recovery from the bunker guarding the sixteenth green giving him a 4, and he finished in 76. On the other hand, T. Ball, who had been on level terms with Taylor on the previous day, fell slightly away, his round being 81, and similar remarks apply to Williamson, whose score was 82. H. Vardon and Braid were seen at their best, their cards being 74 (39 out, and 35 in), and 76 (37 out, and 38 in) respectively; but it was felt that their return to form had come too late, albeit Vardon's effort had placed him within five strokes of Taylor. Massy and Pulford were the second last couple to start, and their game was followed with the keenest interest. Massy, pulling his tee shot close to the fence, required 6 to the first hole, and strokes were also dropped at the fifth, where he missed his pitch, and at the sixth, where his second was trapped to the right of the green. Thus, his outward half totalled up to 42, but he came home well in 36, only to find that Taylor had wrested pride of place from him. Pulford's start was disastrous, inasmuch as he topped his card with an 8, two strokes having been lost in a bunker. Like his partner, he turned in 42, but came home steadily in 38. With one round to go, the leaders were Taylor, 234, Massy, 235, and T. Ball, Pulford, and H. Vardon, 239; but it was conceded on all hands that the issue had now narrowed itself into a contest between Taylor and Massy. Taylor began steadily with a 5 and 4, but, after a fine drive, he sliced his second to the third hole into long grass. His ball lay badly, and he took two strokes to reach the course, the result being that, in spite of the fact that he holed a good putt, his card was marred by a 7. The six remaining outward holes were, however, played very steadily, and he turned in 41. The four succeeding holes were so nicely played as to give augury of a good card after all; but he fell slightly away afterwards, and finished with an aggregate of 314. Meantime, his great rival, Massy, had reached the turn in 38, having been seen to advantage at every point, and the Frenchman consequently faced for home, leading by two strokes. For five holes all went well with him, but he was bunkered going to the fifteenth, and the hole cost him a 6. Taking a 5 to the succeeding hole, he was left with two 5's to win the Championship, and his victory was practically assured when he secured the seventeenth in 4. He was well over the bunker guarding the home green with his approach, and, getting down in 5, was hailed victor amidst great enthusiasm. Pulford had been putting up a good game against him all the time, and the veteran Hoylake professional deservedly tied for third place, with T.

Vardon, whose splendid round of 75 was the lowest of the afternoon. Braid and Ray also bettered their positions appreciably with 76 each, and secured places in the prize list. The Championship Cup and Medal and other prizes were afterwards presented by Professor Paterson, Captain of the Royal Liverpool Golf Club, and with this function terminated a long-drawn-out contest, which will be long recalled, inasmuch as it witnessed the wresting from Great Britain for the first time of the highest honour in the world of golf. Subjoined are the two best cards, the order of the prize list, and scores :

ARNAUD MASSY,

GOLFING CHAMPION, 1907.

ARNAUD MASSY.

GOLFING CHAMPION, 1907.

Arnaud Massy, the first foreigner to win the blue ribbon of the golfing world, was born at Biarritz some thirty-three years ago, and picked up the game there while acting as a caddy. His play attracted the attention of Mr. Hambro, and that gentleman brought him over to North Berwick, where, upon playing with him, that fine judge of the game, B. Sayers, promptly declared that he would win the Championship in the near future. Curiously enough, he first entered the lists at Hoylake in 1902, when he took tenth place thirteen strokes behind Herd. In the following year, at Prestwick, he could finish no nearer than thirty-eighth, and he made no return at Sandwich in 1904. At St. Andrews in 1905 he, however, won his way into the prize list, tieing for fifth place with E. Gray, and he secured sixth prize at Muirfield in 1906. His performances last year are too recent to need recapitulation, but he emphasised the fact that, alike as a stroke and a match-player, he was the man of the year. Gifted with a powerful physique and a perfect style, Massy looks like wearing well, and, given health, last year's Championship victory should assuredly not be his last. Our portrait is reproduced by kind permission of Golfing, from a photograph, by Messrs. Montague Dixon & Co.

GREEN ARCHITECTURE.

By Mr. John Anderson, Secretary, Mortonhall Golf Club.

Within the last couple of decades—during which period the game of golf has attained its present popularity—there have been created, among many hundreds of others, four great golf greens which are outstanding examples of the green architect's art. The first in order of date was Sandwich, discovered by Dr. Laidlaw Purves; the second Sunningdale, formed by Willie Park; the third Huntercombe, laid out also by Willie Park; and the fourth Walton Heath, the creation of Mr. Herbert Fowler. Each of these greens has its own special characteristics, excepting their common feature of excellence, and the circumstance that two of them—Sunningdale and Walton Heath—were both created in every sense of the word, both having been originally heath land ploughed up and sown down. Sandwich, as everyone knows, has the advantage of being seaside with natural sand hills and sand holes capable of being utilised as hazards which the other three lack, and Huntercombe is, for the most part, grassland covered with whins, only a small part having been sown down. Huntercombe and Walton Heath are the two latest examples, and may be regarded the embodiment of different ideas, chiefly at and near the hole. At the former, while hazards are placed for each green, they are in such a position and at such a distance from the hole as to give the player a choice of stroke; at the latter the principle seems to be that the shorter the approach the more accurate it ought to be, and the closer to the green should the hazards be placed. It is not intended to discuss whether the one is preferable to the other or not; probably on this subject, as on most others, opinions are divided, and probably, too, many would prefer a middle course. But what attention is intended to be directed to is the vast improvement which might be effected upon a large number of golf courses by following certain simple examples provided in these great greens.

Very many greens, especially inland ones, may be said to have been laid out with a tape line; so many yards measured off and then a hole made, so many more and then another, the chief object being to obtain eighteen of the longest possible holes within a given space of ground. Such a method can never be productive of a really fine course. It does not require a very extensive study of the best seaside greens to arrive at the conclusion that none of them have attained their present form by such means. The first consideration should be to form the putting greens in places naturally adapted, and which will give some sort of character to each hole, and take away the impression of merely driving a ball along a flat piece of ground to an uninteresting green, for a longer or shorter distance, eighteen times in a round. Sometimes it may be necessary to form entirely new putting greens, but in such cases there need be no necessity either for laying down an absolutely level green like a tennis lawn, or for banking up a square billiard table with a steep face at one or more sides, such as seems to have been the only ideas which have hitherto presented themselves. If a green has to be formed, it is not more difficult and not even more costly to do it in such a way as will not only make it harmonise with the surrounding ground, or add variety to it, but will also make it a very much more interesting hole to play to from an entirely golfing point of view. Two very excellent examples of made-up greens may be seen, at Huntercombe—that hole made in imitation of the table hole at Musselburgh—and the eighteenth at Walton Heath.

The remarks above made apply also to the making of tees; usually they are rectangular plots banked up on the surface, no doubt excellent tees, but eyesores to everybody. Even a banked-up tee can be made practically unobtrusive with no very great skill.

It is, however, in the making of bunkers and hazards that the ordinary green architect is at his worst. This has no reference to that debatable subject, the placing of hazards, but refers merely to their form and shape.

The usual sort of thing is a bank of greater or less extent in the centre, with a ditch about 6 feet wide on one or both sides sloping down to the bank. Sometimes the ditches are filled with sand, sometimes not; but whether or not, they are the most unfair and exasperating kind of hazard in golf. They are not adapted to holding badly-hit balls, and if a ball does by chance trickle in, it is usually hard up against the turf face, and affords the unfortunate player no fair chance of extrication. Bunkers should be made both wide and deep, the deepest part in the centre, like a bowl. Here, again, the green architect with an artistic eye has a great chance. He does not need to make his bunkers like mathematical figures, but should imitate nature. If he be devoid of talent in this direction, a simple plan is to take sketches of natural bunkers on seaside links, noting their dimensions, and reproduce them on his own green. Large bunkers on inland courses are expensive, as sand is a heavy item; but, if a regular scheme for improvement is adopted, the work can be done gradually, and the cost spread over a series of years.

THE IRISH AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP, 1907.

THE play in the sixteenth Irish "Native" Championship, which was decided at Portrush on Wednesday, May 22nd, and the two succeeding days, does not call for extended comment, inasmuch as H. A. Boyd (holder) and H. M. Cairnes, the runner-up in the previous year, were, after the third round, regarded as practically certain to contest the final. So it proved, and, after a long day's golf—for the "semi-finals" and final were compressed into the Friday—Cairnes succeeded in turning the tables on Boyd with considerable ease. He did not secure the lead until ten holes had been played, only to have it straightway wrested from him. He then, however, settled down to a telling game, and finished the first round four up. It was give and take for a time in the afternoon, Boyd winning the first, fourth, and seventh holes, and Cairnes the second, fifth, and sixth. The latter then reasserted himself, and, pocketing three holes in succession, and halving the next two, was hailed a popular Champion six holes from home. Details:

MR. J. D. BROWN,

IRISH OPEN AMATEUR CHAMPION, 1907.

IRISH OPEN AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP, 1907.

THIS ever-popular re-union was held at Portmarnock on Monday, September 2nd, and the four following days, included in a wonderfully representative entry of 170, being J. Ball, the Amateur Champion, H. A. Boyd, the then Irish Open Amateur Champion, and a previous holder of the title in J. S. Worthington. Few surprises were sprung in the first round, which consisted of only twenty-one matches, and in the second and third rounds, which took up the second day from early morning until after dark. Indeed, the contest between W. C. Pickeman, the discoverer of Portmarnock, and A. Jeffcott had to be left undecided until the following morning, when it finished in favour of the former at the twenty-fourth hole. The features of the fourth round were the victories of D. F. Ranson and G. R. Girdlestone over H. E. Taylor and J. Robb, and the splendid uphill fight made by C. A. Palmer against J. S. Worthington. Ranson held the whip-hand of Taylor throughout, but the game between Girdlestone and Robb came to the home green. Girdlestone was one down at the tenth, but he promptly squared accounts, went ahead at the fifteenth, and eventually won an interesting tussle by two holes. Palmer was three down against Worthington at the twelfth, and two down at the fifteenth; but, just when the latter's victory seemed assured, he played a foolish shot from the rough with his brassy. He paid the penalty by being bunkered, and, as he got into further trouble at the seventeenth and eighteenth holes, Palmer stepped in, and won a sensational match. All three victors, however, fell out of the running in the fifth round, their conquerors being H. K. Mitchell (Murrayfield), H. M. Cairnes, the Irish Native Champion, and H. W. Beveridge.

It was "pull devil, pull baker" between Mitchell and Ranson, the former, albeit two up at the turn, finding himself one down three holes later. A deadly short game, however, enabled him to regain the lead at the sixteenth, and he won at the next hole. Cairnes got the lead quickly, and kept it, the best policy against such a "sticker" as Palmer. Beveridge began none too well, but soon settled down, and beat Girdlestone with something in hand. Thursday forenoon's play was exciting to a degree. Ball, although suffering from a severe attack of neuralgia, went out in 36, and turned three up against the French Amateur Champion, S. J. Chesterton; but his putting left him afterwards, and he was beaten a hole from home. J. D. Brown (Murrayfield) won his tie against Beveridge by a similar margin, but Cairnes inflicted a severe defeat upon Murrayfield's other representative (Mitchell), the Irish Champion's running up being exceptionally good. The remaining match brought out to the full S. H. Fry's determination. He was three down at the fifteenth against W. S. Lurcott, but succeeded in squaring the match. On going out again Lurcott, however, pluckily contested the issue, and six extra holes had to be played before Fry won his way into the penultimate round. In the afternoon both games came to the home green. Cairnes turned two up against Brown, but the latter drew level at the seventeenth, and won by a putt. Fry would probably have beaten Chesterton by two holes, but he was laid a "stimie" at the seventeenth. In the final tie, on Friday, the play was not particularly good to start with, Fry winning the first two holes, and Brown the next three. Fry squared with a tremendous steal for a 3 at the seventh, but Brown replied with interest by taking the ninth and tenth holes in a like figure. Fry once more drew level at the fourteenth, lost the fifteenth—thanks to his failing with a short putt for once in a way—but won the home hole, thus giving augury of a fine finish. In the afternoon Brown regained the lead at the outset, and, pressing his advantage, was three up at the twelfth. Fine putting by Fry deservedly won the thirteenth and fourteenth holes; but Brown responded, and gained an extremely good victory with one hole to go, his steadiness against such a formidable opponent as the 1902 Silver Medallist being remarkable. Details:

Laidlay, is played for annually. The round consists of twelve holes. There are two more holes, but they are very seldom played. The hazards are trees, bunkers, mud walls, ditches, &c., and the difficulties of the round are added to by the abnormal number of sandy lies and the keenness of the "greens," which are brown patches of puddled earth, over which sand is sprinkled daily.

There is also a course in connection with the Mena House Hotel, only an hour's journey from Cairo It consists of nine holes (par, 35), and is laid out on a beautiful stretch of grass, in close proximity to the Great Pyramid. As the grass is, however, rather thin, players are requested to play in rubber soles. The hazards are sandy roads, mud walls, &c., and the greens are keen and tricky. Visitors, 10*d.* a day.

Carey—we find the following remarks:—"A Golf Club was established in Calcutta on the 24th March, 1839, of which Lord Ramsay was Captain." Records of the existence of the Club have been traced ten years previous to this, and it would appear that 1839 has been misprinted for 1829. Further proof is from the existence of a large quantity of brass buttons still in the possession of the Club which bear the Scotch Thistle, Golf Arms, and motto "Far and Sure," and the year 1829. There are two courses of nine holes each on the Maidan, in the centre of the town. The circuit of the old course is 3160 yards, and of the new course 3061, the par of both being 39. Another course, of eighteen holes, is being laid out. The course, of nine holes, is on an undulating plateau, about a mile long, covered with strong short-cropped grass, and, though hazards are scarce, the course is by no means an easy one. The site is one of the most picturesque in Southern Italy, commanding, as it does, a magnificent view of the two seas and of the marvellously beautiful coasts of Naples, Vesuvius, Ischia, Capri, and Salerno. The height above sea level is from 1600ft. to 1700ft., and, though the pull-up from Sorrento is a long one, a pleasant residence can be found for any golf-playing visitors who require a few weeks in the most salubrious air which the Mediterranean coasts afford in the suburban township of St. Agata, where cheap lodgings and board are always obtainable, and which is situated on the ridge, within a few minutes' walk of the course. In any case, however, the ascent can be made on donkey-back, if the donkey be a good one, in less than three-quarters of an hour from Sorrento itself. In October and November, and again from March to June, the climate is very enjoyable, and, owing to the almost insular position of the Sorrento hills, is cooler and fresher than that of any place in Continental Italy.
